Survey Shows Years of Overspending.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

Extravagance and waste of many millions of public funds have been uncovered by President James B. McCahey and other new members of the board of education in a survey of the financial history of the Chicago public schools covering the last 18 years. The new school trustees delved into the archives to find out why the board has sunk so deep into the financial mire.

They found first of all that the current school debt, as of June 15, is $132,840,000. Of this amount $8,000,000 is a current deficit not covered by any kind of assets or expectant resources. The assets to discharge the remainder of the obligations are partially frozen since they consist largely of delinquent taxes.

18 Years of Misrule.

This debt of $132,840,000 was accumulated during 18 years in which the misrule of former Republican city administrations dominated school affairs. In each year except one since 1916, the records show, school trustees under the control of this political machine spent more than the annual revenue of the system.

As long ago as 1915 warnings were sounded that the Republican ring which had seized the city government was wrecking the public schools to build up a political machine.

Warnings were repeated, as the rape of the school financial system continued year after year, that while school money might help to keep the Republican ring in power, its misrule would result in the ruin of the school system within 20 years.

Mayor Dever's Hands Tied.

It is recalled that an awakened public conscience turned out the Republican ring for one term, but the four years of Mayor Dever's Democratic administration were not sufficient to give him effective control of the school system, due to the fact that a new mayor cannot oust board members summarily and assume control of the schools at once.

The late Mayor Cermak was up against the same lack of control over school affairs, which remained in the hands of the old Republican ring almost till the time of Mr. Cermak's death. Now Mayor Kelly, having assumed control of the board and responsibility for the schools, is confronted with the problem of a school system which is in a state of almost hopeless wreck.

McCahey Leads Economy Fight.

President McCahey, a business man, is Mayor Kelly's choice to lead the effort to rescue the system from its financial difficulties. Four other new trustees, also business men, have been appointed by the mayor.

In order to reduce the board's expenditures and lower the current $8,000,000 deficit President McCahey has appointed a special committee, which is expected to get into action on Wednesday. The president will serve as chairman and the other members are Trustees Joseph P. Savage, William D. McJunkin, Charles W. Fry, Paul Drymalski, and Joseph J. Salat. The latter three are new trustees. Savage and McJunkin are holdovers.

Consider Eliminating Jobs.

One of the economy measures being considered by the trustees, a task especially distasteful to politicians, is that of eliminating jobs. The board members have indicated that many heads will come off, however. The board showed a desire to economize several weeks ago when, despite teacher demonstrations, it voted unanimously to close the schools for the summer two weeks early, thereby saving $2,000,000 in salaries and expenses.

Salaries	$ 21,800,000
Tax warrants outstanding	76,000,000
Tax warrant interest	6,000,000
Owed to working cash fund	24,540,000
Bills	3,500,000
Due to teachers' pension fund	1,000,000
Total	$132,840,000

In order to finance the operation of the schools through the rest of 1933 the school board drafted a bill asking for authority to issue $40,000,000 worth of bonds. The measure was passed by the state senate in Springfield last week and will be up before the house this week.

It is proposed to sell the bonds directly to the federal government. If this plan fails the board will sell them to a bank or trust company which in turn will use the securities as collateral in getting the federal

CHARGE BEATING OF AUTOISTS IN EVERGREEN PK.

Village Police Face Courtney Quiz.

Two Evergreen Park policemen were accused of brutality toward a party of Chicago motorists who were halted for questioning early yesterday in the southwest suburb. Attorney Joseph H. Braun of the Chicago Motor club, angered by evidence of brutality produced by the victims, announced that he will demand an investigation today by State's Attorney Courtney.

Policemen Herbert Drabandt and Charles Roache are alleged to have used blackjacks on Edward G. Tuerk, 30 years old, 7826 Lowe avenue, and W. Don Lowrie, 30 years old, 6150 Greenwood avenue, in the Evergreen Park police station. Both Tuerk and Lowrie said they were beaten when they protested against destruction of papers they gave to the policemen for identification purposes.

Wife Knocked Down, She Says.

Tuerk's wife said she was knocked down by a blow of Roache's fist when she went to the aid of her husband. A fourth member of the motoring party, Miss Elizabeth Scott, 28 years old, 8046 South Carpenter street, fiancée of Lowrie, brought about the release of the party by a telephone call to the motor club.

The Tuerks, Lowrie, and Miss Scott were returning from a bridge tournament near Palos Park. Tuerk is traffic manager for a Chicago company and Lowrie is service manager for Lavery Brothers Auto Sales company, 6127 Cottage Grove avenue. They had started home shortly before 4 o'clock in the morning. Lowrie was driving Miss Scott's car.

Lowrie's Story of Attack.

"We were driving east in 95th street, a four lane highway, when a car without lights pulled alongside," Lowrie said. "I refused to stop until the occupants of the car said they were police. The policemen said they would have to take us to the station so we could identify ourselves. At the station I was dragged from the car.

"I produced a record of my earnings for last year, prepared by my company for income tax purposes. Also I had my personal property tax receipt. These Drabandt crumpled up and threw away. He kept other papers.

Struck with Blackjack.

"When I protested that we could not be held because we were not charged with any violation of the law I was told we could be held for 24 hours without being booked. I protested against the destruction and confiscation of my papers. Drabandt said I was too fresh and dragged me out of the station. Then he hit me with a blackjack and I fell to the ground."

Tuerk said he tried to go to the rescue of Lowrie and was struck with a blackjack by Roache. The blow knocked his glasses off.

"I went to pick up the glasses," Mrs. Tuerk said. "My husband cannot see well without them. As I approached Roache he struck me below the right eye, knocking me to the floor."

Lowrie Runs from Station.

Meanwhile Lowrie had risen to his feet. He ran for a barbecue stand at 95th street and Western avenue. When Drabrandt and Roache found he had disappeared they locked up Tuerk and went after Lowrie, Mrs. Tuerk said.

After the policemen left the station Miss Scott called the Chicago police, who told her they had no jurisdiction in Evergreen Park and advised her to call the motor club. She made the suggested call.

About the same time Lowrie reached a telephone at the barbecue stand.

"I put in a call for the Chicago police," he said. "Before the call was completed Roache and Drabandt appeared outside the phone booth. I tried to hold the door against them, but they tore it from its hinges and dragged me to the station from the barbecue stand.

Call in the Village Chief.

"As I was being returned to the station Drabandt promised me I would 'get plenty.' But when we got to the station he learned that Miss Scott had called the police and the motor club. He and Roache became worried and called Chief of Police John Teller. By this time it was 6 o'clock in the morning and no charges had been made against us.

"Chief Teller wouldn't listen to us. The policemen said we had been drinking. We tried to tell the chief we

St. Paul, Minn., June 19 [Monday.]—(AP)—The possibility that a rival gang may have intercepted the ransom paid to effect the release of William Hamm Jr., kidnaped wealthy St. Paul brewer, arose today.

Failure of Mr. Hamm to return to his home last night as confidently expected by his relatives, or to send word to them, aroused the suspicion of officials that the money may have fallen into a rival gang's hands.

The money was paid late Saturday night on a highway 60 miles north of here following instructions from the kidnapers. The amount, which H. J. Charles, attorney for the Theodore Hamm Brewing Co., of which Hamm was president and treasurer, said was less than the $100,000 originally demanded, was tossed out of a car believed to have been driven by W. W. Dunn, business associate of Hamm, between Pine City and Rush City.

Complying with instructions, Dunn left late Saturday for Duluth. He registered at a hotel and received a telephone message that he was to send a coupé with the doors and rumble seat removed to a point near Rush City.

After an exchange of signals and passing and repassing of the money car and two other machines, the ransom was kicked out onto the highway. The ransom car then returned to Duluth, where Dunn waited at his hotel room for word of Hamm's release.

FLEES FROM JAIL ON 'HOME RUN,' BUT IS CAUGHT

Charles Miller, 18 years old, a trusty who escaped yesterday from the county jail, where he was serving a year's sentence for automobile larceny, was captured by Evanston police this morning. He was sleeping in the home of a friend, John Buckawiski, 1623 Greenwood avenue, Evanston, when Sergt. Tony Schultz and his squad walked in on him. The police went there on secret information.

"I just couldn't help running away from jail," explained the youthful prisoner. "The weather was so nice and I could see people walking about, so I just had to take it on high."

Miller, a former bellboy, escaped from jail because of a home run in a baseball game. With other prisoners he was playing ball in the jail yard when one of the players knocked the ball upon the roof of the building used for jurors. Miller volunteered to retrieve the ball. He climbed to the roof, returned the ball, and then jumped to the top of the yard wall, which is 25 feet high. From there he jumped to the ground unseen and walked away.

Storm Forces Roosevelt Into Safety of Port

BULLETIN.

Edgartown, Mass., June 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt beat out a glowering Atlantic storm today and raced into the shelter of the harbor here for his first night at sea. A lashing northwest wind of 25 miles an hour accompanied by rain and signs of a real squall caused "Skipper" Roosevelt to seek this quiet haven on the island of Martha's Vineyard late in the afternoon after a rough trip from Woods Hole, Mass., his stop at noon.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Motor Ketch Mary Alice, Katama Bay, Mass., June 18.—[Special.]—Capt. Irving Hall of the Mary Alice sniffed through a long, thin nose that was pointed southeast by east toward the white hull of the presidential vacation yacht Amberjack II. winging through the choppy channel of Woods Hole this squally afternoon.

The sniff was partly sympathetic, mostly scornful. Capt. Hall is a Cuttyhunker. Stowed in a sea chest at home he has a D. S. M. for dumping an ash can on a German submarine in the North sea fifteen years ago.

"Now, I don't like to criticize the President of the United States," he commented, "but if he'd set his foresail to starboard he'd get a better full. See the full he's got in his forestaysail."

Again the sniff, as the captain cocked his heels on the rungs of the pilot's seat and twirled the wheel a spoke or two to meet an ambitious wave.

Whole Fleet Noseys After.

"Be President of the United States?" he said. "I should say not. When I go sailing I don't want a whole fleet noseying after."

The scene the captain squinted at out of the cockpit windows of the Mary Alice had indeed the look about it of a naval review. Or perhaps the better simile might be a poor little rich girl out in the park for a lovely day of play flanked, chaperoned, and surrounded by policemen and nursemaids.

The President's day began in the harbor of Marion, Mass., starting point of his vacation cruise. James Roosevelt, his son, and some of the others dared a plunge into the icy waters. With the President and his son are Paul Rust, owner of Amberjack 2d, Amyas Ames, John Cutting, and George Briggs, all friends of the Roosevelt family.

After breakfast the President came out to sit in the cockpit of the 55 foot sailing vessel, and there he stayed nearly the whole day. Sometimes he was alone, just sitting in the sun and enjoying it hugely. Once he had a visitor when little Peggy Richards of Marion tumbled into a skiff and pulled calmly past the navy cutter cruising in a slow circle about the President's boat.

Sails Before Stiff Breeze.

A start was made in midmorning. With a fresh breeze blowing, the Amberjack II. mounted a Marconi mainsail, foresail, and two jibs. The start was made in sunny weather, but with a chill bite to the wind.

Just before leaving, the President sent a telegram to the master and crew of the Gloucester fishing schooner Gertrude Thibaud telling them he was planning to arrive in Gloucester some time Tuesday to repay the visit they made him in Washington when they came to ask for a tariff on swordfish meat. What once was a paying industry, say the Cape Cod folk, is now sadly crippled due to the importation of cheap swordfish meat from Japan.

Has Luncheon with Forbes.

An hour's sail across Buzzards bay brought the President to Hadley's harbor, near Woods Hole. There he dropped anchor for three hours in order to have luncheon with W. Cameron Forbes, former governor of the Philippines and former ambassador to Japan, whose summer home overlooks the harbor. While the President and Mr. Forbes lunched the others of the party went ashore for a horseback ride.

After lunch the Amberjack II. started on the afternoon leg of the journey. The whole day's trip totaled some 25 miles. Tomorrow's stage is to be longer, since the schedule calls tentatively for a run to Provincetown, some 80 miles.

For dinner tonight the President enjoyed a mess of sea bass, caught and prepared by John Cutter.

BOY, 13, KILLS SELF AFTER BROTHERS AND SISTERS TEASE HIM

Members of the family said that the boy, one of a family of 13 children of Mr. and Mrs. John Arnott, had taken some money from his mother's purse to spend at a street fair. She ordered him to return it and the other children taunted him.

The boy, they said, went upstairs. Then they heard a shot and found Charles lying there, a .22 caliber rifle beside him.

MAY CUT EUROPEAN TIES IF TRADE PROPOSALS FAIL

Country Able to Live in Isolation if World Balks.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—[Special.]—The United States is fully prepared, in the event of a failure at the world economic conference, to cleave its own way toward better days.

Although President Roosevelt is known to have sincere hopes that the London parley will succeed in opening up the avenues of world trade, his program has been so forged that if the nations of Europe permit selfish political bickering to break up the conference the United States will be able to commence a new era of isolation.

It was learned today that the United States will enter no agreements at London which interfere with the domestic program of the President, and that the first evidence of this came when Mr. Roosevelt refused to approve the proposal for temporary currency stabilization.

Stands for America First.

To agree to this might mean a falling of prices in the United States, and the President has definitely decided that he must stand for domestic measures supporting the American battle for recovery ahead of any proposals for the aid of Europe.

At the same time, it was learned, the so-called American proposal for a horizontal 10 per cent reduction of world tariffs does not have the final support of the administration and was put forward only for purposes of discussion.

Several of the President's principal advisers, viewing with grim distaste the early evidences of Europe's desires to use the London conference as a fulcrum for cancellation of the war debts, have quietly been studying the possibility of an isolationist policy.

Favor World Accord.

They have taken the position that, while it would be infinitely better if all or most of the nations of the world entered into measures to restore commerce, the United States, under the new powers given the President by congress, can achieve a domestic prosperity under which our people will be well fed, have jobs, leisure and means for recreation, and general well-being. But they see less hopes, under the latter policy, for the huge commercial profits of '28 and '29.

America, better than any other great nation, can endure a long stage of isolation, in the opinion of these advisers, because it has vast stores of natural resources yielding nearly everything the country needs. But more than this, it has also the greatest consuming power.

This combination of a wealth of raw materials and a great demand, manipulated by the President under his new powers, could sustain the United States long after Europe had sunk into a self-imposed slough, it is held.

To Push Domestic Program.

The President's present view, it was learned upon high authority, is that his first aim will be to lift conditions in the United States. To this end he will push his domestic program vigorously. His advisers have found this

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 18.—The world economic conference goes into its second week tomorrow amid a quite prevalent feeling of the delegates that it is not destined to accomplish anything of very great importance.

This impression emerges from a week of reconnoitering by each power of the positions of other powers on economic and political questions involved, and a survey of the difficulties of getting general agreements to undo what the nations have done to protect their domestic economic systems in the last decade.

The prevailing opinion seems to be that after about five weeks more of palavering the conference will enunciate some high sounding principles to which the nations will be adjured to adhere and let it go at that.

No Real Pessimism.

It cannot truthfully be said that pessimism pervades the conference or that the prospect of failure to attain objectives originally conceived is viewed with gloom by the statesmen of the major powers at least. Observers note a spreading tendency to agree with the dictum of the economist who said the conference is being held either a year too soon or a year too late, he couldn't tell which.

With business reviving in the United States and Great Britain, the guess of many is that it is being held too late; that ere long its ministrations will not be needed and that natural economic forces will operate to stabilize international trade.

Certainly anything but pessimism is encountered in contacts with the British. They are fairly bursting with elation at inducing President Roosevelt to reopen the war debt settlement and to accept their one-tenth silver payment on June 15 with a certificate that failure to pay the other nine-tenths does not constitute default.

Conceived to Cancel Debts.

More than one eminent Briton has been heard to remark in the last two or three days that now that America is going to revise the war debts downward the economic conference might as well pack its trunks and go home. It is a remark that illuminates the origin of the economic conference, which notoriously was conceived by America's European debtors for the purpose of forcing the United States to cancel war debts as a detail of the economic rehabilitation of the world.

This design is frustrated when the United States declined to participate in the economic conference unless the war debts were excluded and the debtor nations were compelled to accept half a loaf—debt reduction negotiations concurrent with the London deliberations. With President Roosevelt acceding to the British plea to reopen the settlement the debtors are evincing satisfaction with concurrent negotiations as yielding more than they had reason to expect.

British Lose Interest.

Now that an agreement has been reached with Mr. Roosevelt to begin debt reduction negotiations, the British public has lost interest in the economic conference. The British are clearly proceeding on the assumption that the President will agree to virtual cancellation of the four billion dollar debt and will be able to deliver ratification by congress.

London newspapers abound with calculations of the millions of dollars saved British taxpayers by Mr. Roosevelt's acceptance of the 10 per cent payment and of millions more prospectively to be saved by a revised settlement.

As for the Americans, Secretary of State Hull is about the only one who looks forward to the failure of the conference with gloom and pessimism. He is an old time orthodox free trader or tariff for revenue only Democrat who never has been reconciled to recent protectionist tendencies of his party. He with the Democrats in power and himself at the head of the cabinet expected to put his theories into effect on a world-wide scale. He entertains no illusions regarding the probable outcome of the conference, but is sure the world will go to the dogs unless a universal reduction of tariffs and other trade barriers is effected.

See Failure as Aid to U. S.

Other members of the American delegation view the apparent course events are taking with more equanimity partly because they lack the power to negotiate any far reaching economic agreements and partly because they believe failure of the conference would be the best thing that could happen to the United States.

These views are due to the fact that America's returning prosperity is being developed along nationalistic lines of self-containment as to both agriculture and industry with a lessening dependence on foreign trade. This path back to prosperity succeeds the internationalistic route of foreign trade restoration that constituted the backbone of the policy Mr. Roosevelt began shaping after his election.

As it now appears to some of the American delegates, any effective London compact would involve concessions by the United States that would impede domestic recovery by the inflation route chosen by Mr. Roosevelt. As it appears to nearly all of them it is futile to continue negotiations of tariff reductions of importance in view of the failure of the President to obtain such power from congress.

U. S. Groups Disrupted.

Disruption of the American delegation over tariff proposals is evidenced by the incident of Mr. Hull's transmission yesterday to the economic commission of the conference a suggestion of a discussion of a horizontal general 10 per cent tariff reduction.

Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], a member of the delegation, issued a statement today declaring that such a suggestion had not been submitted with the authority of the delegation, Mr. Pittman said:

"The statement in the press today that the American delegation has proposed to the economic conference a ten per cent horizontal cut in all tariffs is without foundation.

"No such proposition was submitted to the delegation.

No Fault of the Press.

"The technical advisers of the delegation may have drafted their ideas to form the basis of discussion for the agenda of the economic commission. I am informed that these suggestions were transmitted to and given publicity through the economic commission and were not given out through press officers of the American delegation.

"It is unfortunate that through error the statement was attributed to the American delegation. I should add that this erroneous impression was due to no fault of the press."

Meanwhile, the Americans foresee no greater prospect of agreement on stabilization of currencies than of tariffs. Instructions cabled by Washington disclose that Mr. Roosevelt is proceeding cautiously on this matter and is fully determined to make no concessions involving permanent suspension of his policy of raising prices by cheapening of the dollar.

The utmost he will concede apparently is an agreement to coöperate to hold the dollar to a specified range of fluctuation for a temporary period. American financial experts said tonight they expect such a limited stabilization arrangement to be agreed upon within a week.

program in strong variance with the purposes of the international conference, but they have argued that it would be better to set America on its feet first, even if it means raising tariffs instead of lowering them.

This view is that for the United States now to seek the lifting up of the whole world is an impossible task, and that if this country is sunk in the effort it will avail the world nothing.

However, it is not intended by this group of the President's advisers that the United States should cut itself off entirely. Trade with Canada and with Mexico, and with South American countries, could be strengthened by negotiation of separate commercial treaties, it was pointed out, with advantage to both parties.

Sincere in His Aims.

Mr. Roosevelt entered upon the preparations for the world conference with force and sincerity. In the first place, he appointed as his secretary of state, Mr. Hull, who long advocated a breaking down of tariffs and almost open door policy.

The President invited the representatives of the leading powers of the world to converse with him, and in those discussions evinced his desire to bring about a world new deal. During this time the President deliberately sought to kindle the hopes of the American nation in the London meeting.

He now has sent Mr. Hull at the head of the American delegation to London, and Mr. Hull yesterday presented the beginning of a program of downward tariff revision.

All this activity has been aimed at securing a great increase in world commerce, from which all nations might benefit.

Baruch, Molay Advisers.

But, in the meantime, he has been guided by such advisers as Bernard M. Baruch and Prof. Raymond Moley, head of his "brain trust" and assistant secretary of state, who has shown himself with strong leanings toward American nationalism and has fashioned a new order of legislation intended to enable the United States to stand on its own feet.

In recent weeks, Mr. Moley publicly, on several occasions, has shown a pessimistic attitude toward the possibilities of any material success being obtained at London. A disposition has been noted in the administration to assure Americans that even if the diplomats of the world go awry at London, the gains that have been made toward better times will not be lost.

An analysis of the measures pushed through congress by the President shows even more clearly the extent to which has has gone in building up defenses for an isolationist policy.

Industry Bill Feature.

The industry control bill is the outstanding feature of this plan. It empowers the President to limit production, to dictate wages and working hours, to control price levels, and to impose even higher tariffs against foreign imports if the cost of production is raised to a point making this necessary.

Parallel powers, even more drastic and complete, are given the President in the farm bill. He can easily shut down production to the point where there will be no surplus above domestic consumption.

The object of both measures is to improve the lot of the working classes, to improve their standard of living. The laboring classes of no other nation on earth have been as high as that of the United States, and if the President succeeds in raising them still higher, economists believe it inescapable that he must raise tariff walls against the cheap labor countries to prevent a flooding of competitive products into this country.

See Sufficient Powers.

Some of the President's advisors believe it would be possible for him to fashion a plan, even within the powers now at his hand, for the regimentation of production and manufacturing, whereby it would be brought to jibe with domestic consumption and that workers might be given wages sufficient to balance production with purchasing power.

Word of this type of planning, going abroad among business leaders, has produced a fear among some of them that such a form of governmental control would be perilous and unworkable because of the inability of a politically constituted government to function smoothly, efficiently and without corruption in such a mammoth undertaking.

Moley Going to London.

Professor Moley is leaving Wednesday for London, where he will observe the status of the conference and then report back to the President. His public attitude has indicated that he will be a most critical observer, and it is deemed likely that the President is sending him so that he may have a balance against the internationalistic attitude of Mr. Hull. It is generally believed in Washington that if the conference begins to show a disposition on the part of the Europeans to inflict an unfair deal upon the United States, Mr. Moley will be sent to take an active leadership in the parley.

The decision of the President not to ask the departed congress for authority to negotiate tariff revisions has been cited as an evidence of Mr. Roosevelt's growing tendency toward nationalism, although he has denied this. If tariff revisions are agreed upon at London, it will be necessary to postpone putting them into effect until congress can thresh out the new proposed schedules, beginning next January.

Considers Plan Unfair.

The President, in turning down the proposal of the British and French for a temporary agreement on monetary stabilization, did so, it was learned here today, because he felt the proposal was not fair to the United States.

One of the closest Roosevelt advisors declared that the President is determined not to let America be bled by Europe, just so that some sort of world agreement may be reached, and that while he has no thought of driving a hard bargain against Europe he will enter into no phases of agreements which do not appeal to him as giving to this country a square deal.

One other step which is in the offing, seeming to show a disposition toward Uncle Sam taking care of himself, is in an announcement by the Reconstruction Finance corporation that it may set up a corporation to protect its foreign trade from exchange restrictions set up by foreign nations.

U. S. Pushes Plan to Reduce Wheat Crops of 4 Nations

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 18.—Representatives of the United States are prepared to push negotiations this week with Argentina, Canada, and Australia toward committing these major wheat producing countries to limit crop production.

American quarters tonight were hopeful that some arrangement to put through their wheat acreage reduction project could be worked out within the next few days.

Plan 15% Cut First Year.

The plan is to reduce production 15 per cent in the first year and 10 per cent in the second year.

The aggregate wheat production of these four countries is one billion, six hundred million bushels annually. The abnormal carryover this year is 350 million bushels. It is proposed to make curtailment of production contingent on France and other importing countries relaxing wheat restrictions.

France entered the negotiations to ameliorate the wheat crises tonight with a scheme of its own. Its representatives have submitted a memorandum to the economic commission of the conference, outlining their pet theory of the adjustment of production to consumption by direct accords between governments. They also have been busy promoting conversations between wheat experts of various delegations along the lines they lay down in their memorandum.

Call for Two Sets of Accords.

The French plan calls for a double set of accords. One is between the principal wheat producing countries and the other between the wheat importing countries. The object of the import convention is to make it possible for the wheat exporting countries to enter into multilateral, bilateral and even unilateral engagments to reduce production without conditioning their action upon the general adherence of all producers.

The wheat importers, according to the French plan, would agree to give perferential customs treatment to wheat from countries which accepted limitation. The French believe this plan will avert the difficulty which has wrecked all previous international schemes to control wheat production. That difficulty has been the refusal of some big producer or group of producers to join a general accord.

In the same way the French are trying to push through a cotton relief plan. Unofficial conversations already have been held between experts from the French department of national economy and members of the American delegation regarding the possibility of an accord between the three principal producers, the United States, Egypt, and India. The French seek to reduce plantings 20 per cent.

This agreement, if concluded, would be complemented also by a preference accord among the cotton importers.

Want Other Materials Regulated.

In their memorandum the French list a number of raw materials which they want to have regulated by a series of international accords. Besides wheat and cotton, the list includes wool, coal, silver, leather, and wine.

They argue that their scheme would tend to end the disequilibruim between consumption and production which was one of the main causes of the world crisis, open up new markets, stimulate employment and effectively raise price levels, thus avoiding artificial monetary manipulations. They think the conference should begin trying to do something for these basic products which interest the greatest number of individuals throughout the world.

The French memorandum already has been accorded a prominent place on the agenda of the economic committee. Since the scheme depends upon a series of separate intergovernmental accords and not on a general convention the French anticipate at least partial success.

The French think the hope of raising prices lies in this organization of production by government accords and international cartels. Hence they see in the adoption of their proposals an escape from the monetary deadlock now facing the conference over President Roosevelt's determination to keep up prices by devaluating the dollar.

FRANCE SHOCKED AT ROOSEVELT'S 'PAY FIRST' IDEA

Feels U. S. Will Take Part Instead of Nothing.

PARIS, June 18.—(AP)—France was slightly shocked today by the Roosevelt administration's pointed suggestion to pay first and talk debt revision afterward.

Officials warily intimated that since France is willing to pay something, a way will be found for the United States to take it rather than get nothing.

Disappointment was expressed because the latest American note failed to mention the statement in the French note of June 15, when the last payment was due, that the debts were not being repudiated.

Expect No Action.

Premier Edouard Daladier will present the problem to the cabinet, probably Tuesday, but chamber of deputy circles do not expect any immediate action. It was commented in these circles that "time is a great physician" and that the quick moving events at the world economic conference and in connection with the British debt settlements should clear the atmosphere.

The French position was that its failure to pay the June and last December installments, totalling $60,000,000, was merely a deferment pending a move by the United States for a review of the funding agreement.

Silver Interests Cheered.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 17.—Silver interests naturally are deeply interested in Britain's debt payment settlement and gratified by America's acceptance of silver in payment at a price considerably in advance of the current quotation.

The absence of any marked rise in consequence of this arrangement is explained by the fact that the British government already had brought the necessary silver from the Indian government and the 20,000,000 ounces required constituted a mere fraction of the Indian government's total stocks.

Very divergent views are held as to the future of silver and speculators are approaching the situation with great caution. Nevertheless, it is felt that the price of silver is much more likely to rise than decline because it certainly looks as though an international agreement to stabilize silver at a higher level will be achieved.

Owner of 'Old Mexico' at Fair Charged with Fraud

S. S. Millard, principal owner of the "Old Mexico" concession at the Fair, was arrested yesterday by Sergts. John Walsh and Henry Steinberg of the detective bureau and booked on a confidence game charge. Theodore Braiman and George Ford, operators of the checkroom and soda fountain concessions in "Old Mexico," signed a complaint charging Millard with defrauding them. Millard will appear this morning in felony court.

RAYMOND ROBINS SAYS RUSSIA HAS MADE PROGRESS SINCE 1917

MOSCOW, June 18.—Raymond Robins, former Chicago social worker and dry crusader, who was in Russia in 1917 during the bolshevist revolution and who won the confidence of Nicolai Lenin, Leon Trotzky and other soviet leaders, is back in Moscow after a six weeks' tour of the country. It is his first visit to Russia since he left here in 1918 and, incidentally, he shows no sign of the attack of amnesia that he suffered last year.

During this trip over the soviet union he covered thousands of miles —from Leningrad to Magnetogorsk and Sverdlovsk, in Siberia; from Moscow to Stalingrad, Dnieprostroy and the giant state farms of the northern Caucasus. Everywhere, he said, he was amazed by the progress and the contrast with the earlier days.

"They find it hard sledding," he said, "and maybe they have bitten off a rather big mouthful, but I believe they can chew and digest it, and I am convinced they are going ahead."

FRENCH PEASANTS FIGHT POLICE TO BALK TAX SALE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 18.—Fifteen hundred peasants near Amiens today tried to block a forced livestock sale for taxes on the farm of one of their number and clashed with 150 gendarmes and mounted guards who were sent to keep order.

The farmers beat up several men attempting to bid, and two gendarmes and two farmers were injured in the fighting. Two charges were made by mounted police. Ten peasants were arrested, but seven of them managed to escape later.

The "defense committee" of Capt. Salvaudon, the war veteran farmer whose property was being sold, did all the bidding. The government was seeking a $400 social insurance tax which Salvaudon refused to repay and got it, since, although outsiders did not bid, the committee raised the money themselves.

Symphony Concert Opens Music Convention Today

Delegates from 800 locals of the American Federation of Musicians will attend the annual convention of the union which opens today at the Palmer house. The convention will be opened at 1 o'clock with a concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra and addresses by James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians; John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and Joe N. Weber of New York, national president of the musicians' union.

2 More Macedonians Slain in Bulgarian Political Row

SOFIA, Bulgaria, June 18.—Two more political assassinations, both of Macedonian communists, occurred today at Plovdiv. The victims, members of the Mihallovist group, were the third and fourth in the last few days.

BE NAZIS OR LOSE CHILDREN, HITLER WARNS PARENTS

Must Rear Youth for Reich, He Says.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

ERFURT, Germany, June 18.—A threat to deprive non-Nazi parents of their children if they resist the program of the "third reich" was made by Chancellor Adolf Hitler in a speech here today.

"Our enemies ought to realize that the goal is ours," the Nazi leader told an audience of 185,000 gathered to witness a review of 60,000 Nazi storm troopers. "If the older generation can not get accustomed to us, we shall take their children away from them and rear them as they should be reared for the Fatherland."

After 14 years, the chancellor asserted, evidently referring to his party's rise to power since the treaty of Versailles, a miracle has taken place.

Cares Nothing for Other Opinion.

"Why shouldn't a second miracle succeed in the next 14 years?" he asked. "The day will come when complete freedom will shine all over Germany. Our great nation can not, for eternity, be the pariah of the world."

The chancellor said he cared nothing for contemporary opinion.

"But we shall accomplish what the future hopes from us," he continued. "Let it be written on our epitaphs, 'We have been hard; we have been ruthless; but we have been good Germans.'"

Issues "Intolerance" Order.

WEIMAR, Germany, June 18.—(AP)—An order for intoleraunce against anything non-Nazi was issued today by Fritz Sauckel, reich's governor for the state of Thuringia, in an address before a congress of Thuringian Nazi leaders.

Sauckel declared that Naziism "is the only political faith."

"I command you not to tolerate anything else," he said. "Discussion of things touching on the life and existence of our people must cease. Those daring to doubt the rightness of the Nazi principles ought to be branded as traitors."

Bans Juvenile Non-Nazi Groups.

SCHWERIN, Germany, June 18.—(AP)—Falling in line with Gov. Sauckel's utterance in Thuringia, Gov. Hildebrandt of Mecklenburg announced today before 15,000 Nazi boys and girls the dissolution and dispossession of all non-Nazi juvenile organizations in Mecklenburg and Luebeck next week.

"Physical training and education of youth belongs in our hands alone," he said. "All youth in these [non-Nazi] organizations and the possessions of these groups will be placed at the disposal of Mecklenburg's Hitler youth."

Steel Helmet Posts Dissolved.

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, June 18.—(AP)—Police dissolved today seven posts in East Prussia of the steel helmet, Nationalist war veterans' organization. Two leaders were arrested.

It was charged that the steel helmeters were deliberately trying to augment their numbers as a counterbalance to the brown shirted Nazi storm troops. The same reason was given for dissolution of several steel helmet locals in the state of Brunswick Saturday.

HUNT GANG WHICH KILLED CONVICT AND 4 OFFICERS

Search for Kansas City Slayers in Six States.

Kansas City, Mo., June 18.—(AP)—Search for the machine gun killers of four peace officers and an escaped convict here yesterday spread to a half dozen states tonight, although federal and local officers had but a meager clew on which to work.

The trail left by the slayers from the scene of the killing, the Union Station plaza, was soon lost, and even the path taken by them has remained a subject of dispute. However, agents of the United States bureau of investigation and hundreds of other officers were piecing bits of evidence together in hopes of bringing about their arrest.

List of Victims.

Dropped by the machine gun fire were: Raymond J. Caffrey, special agent of the bureau of investigation; Otto Reed, McAlester, Okla., chief of police; Frank Hermanson, and W. J. Grooms, Kansas City detectives, and Frank Nash, notorious Oklahoma train robber and killer.

Nash was being returned to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., from which he escaped three years ago.

Battles for Life.

E. J. Lackey, special agent at Oklahoma City of the United States bureau of investigation, who was critically wounded by the slayers, still was clingin; to life today at Research hospital. R. E. Vetterli, agent in charge of the bureau of investigation here, was slightly wounded.

Frank Smith, another federal operative, escaped unscathed.

The search for the gunmen spread to Hot Springs, Ark., where Nash was arrested, to Oklahoma, where he was a member of the Al Spencer gang, through Missouri and Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, and even to Chicago, where Nash had told police he had "connections."

NEW ROOSEVELT ORDER TO DOOM DRY SNOOPERS

Prohibition Bureau to Die on Aug. 10.

Federal department heads in Chicago expressed the belief yesterday that there will be no prohibition agents after Aug. 10, when President Roosevelt's executive orders on consolidation and abolition of government agencies becomes effective.

No departmental orders as to changes in personnel have been received since the President's message was submitted to congress on June 10, but the impression that wholesale dismissals are soon to come has spread gloom through the ranks of some 280 enforcement officers and permit inspectors in the Chicago district.

Bureaus to be Consolidated.

The President's orders, which become effective in 60 days after their submission to congress, provide for the consolidation of the prohibition enforcement unit with the present bureau of investigation of the department of justice. They also will consolidate the licensing functions of the bureau of industrial alcohol with the bureau of internal revenue, treasury department.

Since both the enforcement and licensing functions of the present prohibition machinery are to be assumed by other branches of the government, local officials believe this means the outright abolition of the prohibition agencies. Under the power granted the President by the economy act federal employés on civil service may be "separated from the federal service" when their agencies are abolished, except that they may be reinstated in some other branch within four months subject to the approval of the President.

Doubt They'll Land Jobs.

Prohibition enforcement, if any, is to be done after Aug. 10 by agents of the bureau of investigation, which is to be known as the division of investigation. Local prohibition officials are frankly doubtful that any of their agents will land berths with this branch.

To be eligible for civil service jobs in the bureau of investigation, a man must either be a graduate of a recognized law school or an expert accountant. The nature of their work, bank embezzlements, bankruptcy frauds, mail fraud cases, and all other offenses against the government not specifically assigned to some other unit, makes these requirements essential. On the other hand, the civil service examination for prohibition agents is one of the simplest given.

Beer Inspection Work.

It is believed locally that a few of Supervisor E. C. Yellowley's 50 inspectors in the alcohol permit unit may find jobs in the bureau of internal revenue, which is to be known as the division of internal revenue. The investigation of applications for brewery permits, the inspection of beer and the collection of the excise taxes, officials said, may require more work than can be handled by the present staff of internal revenue agents.

The relegation of enforcement responsibility to the bureau of investigation, whose college trained operatives have always looked with distain upon their prohibition colleagues in the justice department, is interpreted by federal officials as nullification of the Volstead act in anticipation of the expected repeal of the 18th amendment. However, the shakeup is not expected to make any difference in the enforcement situation in Chicago, for since the return of legal beer the dry agents here have confined their activities to the raiding of a few stills.

Expected to Save Millions.

The consolidations will result in a saving of millions of dollars if most of the personnel in the prohibition units are dropped. The appropriation for all prohibition enforcement activities for the fiscal year 1934, beginning July 1, is $8,440,000.

The regular prohibition agents, under Administrator Malachi Harney and Deputy Gus Simons, 60 men; special prohibition agents, under W. E. Bennett, 17 men; prohibition bureau of investigation under Eliot Ness, 15 men; bureau of industrial alcohol under E. C. Yellowley, 50 men. In addition there are two deputy administrators in Wisconsin, two in Indiana and three in downstate Illinois, each with about 20 men, or a total of 140, under the jurisdiction of Administrator Harney.

Judge's Son Finds Body of Boy in Waterway

The body of a boy believed that of Robert Matuskivcz, 7 years old, 3048 West 26th street, was recovered yesterday from the drainage canal at Romeo, in Will county, by Perry Trude, 7120 Yates avenue, son of Judge Samuel H. Trude. Young Trude was on his way to Chicago in his boat, the Trudie, when he discovered the body. Robert was drowned June 12 when he jumped into the canal from a trestle at Kedzie avenue to escape an approaching train.

STEAM SHOVEL TO DIG FOR HITCH HIKER'S VICTIMS

Hammond authorities have engaged a steam shovel to start excavations today in the gravel pit three miles south of that city, where Woodrow J. Cochran, 24 years old, prisoner in the Pendleton, Ind., reformatory, asserts that he buried the bodies of a man and woman whom he murdered four years ago.

Cochran made a purported confession Saturday, stating that he begged a ride with the couple, clubbed them to death, and hid their bodies. His story was partially corroborated by E. A. Wood, owner of a garage at Milford, Ill., to whom Cochran tried to sell a stolen automobile on April 5, 1929. There were bloodstains in the automobile and Cochran fled when Wood started to investigate.

Wood turned the car over to a Hammond garage representing the owner, but cannot remember the name of the garage. Hammond police have been unable to find who was the owner. Cochran, who is serving a term for attempted rape, was taken to Hammond Saturday. He said he buried the bodies near the Concordia cemetery on Calumet avenue, but was unable to remember the spot.

Several hundred persons visited the scene of the supposed burial yesterday, some of them equipped with shovels with which they made desultory investigations, but authorities will delay their own inquiry until the steam shovel is available today.

IOWA PREPARES FOR VOTE ON DRY REPEAL TUESDAY

Economic Side Stressed by Wets.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Davenport, Ia., June 18.—[Special.]—Repeal of prohibition as part of President Roosevelt's national industrial recovery program is a leading theme in the final drive to elect repealist delegates in Iowa Tuesday to the July 10 convention to ratify the wiping out of the 18th amendment.

Sunday saw the battle raging at furious pitch. Both repealists and drys regard Iowa as a barometer state whose vote will be far greater in significance than that of Connecticut and New Hampshire, which go to the polls on the same day.

Repealists issued warnings of overconfidence, saying a small vote may endanger the anti-prohibition movement. They dwelt on taxes, cost of government, business recovery, temperance, and racketeering.

Will Repeal Taxes, Too.

They pointed to the new industrial recovery act and its provision empowering the President to repeal by executive proclamation certain new taxes imposed by the act as soon as the 18th amendment is repealed and liquor revenue, which brought in 365 million dollars in the last year before prohibition, again start pouring into the national treasury.

They hammered away on the theme that repeal means reduced taxes, and that it will bring into federal, state, and local treasuries an income which prohibition has diverted into the pockets of the bootleggers, moonshiners, and racketeers, placing organized crime on a highly financed basis.

In the cities the repealists warned the voters that unless they turn up a good vote Iowa may lose its legalized beer, now being consumed temperately at soda fountains, in drug stores, and restaurants. The legislature is to meet again next fall, and in case Iowa shoud vote dry Tuesday officialdom declares the lawmakers would probably repeal the recent state beer act, which was passed by a somewhat narrow margin.

Roosevelt Influence a Factor.

The great popularity of President Roosevelt in the rural areas and the urge against prohibition as a costly failure are relied on by the repealists.

Although Iowa appears headed for repeal, following the lead of Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Indiana, where rural regions which formerly were dry strongholds turned up repeal majorities in recent elections, the anti-prohibitionists will redouble their energies tomorrow with a state-wide appeal against overconfidence.

Meanwhile the professional drys in a desperate campaign are shouting that if Iowa votes to retain prohibition it will stem the tide in which eleven states have consecutively gone for repeal—Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Wyoming, New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Nevada, Illinois, Indiana, and Massachusetts. Today they staged meetings in 23 cities, while from pulpits many dry preachers harped on the old string that repeal would fill the jails, which under prohibition were expanded and filled to overflowing.

NEW HAMPSHIRE TO VOTE

Concord, N. H., June 18.—(AP)—Last minute appeals by the friends of prohibition were made today as New Hampshire's voters marked time for Tuesday's election to determine the state's attitude toward the 18th amendment. Repealists were inactive.

E. D. Toland, chairman of the state group of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, left the city for a week-end vacation, expressing confidence New Hampshire would be placed on Tuesday with the 11 other states which have voted in favor of the repeal of prohibition.

Formerly Dry State.

New Hampshire until a year or two ago had been regarded as a "dry" state. This year, however, the present legislature has leaned toward repeal. The lawmakers have legalized the sale of 3.2 beer and have passed a bill which would permit the sale of six per cent beer and wines in the event the 18th amendment is repealed.

The method of election will have ten delegate candidates pledged for repeal and ten pledged against repeal. The delegates elected will be called to the statehouse by Gov. Winant at a later date to ratify the will of the voters.

Connecticut Also Votes.

New Haven, Conn., June 18.—(AP)—Expressing confidence that Connecticut will cling to its tradition of being a "wet" state, repealists bent their efforts today toward rolling up a big vote on Tuesday for the delegates they hope to send to the convention.

From the pulpits of churches went final appeals for new support for the 18th amendment, which Connecticut never ratified.

"I do not concede a single district," Walter E. Batterson, state chairman of the repealists, said in predicting a clean sweep for the wet delegates.

Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, outspoken foe of prohibition, is expected to set the date for the convention soon after Tuesday's election. This gathering will be pledged either for or against ratification of the 21st amendment which provides for national repeal.

ALFONSO'S SON MAY WED CUBAN BEAUTY IN SWITZERLAND TODAY

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 18.—(AP)—The former prince of the Asturias, who renounced his rights as heir to the Spanish throne, and the Cuban beauty Edelmira Sampedro will be married in a civil ceremony tomorrow or Tuesday and the church wedding will take place Wednesday in Ouchy, Switzerland.

Both the civil and church ceremonies will be public. High Spanish society will attend, but not the royal family, it seems, since the former prince received a letter from the queen detailing complications and expressing disapproval of his marriage to a commoner. This was contrary to previous reports which said the queen was happy about it all despite the opposition of the exiled King Alfonso.

The ex-king's eldest son, who changed his name last week to the count of Cavadonga, and his bride will spend a honeymoon of several weeks at Evian-lesBains, fashionable resort on Lake Geneva. Latest reports from Paris, near where Alfonso has been living in exile, said the former king was almost ready to change his mind and approve the marriage.

LAKE WIND COOLS FAIR THRONGS AS MIDWEST BAKES

91 Highest Temperature of Day in Chicago.

For the third successive day yesterday breezes from Lake Michigan saved Chicago from sweltering heat. City temperatures remained in the upper eighties during the afternoon, while as near by as 30 miles to the west thermometers went over the 100 mark.

Chicagoans were able to appreciate what the cooling effects of the lake breezes had been during the day when the wind shifted in the evening, bringing in the heated air from the west. At 7:15 p. m. the temperature reached 91 degrees, the highest of the day.

Below 85 at Fair.

Visitors to the World's Fair were comfortable throughout the day in a temperature which ranged from 84 at 11 a. m. to 82 at 5 p. m., as recorded by the Havoline thermometer. At the Municipal airport, only eight miles to the west, the mercury climbed to 96 on an official government thermometer.

The western section of the city did not enjoy the lake breezes, the winds varying from the southwest to the northwest. Elgin, 30 miles to the west, reported a maximum of 101.2 at 3 p. m.

The hot spell had been expected for two days by the weather bureau, but it was delayed Friday and Saturday and again yesterday by lake winds. Today will be a scorcher unless the lake unexpectedly comes to the rescue, Forecaster C. A. Donnel said. The prevailing wind will again be in the southwest.

Expects Relief Tomorrow.

However, Mr. Donnel said that relief probably would arrive, with a shift in the wind to the northwest, by late tomorrow, and that Wednesday should be moderate in temperature.

The heat wave in the middle west has become pronounced, with temperatures of 100 or more in Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, and Illinois. Cooler weather, however, has overspread the northwest and should reach Chicago by tomorrow night, Mr. Donnel said.

EARL MARRIED IN RENO A DAY AFTER DIVORCE

Reno, Nev., June 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Elsie Himes, recent Reno divorcée, today became the bride of Christian Arthur Wellesley, fourth earl of Cowley.

The couple said they plan to live in Reno, after a honeymoon at Santa Barbara, Cal.

The former Mrs. Himes was born in Reno.

JEWISH PAGEANT DRAMA UNFOLDS AT REHEARSAL

Director Puts Performers Through Their Paces.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Something of the immensity of the task undertaken by Isaac Van Grove in directing the production of "The Romance of a People," the gigantic spectacle-pageant which will climax Jewish day at A Century of Progress on July 3, was revealed last night at the first full rehearsal on the stage in Soldiers' Field.

It was a chaotic scene before the rehearsal began. The 3,600 singers, dancers and musicians seemed to mill about in utter confusion when suddenly a voice raised by an amplifier called out:

"Everybody in your places."

All Find Their Places.

And everybody seemed to know exactly where he or she belonged. It was but a moment until the figures, which had been flitting about, had found their places. Then:

"Quiet, please."

A few, terse directions came from the amplified voice of Maestro Van Grove and action began in the mighty drama which mystically will depict the beginning of man's faith in the God of Justice, love, and holiness. The story moved on and the conflict between diety and idols and conscience and devilry increased in intensity. Light and shadow, muffled motive changing to majestic crescendos, rythmic dance and bacchanalian orgies supplant each other as faith and apostacy followed each other.

Judge Harry M. Fisher, general chairman of Jewish day activities—a solitary figure in the vast expanse of seats—looked on transfixed as, under the last of their drivers, 200 slaves were dragging the huge idol Moloch to the stage on which human sacrifices were to follow bacchanalian orgies.

The judge looked at the hideous figure of Moloch and some of the feeling of revulsion against idols which has been built up during the 4,000 years of the history of his race must have swept over him as he pointed his finger and exclaimed:

"That damned thing cost us $8,000."

The idol measures 27 feet high. Its construction resulted from careful archeological study and authorities declare that it is a replica of one of the most famous idols of ancient Palestine.

Dr. Stone Expresses Enthusiasm

Christian coöperation in the presentation of the pagaent-drama is reported to be growing more enthusiastic as July 3 approaches. Dr. John Timothy Stone, pastor emeritus of the Fourth Presbyterian church and president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, has expressed his enthusiasm for the pageants.

Other leaders, including Dr. Norman B. Barr, of Olivet Institute; Dr. Ernest Graham Guthrie, of the Congregational union, together with many other prominent Protestant leaders are among the sponsors of the event. The special Christian coöperating committee will hold a meeting tomorrow to discuss its plans.

Tomorrow night in the grand ball room of the Palmer house, Maestro Van Grove will be a guest of honor at a reception for officers of all organizations affiliated with the celebration of Jewish day. Emma Lagaroff Schaver, operatic soprano of the Tel Aviv Opera company of Palestine, who has come here to be a soloist in the production, will sing as Mr. Van Grove at the piano presents a series of "previews" of the scenes. Avrum Matthews, tenor, Nathan Vizonsky, dancer, and a group of principals will assist.

Jews Rehearse for Spectacle at World's Fair

Pilot Killed as French Plane Falls Into Crowd; 25 Hurt

NANCY, France, June 18.—(AP)—A falling airplane, landing in a crowd and spilling burning gasoline after hitting the roof of a hangar, killed one person and injured 25 others today at a military aviation fête here. The pilot, named Poiret, was killed. The accident was attributed to his inability to take the plane out of a spin at a low altitude.

Senator Robinson (Indiana) to Run Again in 1934

Indianapolis, Ind., June 18.—[Special.]—Senator Arthur Robinson announced today that he will seek renomination and reëlection in 1934. Robinson realizes, he says, that he has a dual problem, for in addition to reversing the strong Democratic tide that swept everything before it in Indiana last November he must win the Republican nomination.

AMERICAN JEWS PUBLISH STORY OF HITLER RULE

New York, June 18.—[Special.]—The story of the persecution of the Jews in Hitlerized Germany, supported by carefully prepared data based on documentary evidence, was published today in the form of a "white book" by the American Jewish committee.

The "white book" presents a complete record of events affecting the Jews in Germany, beginning with the early days of the Nazi movement in 1923 and 1924 and continuing down to the end of May of this year. Contained in the book are decrees, documents, and other authenticated facts dealing with the Nazi attacks on the Jews before and since the accession of Hitler to power.

In addition to a collection of official documents the book contains a series of eye-witness reports of the acts and oppression and violence which have marked the Hitler régime with respect to the Jews. Most of the material is based on the eye-witness accounts of British and American journalists.

50,000 ATTEND LUTHERAN DAY AT WORLD FAIR

Church Leaders Speak in Soldiers' Field.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Nearly 50,000 Lutherans from all parts of the country gathered in Soldiers' field yesterday afternoon to demonstrate what leaders asserted to be the essential unity of American Lutheranism despite its apparent divisions. The assembly was one of the day's events at the World's Fair.

In his address of welcome, Dr. Joshua Oden, pastor of the Irving Lutheranism speak exclusively for "Lutheran orthodoxy," and that the day of Lutheran union is rapidly approaching.

The audience at the demonstration nearly filled the seats on the west side of the field. On the opposite side of the field were more than 3,000 singers from the various choirs of Chicago and suburban churches. Supporting the great chorus, led by Prof. F. Milius Christiansen, were college bands from Augustana college at Rock Island and Concordia college at Moorhead, Minn.

Eastern Leader Speaks.

The Rev. Dr. Walter E. Schuette of Sewickley, Pa., president of the eastern district of the American Lutheran church, was one of the two principal speakers. He asserted that doctrines established four centuries ago by Martin Luther have lost none of their power.

The religion of the test tube and the scientific laboratory, said Dr. Schuette, has proved to be inadequate for man's needs and thoughtful people are realizing the "practical worth of Martin Luther's doctrine that salvation is only gained through faith alone," despite the present emphasis on "good works."

The demonstration was staged through coöperation of the two branches of the National Lutheran council known as the American Lutheran conference in which the American Lutheran church is a leader. The American Lutheran church recently was formed by the fusion of several smaller synods.

Dr. Scherer Addresses Crowd.

The other branch coöperating through the council is composed of the United Lutheran synod, the Augustana synod and the Danish-Norwegian synod. The latter was represented by the Rev. Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of the Holy Trinity church, New York City. Dr. Scherer is well known to Chicago congregations. He has appeared several times at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall.

Dr. Scherer told the audience that if Martin Luther should visit America he would observe that the principal change affecting religion has been the lessening of the importance of religion and the rise of secularism.

Dr. Scherer said Protestantism's chief trouble today is the "strange and tragic penchant for adopting opinions and calling them beliefs."

Yesterday's demonstration was the earlier of two Lutheran celebrations planned in conjunction with A Century of Progress. The second will be held in July under the auspices of the Walther league of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod. The Missouri synod is the principal Lutheran group not included in the National Lutheran council and represents about one-half of the American membership in the Lutheran communion.

ALL ATTENDANCE RECORDS BROKEN AT WORLD'S FAIR

Sunday's Crowd Exceeds That of Opening Day.

BY EARL MULLIN.

All paid attendance records thus far at A Century of Progress Exposition were broken last night. At 11:30 o'clock 128,479 visitors had passed through the gates, surpassing the previous high mark of 119,675 on opening day, May 27.

A total of more than 185,000 persons was recorded on opening day, but this included in excess of 60,000 free admissions which are not tabulated in the official attendance figures. Yesterday's attendance almost eclipsed the record opening day figure of 128,965 at the 1893 World's Columbian Exposition.

From the opening of the first gate at 9:30 to permit the entry of more than two thousand visitors who had been waiting at the 12th street entrance, the attendance showed a constant increase over any previous day. Late in the afternoon it was running 13,000 an hour ahead of Saturday, which had the second largest attendance since the Fair opened.

Nearly 5,000 in 30 Minutes.

During the first 30 minutes the gates were open 4,752 visitors entered. By noon the attendance was 10,000 ahead of Saturday, and at 4 p. m. 79,674 persons had entered the grounds, as compared to 60,300 at the same hour on Saturday. At 6 o'clock the 100,000 mark had been passed.

"To say that we are pleased is putting it mildly," Maj. L. R. Lohr, general manager, said. "We are delighted. The attendance is running far in excess of our wildest hopes, and not only assures the success of the Fair but means much more to Chicago. Officials of transportation companies, the hotels, and the large stores tell us that their business is booming. The success of the Fair is creating prosperity for the city."

Officials, who had predicted that the total attendance at the Fair might reach 50,000,000, had set a daily average of 75,000 for June. The average is approximately that, but if the daily attendance keeps jumping as it has in the latest week the average may come close to the 100,000 mark.

Million and a Half Already.

Total attendance at the Fair, at the close of the gates on Saturday night, was 1,518,134, as compared to the first three weeks' attendance of 641,744 at the Columbian exposition. Opening day at the old fair showed a greater attendance, with 128,965 paid visitors, than at the opening of the present exposition. However, the best day in the three weeks following opening of the 1893 fair was only 55,368 on Saturday, May 20, as compared to the second best day attendance of 109,131 at the 1933 Fair.

Comparison of attendance at the two fairs is difficult for two reasons. The old fair opened a month earlier than the 1933 exposition, and consequently drew smaller crowds than might be expected in a summer month. The second month at the old fair showed attendance figures skyrocketing, with attendance for the last week at both fairs being almost equal.

From Sunday, June 11, to Saturday, June 17, inclusive, 608,464 persons visited the Century of Progress exposition, while during the same period 732,149 persons visited the Columbian Exposition. But the old Fair, at that time, was in its second month.

Two Record Days.

Also that week in the old Fair included two of the largest days of the entire billing, German day, which brought 165,169 visitors, and Saturday, when conventions and special programs swelled the attendance to 148,994, beating last Saturday by almost forty thousand.

Several things combined to roll up yesterday's large attendance. The day was designated as Lutheran and Kiwanis day. Special church services, attended by thousands, were presented both in Soldiers' field and the Hall of Religion.

Through a special arrangement with railroad officials all special trains en route to the international Kiwanis convention in Los Angeles were stopped in Chicago to permit the 15,000 delegates to attend the exposition. Advance delegations visited the grounds yesterday but the majority will be in today.

All railroads yesterday reported unusually large trains arriving in Chicago. D. W. Bowman, passenger traffic manager of the New York Central, said: "This unprecedented travel to Chicago doubles the expectations we had made for June. Sunday was a record breaker for us." Four trains of the New York Central and Michigan Central railroads arrived in 15 sections, carrying 2,475 Pullman passengers and 500 day coach passengers.

The Rock Island railroad also ran special trains. Last night a Sokol delegation from Czechoslovakia arrived over the Pennsylvania railroad. The delegation of 25 will take part in the Czechoslovakian day ceremonies on June 25. A second delegation of 150 will arrive Wednesday.

Other Roads Busy.

The North Western and Milwaukee railroads and the North Shore lines report large reservations for this week when Medical week will be observed. Thousands of physicians who have been attending the convention in Milwaukee are coming to visit the Fair.

Swedish-American day will begin at 9 this morning with an assembly of national groups at the pavilion, followed by a mass march in the Avenue of Flags to the Hall of States, where ceremonies will take place. Tuesday is Norwegian day, Wednesday Denmark day, and Thursday Scandinavian day with Sweden, Denmark, Finland, and Norway participating.

TRAIN KILLS SHELTER INMATE.

Frank Bukant, 55 years old, inmate of a shelter for the idle at 459 East 31st street, was killed by a New York Central railroad train yesterday on the right of way near 31st and La Salle streets.

Fair Visitors Lose Clothes While Swimming in Lake

Frank Rupe, owner of a battery station in Newton, Kas., appeared with his wife in bathing suits yesterday at the Rogers Park police station to report that while they were swimming in the lake off Touhy avenue thieves broke into their automobile and stole their clothing, $20, and travelers' checks for $130. The Rupes came to Chicago to visit the World's Fair and had been staying with friends at 7375 North Damen avenue.

Son of Senator Caraway Arrives to Visit Fair

Cadet Robert Caraway of West Point, son of the only woman member of the United States senate, Senator Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas, arrived in Chicago yesterday to visit A Century of Progress. He was met at the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station by A. F. Lorenzen of the Congress hotel, whose guest he will be during his stay in Chicago.

FARMERS THRONG FAIR AS PRESS OF WORK EASES

Four Million Agricultural Folk Expected.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Now that corn planting is done, the first crop of hay is in stacks and the hired man can be left to do the chores and cultivating, rural America is packing up for a trip to the Fair in Chicago.

Unofficial estimates made by officers of farm organizations yesterday placed the probable attendance of "real farm people" at the Fair in excess of 4 millions during the course of the summer.

Last week several parties of county agents, school teachers, and others were brought to Chicago by various railroads to make preparations and to see the Fair firsthand before going back to their communities for the farm families they will escort.

Organizations Urge Attendance.

Such national organizations as the American Farm Bureau federation, National Grange, Farmers' union, national committee on boys' and girls' clubwork, farm papers, and local farm groups are conducting active campaigns to urge farmers to come to the Fair, and to see that they are properly provided for while in Chicago.

Farm bureau leaders and members have been registered at the bureau's Chicago office from Kansas, Illinois, Utah, Minnesota, Iowa, Ohio, and Indiana. Large delegations are coming from California, Texas, Minnesota, and New York in the next few weeks, while more than 500 communities have inquired of the Farm Bureau federation during the last week regarding means of handling delegations that are coming.

4-H Youngsters Attend.

Several delegations of 4-H club farm boys and girls already have visited the Fair, according to L. E. Troeger of the national 4-H club committee, whose headquarters are in the Auditorium hotel. A Fair touring bureau for these young people is being operated.

Several thousand dairy farmers are expected to take advantage of Dairy day, June 23, at the Exposition.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Count Folke Bernadotte, representing King Gustave V., of Sweden, yesterday made his first visit to the Fair, spending considerable time in the Swedish official building. Today he will convey the personal greeting of the royal family to the visitors at the Exposition when Swedish day is celebrated.

The 500,000th visitor to the General Motors building at A Century of Progress passed through the entrance to the exhibit yesterday, according to an announcement of James A. Grier, resident manager.

The University of Cincinnati Glee club yesterday entertained visitors with a varied program of songs.

Fourteen members of the Three Score and Ten club of Miami, Fla., who are in Chicago to visit the World' Fair, attended a luncheon yesterday in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel, held in compliment to the club's oldest member, Charles J. Coyle, who soon will be 100 years old. All members of the club are more than 70 years old.

The Fair exhibit of a large loop clothing store reports doing more business in men's clothing at the Fair than in its downtown stores. Particular demand is made for linen and seersucker suits, with the visitors leaving the old suits to be sent back home.

One of the college boys pulling the jinrickishas yesterday explained the American football game to a foreign visitor riding in his buggy and was rewarded with a $5 tuition fee.

A special 12 car train carrying officials of the International Business Machines corporation to the Fair will arrive in Chicago on Wednesday, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad announced yesterday. According to the railroad, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Gen. John J. Pershing, and E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley railroad, will be guests of the corporation on the train.

The fashion show and style review at the Fair will now be presented free of charge, Mrs. Ford Rodman Carter, official stylist for the Exposition, announced last night. An admission charge of 40 cents has been made for the show since opening. Shows are presented in the Blue Ribbon casino during the afternoon and evening. Thirty mannequins from New York and Chicago model the style creations.

A series of lectures designed to inform teachers as to Italian life in the modern era and to instruct them as to Italy's purpose will be inaugurated this week at the Italian pavilion. The first lecture will be held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, according to Com. Luigi Ranieri, general director of the pavilion. The first lecture will be by Nicola Parvia, Italian lecturer, who will discuss Liguria, birthplace of Christopher Columbus. Invitations were extended to teachers of the Chicago public schools and those now attending summer sessions in the universities.

The history of the American dollar and its ancestry, running back to before the year 1520, is on exhibition in the Czecho-Slovakian pavilion at the Fair. The original coin was minted in Joachimstal, in Bohemia, and was known as the Joachimstaler. By abbreviation the word became taler in Germany, talero in Italy, and eventually dollar in the United States. Two of the first coins struck more than 400 years ago are part of the Czech exhibit.

THE ILLUSTRIOUS OF SIX CENTURIES LIVE IN FAIR ART

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

The long galleries of the World Fair's picture exhibition at the Art institute glow with much besides color.

They glow with romance. They utter history. Often and often they cast bewitching side-lights on essential attributes of great men of letters. Sometimes they are dark with tragedy.

Always these nearly 800 paintings speak to you in a beautiful and universal language if you but pause to listen.

They make pages upon pages of the most exhilarating story book you ever opened.

'Tis like reading history by a mazda lamp instead of groping your way with a tallow dip.

You peer deeply into the hearts of illustrious men and women of six centuries—saints, statesmen, monarchs, soldiers, butterflies of fashion, tellers of immortal tales, builders of empires, and wrong headed kings who lost empires—and you read their minds with all deathless and vivid exegesis before your eyes.

The Four Queens.

One of the lesser sensations of this radiant section of the World's Fair is "Our Four Queens," as Chauncey McCormick calls them.

They whisper to you from the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries. Once they reigned in England and France, in Spain, and people fawned upon them and the husbands of some of them were like wax in their hands. They are not remembered any more by the generality of us save when we come upon their tombs in Windsor castle or in the Escorial and languidly turn to the Baedecker to learn their dates. But here on our lake front they live again for a summer's festival of the arts and sciences and we linger with them, not because they are they, but because they won immortality by sitting to four of the most illustrious court painters that ever lived. Hans Holbein the Younger, Francois Clouet, Velasquez, and Gainsborough, who was as great in landscape as he was in portraiture.

They Reign in a New Kingdom.

The ladies reign no more in the kingdoms of the world. They have become works of art, and their new dominion is mankind's joy in beauty.

They are:

Who Is That Talking?

If you will look intently at that last named picture you will hear a little, stout, good natured, wrong headed but by no means stupid man of four and forty years talking to the painter while he is limning the features of the gentle but exacting queen who lives for us in the almost incomparable diary of one of her maids of honor, Fanny Burney.

The talking man talks incessantly and rounds up every third phrase with a distracting "Hey!" What you hear him saying to the painter is not words which your imagination is putting into his mouth. They are recorded in authentic memoirs and thus they run on and on:

"Doubtless portraiture is a very tantalizing art—no pleasure in your sitters, hey! All wanting to be Venuses and Adonises, hey! Well, Mr. Gainsborough, since you have taken to portraiture, I suppose every one wants your landscapes, hey! Is it not so? Hey!"

"Yes, entirely so, your majesty," murmurs "Mr. Gainsborough," who, much to his intensely practical wife's irritation, was often o'er much the courtier.

The Wife Kept Her Reason.

George III. babbles on. The queen is a comely woman of 38 years who now—1782—has been married to this royal chatterbox for 21 years. You marvel as you hear the banalities and the "Heys!" that 'twas not she, but he, who finally went quite daft. She did not, but died sane at 74 in 1818, much distressed, however, by the debts and the amours of two of her dissolute sons who were to become kings of England. But there was hope. For this gentle soul was also the grandmother of sapient Victoria, whom old Englishmen to this day call "the good queen."

The Courtier's Touch.

Gainsborough, despite the distraction of the king, has, courtierlike, made the queen lovely. People of the period were wont to say, "Mr. Gainsborough has the knack of making even our old Queen Charlotte picturesque."

If you would keep compact your impression of Mr. McCormick's "our four queens," go now to gallery 27 and view Holbein's Queen Catherine Howard, fifth actress in that long and mostly tragic drama, the connubial failures of murderous Henry VIII.

See how she shimmers with gold. There is a reason for that. Holbein was goldsmith as well as painter and he loved to load his pictures with gold. And what beautiful condition the painting is in after the 393 years since the doomed woman gave the sittings!

Holbein's Rhythms.

"Mark," said Dr. Harshe, "the lovely rhythms of line in the thing—headdress, hair, necklace, white collar, brooch, the original of which Holbein designed, encircling gold work on the gown, embroidered cuffs, and the long fingers of the left hand—all, all sustain and complete an amazingly successful treatment of curves. It is masterly, so flowing and yet so firm."

The adultress seems placid. But behind her stalks the headsman with his ax. The sittings began in July, 1540, and ended in October, 1541. Four months later the queen is to die on Tower hill. Henry will make one more adventure in wedlock. It will be successful, at least for the wife, for Catherine Parr, last of the line of wives that began with saintly Catherine of Aragon 34 years before, will in more senses than one "keep her head." She will devotedly nurse Henry in his last sickness, and after the world is well rid of him she will make a marriage of choice and live happily.

Toledo's Gain Angers Parliament.

Both the Holbeins in the World's Fair show are "of"—I here quote Dr. Harshe, "the very first quality—well, I will modify that dual superlative a shade by saying that our second one on this same wall, the portrait [No. 20] of the magnificent young patrician of Cologne, Hermann Wedigh, is really finer than the Queen Catherine."

It made a row in parliament when the Libbeys of Toledo, O., bought the Queen Catherine in England.

Excited members rose in their seats and asked, "why should" such a treasure be permitted to leave the kingdom? Why does not the government act?"

The government did not act and the picture is now the bequest of the Libbeys to the Toledo Museum of Art, which generously loaned it to the World's Fair for the five months of our festival.

A Crazy King's Queen.

Turn now to another queen in this same gallery 27—Clouet's Elizabeth of Austria, who became consort of crazy Charles IX. of France.

Yesterday a foreign visitor who had been long and closely viewing Queen Elizabeth glided up to me as I was lingering before Queen Catherine Howard and said, "Pardonnez, moi—pardon me, sir, but may I look one instant into your catalog?" [Why did not he buy one?]

"Certainly, sir."

So he, searching for Francois Clouet's name, continued, "You see, I suspect this picture of Queen Elise to be a copy of the one in the Louvre. That one I with attention have studied."

And the Guard Grinned.

So monsieur went away satisfied, and the guard, who is by way of being a bit of a connoisseur, grinned complacently, saying, "I tried to tell the gentleman it wasn't a copy."

This Elizabeth of Austria married one of the unhappiest young men in history, a youth who by his feebleness probably created more misery than any other monarch of the 16th century. She could not manage him—and managing a husband for his own good is a wife's first business—but his mother, ruthless Catherine de Medici, did.

And Hell Broke Loose.

The result was that two years after his marriage gifted, fantastic, treacherous, morose and more than half cracked Charles let the Italian beldame release in France on St. Bartholomew's day, 1572, the hideous massacre that goes by the innocent saint's name. The slaughter spread swiftly from Paris to the provinces and in six weeks 50,000 were killed. Two years later Elizabeth was a widow. The king had died screaming. For nearly three centuries industrial France paid for the horror and its dreadful sequences, for they had either exterminated or driven from the kingdom thousands upon thousands of its worthiest artisans and artificers. Poor Elizabeth! Look on her picture with a pitying eye.

Henry of Navarre's Child.

You will take a long look at the portrait of the last of the royal dames [No. 183 in the resplendent Spanish gallery at the top and to the east of the grand staircase of the institute], because it is a Velasquez. You will take another long look when the fact comes back to you that this Isabella of Bourbon, dripping with pearls, was the daughter of Henry IV., "the plumed knight" and renegade who said he guessed Paris was well worth a mass. She became the first wife of Philip IV., solemn bungling ruler of a dying Spain. Isabella could not have had a very gay existence with him, for when he gave up the ghost after sixty inept years it was said of him that only three times in his life had he been seen to laugh. The best thing that can be recorded about him is that he was a discriminating patron of Velasquez.

The St. John Not So Hot.

The mater's portrait of Isabella which is the loan of Max Epstein, Chicago, to the Fair, is worthy of hanging, as it does, in the same gallery with Velasquez's smiling "Man with a Wine Glass," and a thousand times more interesting than Velasquez's wishy-washy "St. John in the Wilderness," which is on the north wall, a picture, however, that Dr. Harshe admires.

Everybody grants that, justly or not, the sensation picture and the big news of the Fair is the million dollar painting from the Louvre, Whistler's "Mother."

So, tomorrow, some alluring stories about it and about the serene lady in it, who was not always serene, and about an important thing on the opposite wall, John Sargent's portrait of Robert Louis Stevenson painted just when he was writing "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

SKY RIDE CARS STALL, GIVING EXTRA THRILL

Sixty passengers riding in two rocket cars on the Sky Ride concession at the World's Fair received unexpected thrills last evening when the cars became stalled high in air for fifteen minutes.

One of the cars was about 200 feet east of the west tower, and the other about an equal distance west of the east tower. There were thirty passengers in each car.

Electrical trouble caused the delay. The trouble was cleared when an iron worker crawled out on the cable right of way, 200 feet above ground, and carried a fuse to the car at the west end. According to R. M. Koch, concession manager, a fuse had blown out on that car. Thousands of Exposition visitors watched the iron worker in his rescue act.

FEDERAL BARGE NEARS PEORIA ON HISTORIC TRIP

Moves Upstream at Rate of 7 Miles an Hour.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Aboard the Towboat Tom Sawyer, Beardstown, Ill., June 18.—[Special.]—Plowing the placid waters of the Illinois river between banks of swamp and low lands, both heavily forested with virgin growths of sycamore, poplar, and elm, the federal barge lines flagship, Tom Sawyer, this afternoon is thrashing out her seven miles an hour upstream on the maiden cargo trip to Chicago up the gulf to lakes waterway from the southern seaports.

The boat is now 14 hours out of Peoria, Ill., which will be the first port of call since she left St. Louis yesterday afternoon. Already she has traversed the two chief navigational obstacles on the upper river route without the slightest difficulty.

Clear Chief Obstacles.

The first of these was the Chain of Rocks highway bridge five miles up the river from St. Louis. Swift water there and the presence in the river bed of the rock outcroppings which gave the bridge its name and in which its wide fluing supports are sunk, make the passage tricky but not at all dangerous.

The Tom Sawyer's skipper, Capt. William N. Clark, said that even when the water is swiftest and the lowest in the river the towboats make the passage without more difficulty than splitting their tow if they are more heavily ladened. The barges then are propelled under the bridge, the present channel is under the span nearest the Illinois bank, one or two at a time. Yesterday with only two barges ahead of the Tom Sawyer the passage was uneventful.

Sand Bar Bothers Engineer.

The second obstacle which bothers the government engineers more than it does the river men, according to Maj. Gen. Thomas Q. Ashburn, president of the Inland Waterways corporation, whose presence on the towboats makes it the flagship of his fleet, is the tendency of the Mississippi to shoal at Alton, Ill., where the Missouri pours in her yellow flood.

Two bridges, one a high trestle railroad bridge and the other a low combined rail and highway bridge with a draw span on the Illinois side, cross the Mississippi two miles above the junction. For more than a mile just above the bridges the Mississippi, partially dammed by the flow of the Missouri, has been depositing sand in a bar which runs diagonally toward the center of the river from the Missouri banks.

Channel Kept Clear.

To speed up the current here government engineers have constructed wing dams, short jetties which extend out almost to the main channel. These have the effect of pushing the water into the channel, of speeding up the current, and of keeping the channel scoured out.

There was a "good stand" of water in the river yesterday, according to Skipper Clark. The gauge on the Alton drawbridge showed 7 feet 10 inches. When there is 6 feet of water in the channel the gauge shows zero. Thus there was almost 14 feet left there when the craft passed just before dark last night.

Gen. Ashburn, whose efforts as head of the waterways corporation since its creation in 1924 make him the individual most responsible for the completion of the lakes to gulf route, said he is convinced that the new waterway is in perfect condition.

Ready for Maximum Traffic.

"There is the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad bridge at Joliet, which has such a narrow span between supports that our largest barges cannot get by, but this bridge is being removed," he said.

"There are some other bridges which are either low or narrow of span, but they still are possible to pass.

Soon after passing Alton, last evening Grafton came into view and Tom Sawyer left the Mississippi for the Illinois river.

At 3 o'clock this morning the first up stream lock at Kampville was passed here. Due to the high stage of the river there is a rise of only two feet. In low water there is a six foot rise. At 1 o'clock this morning the La Grange lock where at low water there is a rise of 4 feet was passed there was enough water in the river today, however, to pass over the dam and this was done with only a momentary slowing of the boat.

Fire Does Slight Damage to Madison Street Bridge

Fire supposedly caused by a cigaret or sparks from a passing tugboat yesterday damaged the under side of the west wing of the Madison street bridge. Operation was resumed after firemen extinguished the blaze. Bridgetender Patrick Culhane raised the west wing while firemen on the other poured water on the fire. The fireboat Joseph Medill was called, but the blaze was out when it reached the scene.

TWO WITNESSES VANISH; MURDER INQUIRY HELD UP

Women Disappear After Secret Testimony.

Grand jury action on the murder of Rocco Belcastro, minor west side hoodlum, is being held in abeyance because of the disappearance of two women witnesses. This was learned yesterday from the Chicago crime commission, whose president, Frank J. Loesch, was foreman of the coroner's jury which recommended that five men be held for the crime.

The case was before the grand jury several weeks ago, but Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Spiro caused a continuance to be taken when he discovered that the two women witnesses, who were in police custody shortly after the murder, had disappeared.

Testimony Taken Secretly.

Rose Mollane, who lived at 1104 Taylor street, and Anna Schulz, are the missing witnesses. Their testimony was taken secretly by the coroner's jury for fear that they would be threatened if it became public that they were witnesses.

According to the police, the women were in the Delmonti cafe at 458 North Halsted street when Belcastro was slain there on May 15. They did not see the actual killing, the police say, but heard the shots and named the men who were seated around a table with Belcastro just before he was killed.

These men are Charles Kunowski, Louis Jacobs, Joseph Stopek, Sam Laverde, and Dan Morvetti. They were ordered held pending grand jury action. Kunowski, Jacobs, and Stopek are in custody, but the others are fugitives.

Two Women Released.

At the time of the inquest it was planned to keep the women under police protection in a hotel pending the trial. However, neither the police nor state's attorney's office had funds to support the witnesses, they say, and the women were released.

"Both the state's attorney's office and the police department disclaim responsibility for the disappearance of these witnesses, who were at one time in custody," says a memorandum submitted to Mr. Loesch by Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the crime commission.

Although no action has been taken in the murder case, the defendants in that case have since been indicted in a robbery case, Prosecutor Spiro said.

Daughter of Mayor Cermak Denies Report of Wedding

Miami, Fla., June 18.—(AP)—William W. Wood, Miami salesman, and Mrs. Helena Cermak Kenlay, daughter of the late mayor of Chicago, tonight denied reports published here today that they had been married.

A local newspaper said today that Wood and Mrs. Kenlay appeared at a restaurant last night and that Wood introduced Mrs. Kenlay as his bride.

Both visited the office of the newspaper tonight, Wood denied he had introduced Mrs. Kenlay as his wife and she said she had not told persons who joined them at a table that they were married.

They declined to answer questions about whether they planned to be married later.

GREATEST U. S. SCIENCE PARLEY TO START TODAY

5,000 Savants from All Over World to Attend.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

With A Century of Progress as a magnet and visible expression of achievement of the past and intimations of the future, five thousand scientists, representing every branch of pure research, will gather in Chicago this week for the greatest scientific conclave ever held in the United States.

Fifteen sections of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, with 37 affiliated societies, will begin sessions here today, merging next week into meetings of engineering and applied science groups which will bring 8,000 more men and women here. Sessions will last until July 1.

Twenty-seven foreign scientists of international reputation, five of them Nobel prize winners, will take part in various sectional meetings, the first affair in their honor being held tonight in the Hall of Science, when the Exposition will give a reception in their honor at which Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago, Nobel prize winner in physics in 1927, will welcome the distinguished guests. Dr. John J. Abel of Johns Hopkins university will speak and Niels Bohr, great Danish physicist, will respond.

Sessions at Many Places.

The physicists, chemists, and metereologists will get into action this morning. The Stevens hotel will be headquarters for the associations. Other hotels, however, halls at Northwestern university and the University of Chicago, the Chicago Woman's club and the Hall of Science at the Exposition will be used for gatherings. Thousands of papers will be read, some of them so technical that the experts of one group can hardly understand the terminology of other groups.

An unusual effort has been made at this convention to bring before the public matters of general interest born out of scientific research. This takes the form of a series of symposia, at which the latest theories of those who search in the world invisible for an explanation of outward appearances, cause and effect, and natural laws, will be presented.

The first of these general meetings occurs tomorrow night at Thorne hall on McKinlock campus, when the medical science section has arranged a special program on the topic of "A Century of Progress in Medicine." Dr. Paul Dudley White of Harvard medical school will talk on the latest views of heart disease and Dr. Max Cutler of Michael Reese hospital will speak on "The Conquest of Cancer." Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, will talk on "Frontiers of Medicine." Prof. Anton Carlson of the University of Chicago will preside.

Millikan to Speak Wednesday.

On Wednesday evening the physics section will present a program at Thorne hall, at which three Nobel prize winners will take part. Prof. Bohr will preside, Dr. F. W. Aston of Cambridge, England, will speak on "The Story of Isotopes," and President R. A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology will speak on "New Light on Nuclear Physics."

Dr. J. J. Abel of Johns Hopkins, retiring president of the association, will preside at a dinner in honor of the foreign guests on Thursday evening in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Consuls representing various countries in Chicago, and prominent Chicagoans from their national groups in the city will be seated with the visitors from abroad.

There will be sectional meetings devoted to special fields of science throughout most of the period of the conclave and, in addition, many specialized societies such as the American Physical society and the American Astronomical society will hold sessions.

Psychologists Speak Tomorrow.

Prof. Charles E. Spearman of London will speak before the psychology section on the subject of intelligence at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning in Lincoln hall, McKinlock campus. Prof. Wolfgang Koehler, psychologist of Berlin, will speak in the same hall at 2 o'clock tomorrow. Another event of tomorrow afternoon will be an address of Prof. Jakob Bjerknes of Bergen, an authority on meteorology, in the south hall of the Hall of Science.

Dr. Philip Fox, director of the planetarium, is chairman of the local committee on arrangements for the entire association.

Many of the visiting American scientists are members of the national advisory council, which drew plans for the scientific exhibits at the exposition. It is here that the visitors will have an opportunity to study progress in related branches of science. The purpose of the exposition, as worked out by Dr. Henry Crew of Northwestern university, chief of the division of basic sciences, was to demonstrate the theorem that industry, manufacture, and commerce depend almost immediately upon the pure sciences. Having presented this unification, the scientists were then invited to come and see it as a whole. And that is why they are here today.

TELLS HIS PART IN KIDNAPING MISSOURI GIRL

Youth Seized in Virginia Ready to Return.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Roanoke, Va., June 18.—[Special.]—George McGee, 21, in custody here, today told police of his participation in the recent kidnaping of Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of the city manager of Kansas City. He said he willingly would return to Missouri to face trial. McGee was arrested yesterday on a charge of drunkenness and carrying a concealed weapon.

At Lynchburg police were holding Howard E. Wilson, 22, Meridian, Kas., for questioning in the same case. Wilson, officers said, had two sub-machine guns, five pistols and two bullet proof vests in his possession.

McGee had some currency and a check will be made to determine whether it is part of the $30,000 ransom paid for Miss McElroy.

McGee Tells His Story.

While he waited arrival of Kansas City police McGee related to police a story of the kidnaping.

McGee said that since June 5 he had been in and near Lynchburg and was accompanied by a young man he said he "picked up" in Leavenworth, Kas. He refused to say if the latter were Wilson.

Police and newspaper reporters heard McGee tell his story. "You look like reporters," he told the newspaper men, "and if they [other members of the gang] hadn't squealed, you wouldn't be getting this story from me."

Boastfully McGee described his part in the kidnaping. He said he did not know how many were in the gang, nor how many were to have been "cut in" on the $30,000 ransom.

Summoned from Farm.

McGee said he had been on a Kansas farm and one of his pals sent word to come to Kansas City.

"I thought it was a bank job," he said, "until Tuesday before the girl was kidnaped on Saturday morning. Then they told me what the plans were."

McGee said two of his companions went to the McElroy home and forced Miss Smith McElroy to accompany them. The kidnapers drove to a home that they had rented for the purpose, McGee said, about three miles from Rosedale, Mo. There, he said, it fell to his lot to stand guard over the young woman.

"I sat up and talked with her in the basement until about 3 o'clock in the morning," McGee said. "She told me she had studied law and I told her that I might need her to defend me some time."

When the payoff was arranged Sunday afternoon, he continued, he and two of his companions drove to meet McElroy and his son.

Trains Gun On McElroy.

"And boy, did plenty of cars pass along the road while we were getting the money," he commented. McGee said he occupied the rear seat and had a machine gun levelled out of the windows at the McElroys while his companions also carried machine guns. All three wore bullet proof vests, he added.

"It's no trouble to get them," McGee said. "We get them out of Chicago, the guns for $125 and the vests for 'six bits' [75 cents]."

After the payoff the trio drove away, took Miss McElroy from the house and left her on a road near the country club. He said he was not in the car when the young woman was released.

The money was split up in Kansas City a few hours after Miss McElroy's release and the gang scattered, McGee said.

Two Shot in Lafayette Battle with Gunmen Die

Lafayette, Ind., June 18.—[Special.]—Two of the five persons shot in Friday afternoon's gun battle between local police and desperadoes trying to avoid arrest are dead and two others are in a critical condition. J. Wesley Wilson, 42, policeman who was shot three times in the abdomen, died today at a hospital. James Richardson, 33, one of the bandits, died in jail last night. Paul Klinker, policeman, is still near death, and Frank Byrd, the other bandit, has a bullet in the lung and may die.

PUBLIC OPINION TO BE TOPIC AT U. C. INSTITUTE

Fifty political scientists, newspapermen, and press agents will participate in the tenth institute of the Norman Waite Harris foundation, which opens today for twelve days of sessions at the University of Chicago. The subject for discussion this year is "The Formation of Public Opinion in World Politics."

The daily public lectures of the institute will deal with the practical and historical aspects of public opinion and propaganda in world politics. The speakers will be Edgar Stern-Rubarth, former assistant manager of the Wolff Telegraph bureau, German news agency; Jules Auguste Sauerwein, former director of foreign service for Le Matin, Paris newspaper; John W. Dafoe, managing editor of the Winnipeg Free Press; Ralph H. Lutz, professor of history at Leland Stanford university; and Harold D. Lasswell, associate professor of history at the University of Chicago.

Among those who will take part in round table discussions are three well known press agents, Ivy Lee and Edward L. Bernays of New York and Thomas R. Shipp of Washington; and Harrison Brown, foreign correspondent of the London Observer; James H. Furay, vice president of the United Press association; C. H. Rowell of the San Francisco Chronicle; Emelyn Williams, American correspondent in Berlin; Frank E. Mason, vice president of the National Broadcasting company, and Frederic W. Wile of the Columbia Broadcasting system.

SHOUTS 'FIRE' IN THEATER; 6 HURT IN RUSH TO EXIT

New York, June 18.—(AP)—Six children were trampled upon and slightly injured today in a frantic attempt by nearly 1,000 persons to leave a Brooklyn motion picture theater after someone cried "fire."

The rush for the exits followed upon the blowing out of a fuse, with a puff of smoke. Attendants and police assured the audience there was no fire, but the jam at the doors could not be broken.

AUSTRIA SILENT ON PROPOSAL TO RESTORE EMPIRE

VIENNA, June 18.—(AP)—The reported proposal by Foreign Minister Edouard Benes of Czechoslovakia to restore the Autro-Hungarian empire in an economic sense brought no comment today in newspapers here and the foreign office also was silent.

Circles close to Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss were skeptical. It was recalled that Benes in 1915 wrote a booklet entitled "Destroy Hungary" and worked hard to convince allied statesmen that the Austro-Hungarian empire not only must be defeated but must be dismembered.

A Prague, Czechoslovakia, newspaper printed an interview Saturday in which Foreign Minister Benes, who is in London, was quoted as advocating a restoration of the Austro-Hungarian empire in an economic sense as "Austria's best way out of her present difficulties."

MATTERN SEARCH HELD UP BY FOG; NAVY GIVES AID

Admiral Moffett's Son Is One of Scouting Pilots.

NOME, Alaska, June 18.—(AP)—Bad weather prevented two navy flyers stationed in the Pribilof islands, one of them Ensign William A. Moffett Jr., son of the late Rear Admiral Moffett, from taking off today to search for Jimmie Mattern, missing round-the-world flyer.

A message from Capt. Harry Dact, in command of the old troop ship Argonne, on which Moffett and his flying partner, Lieut. John Vest, are stationed, said:

"On account of fog and low clouds, planes unable to conduct search westward today."

The orders last night from Washington, sent all naval vessels and airplanes in Alaskan waters on the search for the Texan, now unreported for four days. The tender Patoka was due to start back south on the 24th from Unalaska, but its departure was immediately ordered delayed.

Search Aleutian Chain.

On the belief that Mattern might be down on some one of the islands of the Aleutian Chain, which stretch half way across the North Pacific, both the Argonne and Patoka were being prepared, reports received here said, to steam westward if needed. Six other vessels are available for the search.

Meanwhile, Pilot Art Woodley, noted Alaskan flyer, returned to Seward today after having made a long scouting trip over western Alaska, hunting the missing airman. After reporting that he had sighted nothing, he repeated his previous belief that Mattern turned toward Asia and was down somewhere along the Asiatic coast.

Pilots See Nothing.

Meanwhile, pilots of eight to ten planes on regular flying schedules over interior and southern Alaska and private flyers have kept a sharp lookout for Mattern, and will continue to do so over western and southern Alaska. Harry Blunt flew to Bethel from Anchorage, passing over the mouth of the Kuskokwin and Illamna bay, and Al Monson arrived at Anchorage from Iditarod, both without sighting anything like a plane down in the wilderness below them.

Yesterday and today springlike weather was general throughout southern and central Alaska, with the snow gone and the rivers and lakes all open. The belief was expressed here that similar weather should be found in the same latitudes in Siberia, had Mattern turned that way on his long flight.

May Be on Remote Island.

MOSCOW, June 18.—(AP)—The belief increased today that Jimmie Mattern may have been forced down in the Okhotsk or Bering seas or some isolated island near Kamchatka when he started four days ago on a flight from Khabarovsk, Siberia, to Nome, Alaska.

This view of the outcome of his venture became more generally accepted after urgent inquiries to main points along the course of his journey brought no replies.

It was conjectured that the American, attempting the first solo flight around the world, may have been borne down by ice accumulations on the wings of his plane.

William's Crime Career Ends Before It Begins

The criminal career of William Jenson, 48 years old, 2000 Indiana avenue, ended before it began yesterday, when he shot and practically captured himself at State street and Roosevelt road, a half block from the police building. Despondent over failure to find work Jensen left his home with a revolver to embark on a career of crime. As he was looking for a victim he shifted his revolver to a more accessible position. It was discharged, the bullet passing through his right leg. He sat on a curb and awaited police, who were called by a passerby. Jensen told his story in the Bridewell hospital.

HUGE COOLING SYSTEM PUT IN BOULDER DAM

As fast as concrete is poured, two inch iron pipe is installed, through which cold water is circulated constantly. When completed there will be 150 miles of this pipe.

Concrete rises about 40 degrees in temperature after setting and the interior department says it would "require centuries to get rid of the excess heat without artificial aid and the process would result in dangerous open joints or cracks."

So the piping is going in, at 10 foot intervals vertically and 11½ feet apart horizontally. A similar system was tried out on a smaller scale in the Ogyhee dam in Oregon. By pumping 64 degree water through the pipe system the temperature was reduced from 118 degrees to 84 degrees in two weeks.

A change in climate is beneficial— A change in drinking water is harmful.

COUNCIL GROUP BATTLES TODAY OVER CAB RATE

Agreement Near on Most Features of Ordinance.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], leader of the counil group favoring a reduction in taxicab rates, said yesterday that the joint council committees on transportation and traffic will probably reach an agreement today on the important features of the proposed ordinance governing the control of cabs. The committee's report is expected to be ready for action at a council meeting Wednesday.

The main questions to be decided, Ald. Rowan said, are the following:

1. Whether the rate is to be left as it is, 20 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each additional half mile, or be cut to 15 cents for the first third mile and 5 cents for each additional third mile.

2. Whether the taxicab companies are to be given a five year franchise under what some aldermen call a contract ordinance and others call a perpetual franchise, or whether the present system of year to year licenses shall prevail.

3. Whether more than the present limited number of cabs, 4,663, shall be permitted to operate so as to permit competition with the Yellow and Checker Cab companies.

The aldermen are in accord, Rowan said, on the matter of requiring the cab companies to make adequate provisions for payment of accident claims. The aldermen are also said to be anxious to do something to insure the cab drivers a living wage, but they have no legal power to determine what shall be paid the drivers. The main battle in the council committee is expected to be on the rate of fare.

Draft Forbids Rate Cut.

In a draft of the ordinance now under consideration there is a provision that no cab driver may charge more or less than the rate to be decided upon by the council. This would prevent the Public Taxi service from charging less than the Yellow and Checker companies, as they do now. Ald. Rowan pointed out. It would also prevent the operation of other cut rate cabs, for which applications for several hundred licenses are on file.

Ald. Rowan said that if the committee decides on the "20 and 10" rate he will prepare a minority report and he will bring up on the floor of the council the matter of establishing a downtown zone in which there would be a flat charge of 25 cents for a cab ride. Several of the independent companies have expressed a willingness to accept the zone rate, but so far it has been given little consideration by the aldermanic taxicab committee.

AUTO FATALITY ENDS EVANSTON 219 DAY RECORD

Five Deaths Increase Toll in County to 441.

A fatal automobile accident yesterday in Evanston broke the suburb's record of having had no automobile fatalities for 219 days. Edward J. Kunze, 3702 North Irving avenue, a salesman who was driving one of the automobiles involved, was booked on charges of manslaughter, reckless driving, and passing a stop light.

The victim of the accident was Donato Quarte, 21 years old, 2416 West Jackson boulevard, a Filipino. He was thrown from the car in which he was riding and pinned between the wrecked car and a lamp post. The left knee of Francis Carpus, 30 years old, 1132 Argyle street, driver of that car, was broken. The collision occurred at Oakton street and Asbury avenue, Evanston.

Motor Toll Rises to 441.

This accident and four other fatalities yesterday raised the Cook county motor death toll for 1933 to 441. The other victims:

Harry Williams, 45 years old, 4352 South Dearborn street. Killed when struck by hit and run motorist at 49th and State streets. The police started a search for the car, which, they said, bore the license number 847811.

Lester Tennant, 23 years old, 7148 South Aberdeen street. Fatally injured when he lost control of an automobile and it struck a light pole and rolled into a ditch at 79th and Rockwell streets. John Benkema, 7250 South Aberdeen street, a passenger, broke both his legs, and five young women who were riding with Tennant sustained minor injuries.

Two Others Die of Injuries.

Margaret Kennedy, 7 years old, 5301 South Union avenue. Died last evening in German Deaconess hospital if injuries suffered on Saturday when she was struck by a truck near her home. The accident occurred when she ran into the street after a ball. The truck driver was James O'Leary, 29 years old, 418 North Ada street.

Charles Young, 71 years old, 15908 South Paulina street, Harvey. Died last night in Ingalis Memorial hospital, Harvey, of injuries incurred June 15 when he was struck by an automobile driven by Howard Carlson, 1316 Campbell avenue, Chicago Heights. Carlson, who was charged with reckless driving and is at liberty on bond, has promised to appear at the inquest today.

Deputy Coroner John Domvile, 5211 South Lincoln street, was slightly injured and his chauffeur, George Tolacek, 4923 South Damen avenue, was severely hurt in a collision last night. The crash occurred at 45th street and California avenue. Michael Sawl, 2942 Lyman street, driver of the other car, was not injured.

New Trustees Uncover 18 Years of Overspending.

loan. Mr. McCahey and other board members have contended that this is the only chance of keeping the schools open during the remainder of this year.

Overspending Begun in 1916.

The habit of overspending the taxpayers' money began with school boards back in 1916, the survey by the new trustees disclosed. This practice grew like the proverbial "acorn into a mighty oak."

Year.	Cash deficit.
1917	658,000
1918	3,090,000
1919	7,008,000
1920	10,000,000
1921	15,000,000
1922	10,000,000
1923	13,000,000
1924	15,000,000
1925	21,000,000
1926	22,432,000
1927	27,000,000
1928	35,511,000
1929	84,446,000
1930	106,298,000
1931	117,142,000
1932	129,012,000

"The year after the legislature raised the tax rate from $1.20 to $1.02 on each $100 of assessed valuation.

During the war and immediately afterward, "fads and frills" which have been criticized as of doubtful educational character, began to creep into the school system. Although these courses, such as tap dancing, teaching golf to music, and beauty culture, were costly, efforts to erase them from the curriculum have been successfully opposed so far by educators and special teachers.

High Priced Schools Built.

At the same time the junior high school, a new and high priced branch of public schooling, has put in its appearance. Aside from the increased cost of instruction, money was spent for new schools in staggering amounts. It was a school board appointed by a former Republican administration that introduced the "clubhouse" style of junior and senior high schools containing many special rooms for the teaching of "fads and frills."

In 1922 the grand jury stepped in and investigated the board of education and school officials. Fred Lundin, political boss; Edwin S. Davis, president of the school board; Albert H. Severinghaus, vice president, and thirteen others were indicted on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the handling of school funds.

Charges flew back and forth during the trial which followed. One of the accusations was that, through the defendants' scheming, nearly a quarter of a million dollars was misappropriated in the purchase of 44 boilers at $9,500 each, when the same boilers could have been bought from the United States Shipping board at $2,500 apiece.

Defendants Found Not Guilty.

The defendants were found not guilty on July 13, 1923. The exposure of how school affairs were conducted, however, was no deterrent to future spending by school trustees. The amount expended on new school buildings and additions during the years 1925 to 1931 was $87,672,252, or equal to approximately 37 per cent of the $238,000,000 paid to teachers during the period.

The new Lane Technical High school, still uncompleted because the funds are not available, will cost $5,800,000 with an additional $900,000 to equip it. The seating capacity will be 6,200, which represents a cost of $1,100 per seat aside from the cost of the land. Costs of school seats in other cities range from $250 to $400 each.

The citizens' committee on public expenditures, of which Fred Sargent is chairman, in a survey made several months ago found that there were 829 vacant rooms in the elementary schools of the city.

The first big step toward economy on the part of a school board was made last summer when Trustee Orville J. Taylor led the fight that culminated in a $15,000,000 reduction in the 1932 school budget. But the cut was apparently not sufficient to make school warrants marketable, for now the school board is depending on a bond issue.

"That bond issue will be fine," said one woman teacher, hanging on the fringe of the crowd at the last board meeting, "if they pay us up for this year. But what about our salaries for next year?"

No one has ventured an opinion as to where money for the operation of schools will come from in 1934.

Mussolini Plans to Destroy Last Vestige of People's Rule

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, June 18.—The chamber of deputies, the last vestige of parliamentarism and a popularly elected assembly, is destined to disappear from the political structure of Fascist Italy within the next nine or ten months, according to leading political observers.

The chamber no longer is able to exercise the usual functions of a parliamentary body. As a result a movement is now under way here to either abolish it altogether or fuse it with the national council of corporations.

Mandate Expires in March.

It was elected by a curious kind of popular plebiscite in 1929. Its mandate will expire next March, so that new elections must be called next spring if the chamber is to continue, and elections are frowned on in countries under a dictator. The chamber is the only remaining institution in Italy where even a semblance of popular choice is permitted.

The movement to abolish the chamber entirely has strong partisans. These persons say that the chamber is an institution of parliamentary democracy, which Fascism long ago rooted out of Italy. Therefore, they add, the chamber is no longer necessary and responds to nothing in the life of new Italy.

Other more moderate leaders, among them Silvio Longhi, attorney general of the court of cassation and one of Fascism's most distinguished jurists, believe that the chamber should be kept in somewhat its present form, but that it should be united with the national council of corporations. This central control body, headed by Premier Mussolini, directs and regulates the corporative or guild system of the country.

Takes Over Functions.

As a matter of fact, it is pointed out, the national council has already taken over many functions of parliament and constitutes a "second chamber" in the economic field. Those who support a fusion believe the council could easily assume the other functions of parliament in political, educational, and other noneconomic fields.

The national council of coporations as a sort of parallel body to the chamber now consists of about 150 members. It includes members of the cabinet, representatives of the Fascist party, of the workers' and employers' associations, and experts in various lines of production. It is organized into sections corresponding to the various branches of production, such as agriculture, industry, commerce, and banking. Its administrative organ is a central coporative committee. Mussolini is president and dictator of the body.

Hands Down Decisions.

The council hands down decisions and makes rules and regulations on social and economic life. Its decrees have the same effect as an act of parliament, so that it already has quasi-legislative powers.

The chamber, on the other hand, has devolved practically into a forum to make speeches and praise the government. Its activities, in other words, are so reduced that its existence is no longer justified.

It is recalled that the present chamber was hand picked by Mussolini and his advisers. All 400 deputies who compose it were represented to the electors to vote yes or no, accepting the chamber in its entirety or rejecting it. It was frequently referred to as a "yes man" chamber.

Bandits Steal Fur Coats Worth $7,000 in Holdup

Two bandits took fifteen fur coats valued at $7,000 yesterday in a holdup of A. H. Biember & Co. store at 840 West Roosevelt road. After locking David Bieber, a brother of the owner, in the basement of the store and tieing the manager, Perry Rose, to a coat rack, the robbers made a careful selection of the best coats in stock and carried them away.

were perpared to bring in more than a dozen witnesses, who also had been at the bridge party, to prove that we had not had a drink. The chief paid no attention. He believed the policemen, who said our exertions had made us sober."

Tuerk and Lowrie were booked on charges of disorderly conduct and resisting an officer. A charge of reckless driving also was placed against Lowrie. The two men and the two women were released on bond at noon, eight hours after they were halted. The bond was posted by Tuerk's father, who was reached by the motor club.

From the police station the party was taken by motor club representatives to Dr. E. D. Huntington at 1357 West 103d street, who dressed the bruises of Tuerk, his wife and Lowrie. The physician was asked to examine the party for evidences of drinking. He reported after tests that there was not the slightest indication that any of the four had had a drink.

Attorney Braun took statements from the party. They will appear with him today at the state's attorney's office to join in the demand for an investigation.

Deny Using Blackjacks.

Policemen Roache and Drabandt denied the use of blackjacks. They said Tuerk was struck when he reached for Roache's gun and Lowrie was hit when he assaulted Drabandt. The two policemen said both men were accorded every courtesy and still refused to show papers of indentification.

"We had the lights out on our car because we saw the other car zigzagging on the road," Roache said. "Lowrie should have been charged with driving while intoxicated, but by the time we captured him after his attempted escape, he had sobered up. I and Drabandt were bruised in the scuffle. I guess Mrs. Tuerk was pushed down as we rolled about. Neither of us hit her."

Trial Set for June 26.

The trial of Tuerk and Lowrie was set for June 26 before Justice of the Peace Frank J. O'Brien in Oak Lawn.

On Wednesday Justice O'Brien will hear a speed trap case transferred to him from Justice Park. James Cropp, 50 years old, 4536 South Turner avenue, and his son, Stanley, 24 years old, are to be tried on charges of speeding and resisting arrest.

On June 11 the Cropps were held for 12 hours in the stifling single cell jail of Justice Park until the older man collapsed. An investigation by State's Attorney Courtney resulted in the resignation of Justice of the Peace Si Lindeman, Constable Albert Webster, and John C. Richards, Lindeman's clerk.

Evergreen Park, which is thick with roadhouses, has long been known to the Chicago police as a gangster hangout. Joe Saltis, former south side beer gangster, once operated a road house known as "The Nineteenth Hole" in the village. Walter O'Donnell, one of the notorious O'Donnell brothers, was slain in an Evergreen Park roadhouse in 1925.

Among arrests made by Chicago police in raids on the suburb were those of William [Three Fingered Jack] White, Tommy Shupe, who is now in Joliet prison for his part in an $80,000 robbery, and Danny McGeoghegan, successor to Saltis, who is awaiting trial in Indiana for bank robbery.

A million to lend to 4,000 or more

If 4,000 Chicago families stepped into this bank today or tomorrow, or any time this month, they would find that we have a million dollars of surplus funds which we will be very glad to lend them.

And how!

The amount may be $50 to $5,000, if you please; the note for one year — or less, as you prefer — with the moderate charge for the loan added to the note. You will get the exact amount you want — you will know exactly how much you have to pay back. (There is no accruing interest or extra charge whatsoever during the term of the loan) . . . If you have bankable collateral use that for security; if not, we will lend on the reputation of yourself and two of your friends — the best and most bankable "collateral" on earth with us . . . Time passes very quickly when you owe money — but before you know it you have accumulated the full amount of your loan by the time your note falls due.

Let this be 4,000 invitations all in one, when we say to you and to 3,999 other fine people — "Come in."

Ford Motor Company Plant
12600 TORRENCE AVENUE
JUNE 19th TO 23rd INCLUSIVE
1 P. M. TO 5 P. M. AND 6 P. M. TO 10 P. M. DAILY

The people of Chicago and visitors to the Century of Progress are cordially invited to visit our Chicago plant during Open House Week.

HERE is an opportunity to see how the New Ford V-8 cars are assembled. Here is the continuous conveyor system that revolutionized the automobile industry. You can watch the Ford built up from the first minor assembly to the completed car that is driven away under its own power. You can see how the bodies are enameled and painted and how carefully the interior trim materials are tailored and applied.

Guides will be on hand to conduct you through the plant, to explain processes and answer your questions.

You are also invited to visit the special Ford display in the Congress Hotel, Michigan Boulevard and Congress Street. Busses will operate daily from this point to and from the assembly plant, providing free transportation for all who desire to visit the plant.

SUMMER RUSH BEGINS IN FAIR TOURIST CAMPS

Cabin Villages Attract the Hardy Visitor.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

All highways lead to Chicago this summer, and tourist camps which are springing up in the city environs are doing a rushing business, it appeared from visits to two camps south of Chicago.

Whether the adventurers from south, west and east who have great zeal and little extra cash with which to "do" the World's Fair save any money by driving over sunbaked prairies and staying in a tourists' camp while they commute to and from the Fair daily is uncertain in view of low rates offered by railways and hotels.

Many of the tourist campers, it was found, do it because they like it. One woman explained that she would rather have a few good clean nuts around than ride in an elevator to a hotel room. Another explained that she came with a group of 200 on a special railway tour from Minnesota, and that it was "such fun to be with the girls" that she declined a spare bedroom offered by Chicago relatives.

Some Pros and Cons.

A night spent in a tourist cabin revealed the following advantages: The sound of rain on the roof, providing it rains; the scent of clover on waking in the morning; a glimpse of sky through a window; a chance to see how the girl in a cabin across the way puts on her makeup.

Some of the disadvantages experienced were: Toilet facilities a half block away in one camp; sunlight streaming in without mercy shortly after dawn; lack of privacy.

An atmosphere resembling that attributed to Florida boom days was abroad in the two camps visited, particularly at "A Village of Progress," on 211th street, otherwise known as the Lincoln highway, one-half block east of the Illinois Central station and across from the Olympia Fields Country club. In advertising folders there is an impressive map supposedly showing the layout of the camp, with avenues, trees and numerous cabins.

Many States Represented.

Actually there are 20 cabins now completed, in addition to a new hotel building. While construction of showers and toilets is being completed, cabin residents must walk to the hotel half a block distant or use such facilities as are surpassed in the most rural areas back home. License plates from Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, Ohio, Missouri, and Canada were seen before the cabins.

The cabins are new, clean, and airy, however. The mattresses are comfortable, and the breakfast served for 35 cents in the hotel is good.

A cabin for two for one night is $2. A cabin and maid service, three meals a day, parking for automobile, and round trip transportation daily to A Century of Progress over the Illinois Central is $22.50 each per week if two persons occupy the cabin. For three, the rate is $20.35 a week, and for four, $19.25 each.

90 Cabins at "Beacon City."

At "Beacon City," situated in a grove of trees adjacent to the Indian Wood Country club, south of the Sauk trail, a man at an information stand said that the 90 cabins now ready for use were all taken. Possibly he could manage to spare a cabin in four days, but there were so many reservations by groups that he could not promise, he said.

Toilet and shower facilities at this camp were found to be adequate and interviews with the few inhabitants who were not attending the Fair revealed no complaints.

The "Beacon City plan," advertised through Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. institutions and schools, officials said, provides for cabin and meals, daily admission to the Fair, transportation by bus and Illinois Central railway, and guide service through the Fair. For the period from a Sunday afternoon to the following Saturday morning the charge is $34.95. A three day period, beginning on Sundays and Wednesdays, costs $19.95.

Woman Tells Her Experience.

A woman camper at "Beacon City" who explained she was a trained nurse on vacation described her experiences of the last week.

"I've been around a lot, and I think this is a good way to see the Fair," she said. "I took a week, and I stayed at the Fair all day until late at night, and I did the whole Fair. I didn't miss a thing, from beginning to end.

"I think the whole Fair's wonderful, and if you wear low heeled shoes you can do it in a week, and hold out. I'm going home and tell people you can spend just as little as you like here."

SLAIN IN STREET

FRANK JIRIK.

Police were seeking a motive yesterday for the fatal shooting of Frank Jirik, 32 years old, 1921 Blue Island avenue, which took place late Saturday at Polk street and Blue Island avenue. They are holding John Kurchina, 5116 South Tozart street, a fellow employé of Jirik at a loop store, who admitted that he, Jirik and five other men had been on a drinking party earlier in the evening. Kurchina insisted he knows nothing of the shooting.

WILL REVISION URGED TO MEET NEW CONDITIONS

Probate Clerk Warns of Changed Values.

Clerk Mitchell C. Robin of the Probate court yesterday pointed out the importance of individuals revising their wills to conform to changing economic conditions. Wills executed before the depression have disappointed the beneficiaries in many instances when they could not receive their expected inheritances because of the shrinkage of the estates.

"It is particularly important that people who made their wills in the boom times and disposed of estates largely consisting of stocks realize that their bequests cannot be carried out in many cases," Mr. Robin said.

Securities Decline in Value.

"Stocks and bonds have declined in value," he stated, "and the new standards of value coming into existence are reflected in the possessions and estates of our people. Inventories of estates have shown large decreases.

"For this reason, wills that are filed today, which were executed a number of years ago, are meaningless instruments because of the economic fluctuation in the value of the property bequeathed. This condition causes great difficulty and ultimately extended litigation and legal expense."

Avoid Worry for Heirs.

In only a few instances in the Probate court in the last year have wills been changed to dispose properly of an estate at its present value, Mr. Robin said. He said that it was not the function of the Probate court to inform people how to revise their wills, but he urged persons who executed their wills before 1929 to reexamine them and consult attorneys on the method of making the wills reflect the current economic situation.

"This is the only way to avoid worry and distraction for the heirs," he said.

OMAHA AIRPLANE RACES THRILLING; CHICAGO IS NEXT

Stunters, Speed Kings Coming Here.

Omaha, Neb., June 18.—[Special.]—A preview of the thrilling aerial acrobatics and spectacular high speed racing that will be seen in Chicago in two weeks at the American Air races, the aviation classic of the year, was seen here today by 20,000 persons in the closing performance of the third annual Omaha air races. The same group of famous pilots who flew here today will provide part of the elaborate program being drafted for the Chicago races.

Johnny Livingston of Aurora, Ill., who has won more air races than any other pilot in the United States, stole the show when he flew his new Cessna racing plane [Warner motor] around a twenty-five mile closed course at an average speed of more than 250 miles an hour. He won the event after outdistancing Harold Neumann of Moline, Ill., early in the race. Neumann flew Ben O. Howard's racer, which is powered by a Menasco inline motor.

Both in Chicago Races.

Both Livingston and Neumann are entered in the Chicago races. Neumann plans to attempt to streamline the Howard racer more fully in order to reduce Livingston's speed advantage before the races for the large purses at Chicago. They ran away from the other entrants in today's race, but are anticipating stiffer competition in the big races to come.

Bennett Griffin, partner of Jimmy Mattern on an attempted around the world flight last year, opened the show with a roaring power dive from 5,000 feet. Art Davis of East Lansing, Mich., veteran racing pilot and stunt flyer, climbed his taper wing Waco biplane [Wright motor] to 5,000 feet to dive upon a number of small balloons, bursting them with his propellor blade. Then he dropped a roll of paper and dived along its length vertically.

Roy Hunt, of Norman, Okla., winner of the Cord cup race last year, killed the Cirrus motor of his Great Lakes plane at 5,000 feet and stunted the powerless plane as it floated down to a landing. George T. Burrell Jr., of Chicago emulated the stunt flying of the other pilots in a large Ford tri-motor transport plane. Bettie Lund, the country's foremost woman stunt flyer, did a series of slow rolls and snap rolls at a low altitude and flew inverted across the airport.

Frank Faulkner, flying a Pitcairn autogiro [Wright motor] did a series of stunts with the windmill plane that have not been equalled by other giro pilots.

Livingston ended the show with an exhibition of 300 miles an hour speed in his new racer. Diving from an altitude of 4,000 feet with the motor of his plane at full throttle, he roared across the airport at a height of fifty feet, his plane flying on its side. Livingston is bringing his entire show into Chicago in two weeks.

GEN. BALBO AND 4 AIDS UNHURT AS PLANE FALLS

ORBETELLO, Italy, June 18.—Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian air minister and leader of the forthcoming mass flight to Chicago, and four of his staff escaped with their lives last night when a tri-motored seaplane which Gen. Balbo was piloting crashed into the sea at Punta d'Alla, smashing one float. The seaplane was not one of the 24 designed for the trans-Atlantic trip but a heavier type which Gen. Balbo has been using for travel between Orbetello and Ostia, Rome's hydroplane port.

With Gen Aldo Pellegrini, Col. Longo, Col. Stenfano Cagna, and Capt. Baldini aboard, Gen. Balbo took off from Orbetello to go to Punt d'Alla, where his wife and children are staying. Just before reaching his destination one motor failed, the plane tilted heavily to one side, and then dropped into the sea. All five men easily extricated themselves.

Gen. Balbo and the officers later returned to Orbetello acting as if nothing had happened. Consequently all news of the accident will probably be officially denied. Ice conditions along the Labrador coast will delay the start of the Chicago flight until the middle of the week.

Joe Marzullo, Known as Pickpocket, Dies of Wound

Joe Marzullo, 35 years old, 2800 Wentworth avenue, who, with a companion, was shot Thursday evening by two men as he was standing at 47th street and Drexel boulevard, died of his wounds yesterday in the Chicago hospital. Marzullo, who had a record of arrests as a pickpocket, declared that he did not know who had shot him.

Coming to Chicago to See if Plane Victim Is Husband

Mrs. Eugene Gollup of New York departed for Chicago yesterday to determine whether the ninth and last unidentified victim of last Sunday's airplane crash at Glenview was her husband. A description of the victim fits Gollup, according to friends. Gollup, an office manager, left for Chicago ten days ago to visit the World's Fair and has not been heard from since. He is the father of three sons and a daughter. One of the sons, Joseph, is accompanying Mrs. Gollup.

PROVIDE FASTER FLYING SERVICE TO LOS ANGELES

Faster flying service between Chicago and Los Angeles was announced yesterday as the result of better connections at Salt Lake City between the planes of United Air Lines and Western Air Express. The west bound plane leaving Chicago at 6:45 a. m. [standard time] arrives in Los Angeles at 11:15 p. m. [Pacific standard time] and the other west bound plane departing here at 9:30 p. m. arrives in Los Angeles at 12:30 p. m. through the new connections.

Planes eastbound from Los Angeles depart at 7 a. m. and 5:45 p. m. [Pacific standard time] and arrive here at 1 a. m. and 11:35 a. m. [standard time]. An extra plane has been scheduled between Chicago and Omaha in each direction daily by United Air Lines. The west bound plane departs at 6:30 p. m. and arrives in Omaha at 11 p. m., while the east bound plane leaves Omaha at 4 p. m. and arrives here at 8:10 p. m. [standard time].

Other altered schedules announced by air lines yesterday included a reduction of ninety minutes in the coast to coast air mail schedules on Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, reducing the elapsed time on the route to 22 hours eastbound.

80 Routed by Flames in Negro Flat Buildings

Some 80 Negroes were driven to the street yesterday when fire attacked three buildings at 4630 to 4634 Prairie avenue. A 2-11 alarm brought extra apparatus to the blaze, which was started, firemen were told, by a drunken Negro who attempted to light a cigaret with a paper torch.

KILLED IN CRASH AS HE BATTLES WITH A BANDIT

Lafayette, Ind., June 18.—[Special.]—George O. Hughes, 45, a baker, was killed early today in an automobile crash while a hitch hiker was trying to rob his wife and sister-in-law who were in the car with him. Hughes and the women were returning from Indianapolis when the hitch hiker suddenly produced a revolver and demanded that the women turn over their purses to him. Hughes, who was driving, grappled with the man and lost control of the car, which went down a bank and crashed into a pole. Hughes' chest was crushed and he died a short time later. His wife was injured.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE PRESIDENT'S APPEAL.

With the legislative stage of his program of reconstruction victoriously ended, the President manifested again his extraordinary gift of public leadership in an appeal for public coöperation which touched the essence of the problem now before the nation. If the spirit of that appeal inspires the men upon whom the heavy responsibility for effectuating the purposes of the new legislation fall and the public upon whose cooperation its success finally depends, we may rationally hope that the nation will presently emerge from its major difficulties and reënter the path of prosperity and progress.

That the administration's program is susceptible of grave abuse no one who knows our political and economic conditions can doubt. The proof of the pudding is in the eating of it. Legislation has granted new and extensive powers to administration. The real test will come with their application. Human greed and self-interest will enter new fields of exploitation, and benefits to the general weal hoped for will be largely reduced and defeated unless there is an unusual exercise of resistance and disinterestedness not only in public authority but in the private coöperation which is essential to a comprehensive success.

It is reassuring that the President has shown his understanding of this and that he has struck home to the heart of the situation, which is the conscience, the intelligent will of the people. It is upon this he must rely for the defense of his program from perversion and defeat, and every loyal American, whatever his doubts may be as to the wisdom of this expedient or that of which the program is made up, will hope and pray that his confidence will be justified. After all, the greatness of a nation lies in its spirit, and in embarking upon the experiment launched by the President the American people meet a challenge to their public spirit, their capacity for self-restraint, their devotion to the common weal, as momentous as any in the history of the republic.

SEQUITUR.

The argument ran about as follows, directed to the American government: You have lent money to every country in every quarter of the globe. You have given it to save the Belgians, the Germans and the Russians from starvation. You have sent it into China to relieve the Chinese. You have gone everywhere as an almoner, from the Baltic states to the Mediterranean, from the Atlantic across Europe to the far east. Wherever there has been a cry of distress the American dollar has flown. Now your own people are suffering and the charity which went overseas to fill the flour bin, reroof houses, repave streets, clothe the naked and save the children is cold and unheeding when the distress is in this country.

It was an unanswerable argument and the answer can be read in the appropriations and the new national debt. The items are such as the home loan, $2,000,000,000; public works, etc., $3,300,000,000; farm loan, farm subsidy, Muscle Shoals, bank loans, crop loans, relief gifts, etc.

The argument will be: You have forgiven your foreign debtors. The alien peoples who contracted to pay you $22,000,000,000 have repudiated and defaulted. You have consented to this. You have wiped the debts off your books. You have forgiven these peoples all they owed. Your money has gone abroad and there it remains. You cannot have the stolid nerve to look your own people in the face and say that the charity which applies abroad is not extended to your own voters.

The answer need not be given.

HOW THE CONTROL BILL WAS PUT OVER.

It is perhaps worth while to state once more, for the record, how the industry control bill was put over.

The proposal to make the government the dictator over every business enterprise of any consequence was incorporated in a bill to appropriate $3,300 million dollars for public works. There was no more sense in uniting these two measures than there would be in inserting a picture of a steam locomotive in a work on the life and teachings of Mohammed. The two measures were united because the professoriat suspected—and rightly—that it couldn't get congress to stomach the industrial control provisions if served straight. Congress is generally inefficient, frequently stupid and sometimes venal, but with all its faults it seldom is nutty unless there's something in it. The professoriat therefore tied up the industry control measure to the public works appropriations. There are 435 members of the house and 96 senators, a total of 531. The familiar processes of long division [3,300 million dollars divided among 531 members] yield a quotient of something more than six million dollars of public works per member. This is, of course, the average. Some will get more and some less, but mighty few will get nothing.

The professoriat favored the industry control bill because without it the professors couldn't get all the power they wanted to carry out their venture in what is called national planning. They found powerful allies in two minority groups, the one fairly numerous, the other well organized for political action. The numerous group was that of the trade unions, whose leaders grasped an opportunity to regain the losses in membership and prestige suffered in the coal mining and building construction industries and to advance into the newer industries, like automobile and radio fabrication, where hitherto they had made no progress at all. The other interested group included a considerable number of industrial leaders, organized in associations, whose fighting spirit had been exhausted by the depression and who, with the experience of the tariff behind them, knew that in the long run they could handle the government to their own advantage. To make the dose as palatable as possible, men of distinction in industry were mentioned as the nominees of the administration for the positions of control. The Swopes, Sloans, Teagles, or Hurleys, like Mr. Legge in the farm board, will be the first to hold office. They will have successors of a different caliber, as any one familiar with politics must know.

In short, the bill was put over by the bribery of congressmen with public works, by appealing to the cupidity of powerful minority groups which knew exactly what they wanted, and by adroit window-dressing.

A CASE OF PLANNED ECONOMY.

Editor Mathews of the wideawake Arizona Daily Star remarks that if the canal project to tap the Colorado river above Yuma and carry water directly to the Imperial valley is carried "it will be notice that national planning will be, to a great extent, a new form of national plundering."

Midwesterners have not paid much attention to this project, although it has been authorized by congress, the first appropriation made, and, Editor Mathews says, its validity passed upon by the Supreme court. Yet the agricultural midwest has a substantial interest in the matter. It is going to be taxed to add 2,000,000 acres, now desert land, to the agricultural production of the country. Thus, as Editor Mathews points out, the program of government planning proposes the reduction of acreage under the farm relief measure while increasing acreage in the Imperial valley by a canal which it is estimated will cost thirty-eight million dollars. The project purports to be self-liquidating. Editor Mathews says:

"The addition of this new vast acreage comes at a particularly inopportune time. The farmers within the existing Imperial valley irrigation project and within the various irrigation projects in Arizona have come more and more to depend on intensive cultivation of winter vegetables. Already there is a surplus of these specialized crops. While much cotton is grown, the amount of the cotton surplus is generally known. Now it is proposed to bring in additional land to produce more cotton and more winter vegetables. Thus existing lands now in production in California, Arizona, and the south will be penalized."

Who will benefit by this project? Apparently not the present raisers of cotton and specialized crops in the southwest and south. Hardly the people of the midwest. But Editor Mathews says it will be a great boon to Los Angeles real estate speculators who own most of the acres of arid lands to which the canal will bring water. These expect, he suggests, to unload their holdings on "eastern suckers."

This project is eloquent of the potentialities of the planned economy which the statesmanship of the new deal is substituting for the waste and error of the old order.

MASSACHUSETTS BAY IN A RACING SHELL.

Harvard led Yale across the finish line again on the Thames at New Haven, winning by a length and a half in the last half mile. That made an otherwise unsuccessful season a successful one for the winning crew. For several years the Harvard crew has been a four mile crew. The other races, preceding the race on the Thames with Yale, are for shorter distances. Harvard has trailed sprinting crews in these races and might have trailed some of them in the four mile distance, but that was not to be proved.

Yale had what the eastern experts called the fastest sprint crew in the east. The Harvard shell was full of heavy, powerful men and the four mile stretch was their distance, as they have proved for three years against Yale. Five of the men have rowed all three races. There is a marginal interest which is not of sports but of genealogy. Jerry Cassedy, the stroke, may represent something within the last hundred and fifty, but three hundred years of New England were in the other seats. Massachusetts Bay colony and Plymouth furnished Saltonstall, Bacon, Bancroft, Holcombe, Yeomans, Hallowell, and Bradford Simmons. It would be as useless to expect this crew to sprint as to require Father Time to shave off his whiskers and step out with the young folk. It was three hundred years in getting on the water and is not to be hustled. Endurance is its metier and the next three hundred years is the proximate future.

Editorial of the Day

THEY CAME FROM NEW YORK.

[Detroit Free-Press.]

One hundred years ago Samuel Dexter, a man of some substance who had served in the New York state assembly, gave up his home on the Herkimer Flats and with six other families adventured into Michigan, settling finally near an Indian village on the Grand river presided over by an Ottawa chieftain known as Cobmoosa. The town Dexter founded grew into the present city of Ionia, which this week celebrates its centennial anniversary.

This story of the origin of Ionia is not an exceptional one. It was duplicated in many places in the southern part of the peninsula. Michigan was settled chiefly by New Yorkers. Massachusetts and Virginia both claimed the territory during colonial days, but after they deeded their rights to the federal government the New Yorkers took possession. In Hillsdale county, for instance, the biographies of its leading citizens in 1879 showed that out of 292 families, 221 had come from the Empire state.

Some of these New Yorkers were descendants of the Dutch and English settlers. Others were themselves children and grandchildren of New Englanders who had moved from Massachusetts and Connecticut into the Mohawk and Genesee valleys just after the turn of the nineteenth century.

Stray survivals of this migration from New York can be found in a dozen curious aspects of Michigan life, if one will look. The influence of New York training explains Michigan's orchard crops to some extent; it explains the lack of early "blue stocking laws"; it explains the form of township government that has survived to be a nuisance, and it explains why Michigan has the large Dutch colony that centers around Holland.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"OUR BACKS Are Against the Wall," exclaim the drys out in Iowa, Connecticut, and New Hampshire as a battle cry for victory tomorrow. But they shouted the same thing in Illinois, in Indiana, in Massachusetts, and every other state where the repeal of the sacred 18th has been voted on. And, oh, did they get dirt in their hair! But a lot more states have to vote and if the drys keep on ramming their backs against the wall they're going to have mighty sore backs. They ought to get that wall padded.

IN THE MARKET PLACE.

Nosegays! Nosegays! Who'll buy my posies
Fresh from the gardens of fantasy?
Fragile forget-me-nots, passionate roses,
Ferns in their patterns of filigree.

Come, buy my posies, don't be refusing
Love in the making and singing as well;
Flowers or fantasies, all of a choosing,
But who'll be the chooser you never can tell.

Rounded to symmetry, rowed in precision,
Great-grandmother shaped them in much the same way,
Gathering the loveliest bits of her garden
For a young minister's altar bouquet.

Nosegays! Nosegays! Please buy my posies,
Canny conservative editors dear!
Another rejection slip, briefly austere.

"THE CHARM of the girl," says a Paris dispatch, "who is the daughter of a wealthy Cuban merchant, is said to be melting Alfonso's heart and he may attend his son's wedding." And the more pesos the girl's papa has the faster Alfonso's heart is going to melt. Charm is all very well, but to a royal family out of a job pesos are going to count a lot more.

OH, SEE the thousands of dolphins swimming around Franklin Delano's schooner as it plows its way under full sail in the great ocean. Don't be silly! Those are hungry Democrats who are certain now that congress has passed all the bills and gone home that there'll be something done about handing out government jobs. Oh, see them all diving! Somebody on the schooner threw an empty tin can overboard and all the swimmers thought it was a first class postmaster job and went right after it.

DOC. FANNY BUTCHER last Saturday told us of three new books that would be fine reading for the week-end. Ah, Fanny, the only week-end reading we have time to do is to read our personal property tax schedule, the income tax schedule, and the new tax schedules, state, county, and city. They are not interesting reading and they all have an unhappy ending. We haven't finished them all, but don't you tell us how they come out. Gosh! We know! R. H. L.

HOT WEATHER HAZARDS.

THE onset of hot weather draws our attention to some of the obstacles to health peculiar to hot weather, most of which can be avoided without much effort. As a rule, it is easier to go around them than it is to hurdle them, and much easier than growing new skin on barked shins.

One of these is typhoid fever. While there is some typhoid fever at other seasons, the disease is at its worst late in the summer. If it appears worse in the September and October vital statistics, we recall that when death occurs it follows six or eight weeks after the responsible exposure.

Typhoid fever is becoming rare. The annual report of the Evanston health department did not mention it. Nevertheless, it is still a summer hazard. To go around this hazard avoid water the purity of which is not assured. Avoid raw milk unless you know it to be right. Avoid cases of the disease, and, above all, carriers of it. Remember that flies are apt to be typhoid carriers. The fly nuisance should be worse this summer than it was, say, five or ten years ago. The horse is having another day in court, and in the cities the alleys are dirtier, the garbage cans are overflowing, and Pettenkofer principles of hygiene are somewhat in eclipse.

At a recent medical society meeting an old doctor was reminiscing about the good old cholera infantum days. Babies are not wholly freed from the dangers of summer diarrheas. The best way to avoid that hurdle is to see to it that the baby gets nothing but clean, fresh, pasteurized milk. Some babies can get certified milk instead. Keeping the baby cool almost takes rank with keeping the milk cold as a precaution against cholera infantum.

Nor are adults wholly free from danger of abdominal disorders when the weather is hot. Those who are indifferent will pay the penalty for eating slightly spoiled food at least once a season. The danger of a fatal outcome is unimportant, but the disease and discomfort will not be inconsequential. The use of insect and worm sprays on vegetables and fruits has become necessary if fruit and truck raising is to be made reasonably secure. Unless the cook is scrupulously careful some of this spray material will find its way to the dining table. The chemicals used are no safer for human beings than they are for potato bugs.

Sunstroke summers come at about ten year intervals. We have not had one for several years. Another is about due.

BEATING CIGARETS.

F. N. writes: The writer smoked cigarets for over thirty years and his tongue became sore. Gentian root and several other tobacco cures were of no avail. In desperation he abstained from beef, milk, cheese, and fried foods and the craving disappeared like magic three years ago and never returned.

NUMBNESS.

Dr. W. N. M. writes: You often answer letters in which correspondents describe acroparasthesia. This condition was first described in Braithwaite's "Retrospect," over ninety years ago, ample time for all and sundry, including editors of health columns, to hear about it.

It is also known as waking numbness. It occurs at night and wears off in the early morning after exercise. The symptoms are numb tickling, prickling sensations of the hands and arms, usually on both sides, relieved by rubbing "to restore the circulation," as the sufferers say.

As a rule it is not serious and forebodes nothing serious, although it may be advisable to rule out pernicious anemia, disease of the cord, and some of the other serious conditions. I have never seen it caused by syphilis. As a rule the people who have it are healthy and in good flesh. It has seemed to me to be more prevalent in the goiter belt.

REPLY.

Thanks. Possibly some of those who complain of these symptoms should have metabolism tests or should have their physicians give them small doses of thyroid preparation or of iodine. Or maybe they should eat more sea food.

IT'S A LONG ONE.

B. S. writes: Will you please repeat the name of the drug used for relieving trifacial neuralgia, in which twenty drops were to be put on cotton and inhaled?

REPLY.

Trichlorethylene. It is put up, under various trade names, by three or four and perhaps more manufacturers. Your druggist should have no difficulty in getting it for you.

PEACE DISTURBERS.

Chicago, June 15.—[Friend of the People.]—Several doors from my home on Belden avenue there are five dogs which bark and howl all day long. It has become such a nuisance that I called the police, who advised me they could no nothing about it until I had sworn out a warrant. I would like to know if there is not some other way a person can eliminate a general nuisance of this kind without going through all that red tape?

P. J. P.

Officers investigating this complaint report that the owner of the dogs had failed to purchase licenses. Summons was issued for the owner's appearance in court.

PROBATING ESTATE.

Chicago, June 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My father died a few weeks ago leaving real estate valued at about $9,000. The property is in his name, my mother having died two years ago. Five children, all of age, survive. Father left no will. Will it be necessary for a settlement to be made in Probate court? 2. The children are divided in opinion on this, and, as I desire that it go through court, what steps should I take? 3. In the event a piece of property is thus handled, by what means are the creditors notified, so that they may file their claims? I understand creditors are given one year in which to file their claims. 4. Is this time counted from the date of death or from the time the Probate court handled the case? 5. Must the estate be filed in court immediately after death? 6. I am holding a promissory note for $2,000 which my father promised to pay by May 4, 1937. How should I handle this so that I will be sure of receiving it from the estate? G. E.

1. The presence or absence of a will has nothing to do with necessity for a probate. Ordinarily, probate can be dispensed with in either case where all parties, including possible future purchasers of real estate, are satisfied.
2. If you desire court proceedings you should employ an attorney.
3. Notice is published.
4. The latter.
5. As previously stated, probate can be entirely dispensed with in some cases.
6. You should file a claim in the probate proceedings.

JUNE 19, 1917.

LONDON.—The Daily Telegraph's Rome correspondent telegraphed under date of June 18: "The Vatican has received very grave news from Spain. The country is greatly agitated over disturbances among the militia and there are symptoms of anarchy. The new ministry is shaken and lacks authority, whilst there are rumors of a fresh crisis in conflicts between the Germanophiles and the interventionists. To complicate the situation a new general strike is considered to be imminent."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Widespread attempts on the part of munition makers to evade the payment of profits taxes imposed by congress last September have been reported by internal revenue agents, who have been working for the last two months checking up the manufacturers' returns.

WAR SUMMARY. — War department officials admit plans to hurry American army into trenches are "up in the air," and that constant changes in the plans are found necessary. Bitter opposition in both houses of congress may defeat the food bill or force radical changes in President Wilson's program for control. London admits the British were forced to give up first line position at Telegraph hill, but says the main line is firm. The allied forces in Macedonia retired to the south bank of the Struma river, troops of the central powers occupying many towns and villages. A British steamship carrying "small number of troops" was sunk by a submarine.

CHICAGO. — Guglielmo Marconi, Italian senator and inventor of wireless telegraphy, was the chief speaker at a dinner given last night at the Blackstone in honor of the royal Italian mission. Medill McCormick, representative at large from Illinois, was another speaker.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—How many tickets for the Fair can you get for five dollars?

ANSWER—Ticket prices for the Fair are as follows: Adults, 50 cents; children between 3 and 12 years of age, 25 cents, and children under 3 years of age, no admission charge. There is no reduction in small lots.

QUESTION—What are the names of some prominent hotels adjacent to the Fair grounds, preferably on Michigan avenue?

ANSWER—Among the hotels close to the Fair and situated on Michigan avenue are the Stevens, Blackstone, Congress, and Auditorium.

QUESTION—Is the Fair in full operation at the present time or will it be better later?

ANSWER—With the exception of a few private concessions the Fair is now in full operation. Every week distinctive programs are offered, and so, not knowing your tastes, it is impossible to say when would be the best time for you to attend the Exposition.

THE BOARD OF TAX APPEALS AT WORK.

Berwyn, Ill., June 15.—It is the privilege of the property owner to file a complaint if he thinks that his taxes are too high. Last spring thousands sought to do this. Aged men and women stood in the county building for hours, fairly reeling in their tracks before they could reach a clerk who would give them a slip which entitled them to a hearing before the board of review—at some future date.

And what a swell break you get from this august body when the day arrives for the supposed hearing! Let me relate the writer's experience. Having been given a number, I sat around for something less than an hour before being called. When called I approached two gentlemen, one of whom asked me what kind of heat there was in the house and how old the building was. They already had this information or could have obtained it from the complaint which had been filed. The fact that I had no heat [the furnace having been torn down] did not interest them.

If you think you will be permitted to state your case in detail you are entitled to another guess. The fact that your property may have cost thousands of dollars less than the valuation does not interest them nor does the fact concern them that your neighbor's property cost over twice as much and yet is taxed more than a third less.

Finally I reached a desk which was carded as that of George F. Nixon. "You are the kind of a guy that ought to be handled by Jacobs" was his only utterance. Just what bearing this crack may have had on my tax complaint I do not know. He seemed to think that because you asked for more than 15 per cent reduction on an old building you ought to be shot at sunrise.

A man at his side said that my property had appreciated in value. As a matter of fact, it has depreciated, as every one but the assessors know. No other questions; nor were you permitted to state your case. As their decision had already been rendered any one would be foolish to spend more than 30 seconds before this alleged board of review—unless he has a drag.

FIRE INSURANCE FEES.

Chicago, Ill., June 12.—Is it a racket, this business of fire insurance companies charging one dollar extra for the writing of policies where the premium is less than fifteen dollars, or is it discrimination against the little fellow? Whatever it is, it's a rotten business. Having at one time been employed in an insurance office, I can offer the information that it requires five minutes or less to write and record a policy. I may be wrong, but I was under the impression that under their charter they were to collect the premium on the amount insured and no more. V. JENNER.

A PROTEST FROM JUSTICE.

Justice, Ill., June 15.—As an official and trustee of the village of Justice, Ill., I vehemently protest against the unfair and black hearted news items you have printed about the notorious speed trap in Justice Park and the vile and cruel constable that arrested Stanley and James Cropp. On the Saturday night that the arrest was made I personally was present in the village hall when the prisoners were brought in. The officer patiently attempted for about 20 minutes to get their names and addresses, but instead he received most insulting abuse. And to cap the situation they proceeded to assault the policeman before he ever had any intention of locking them up. On the way to the calaboose the attack was renewed.

Our officer risks his life in enforcing the village laws and pulling down city speeders who think the hick town's laws are made for big city people to violate. The rule of the board allows motorists forty-five miles per hour—the same as the state statute. To say the least, we believe that's fair.

As a law abiding citizen, I am of the opinion that you should more thoroughly investigate matters before writing them up; investigate the jail, investigate the water facilities therein, and the ventilation, and then do justice to the policeman whose life is every day jeopardized to protect the lives and property of the people within his jurisdiction.

Village Trustee.

GOLF IN THE PARK.

Chicago, June 12.—Yesterday I played golf at the north Lincoln park golf course and want to comment on the lack of etiquette shown by the starter of the afternoon shift.

When a foursome was on the tee and getting ready to drive these are some of the remarks he made: "Hey, Buddy, shoot"; "You, in the blue shirt, on the tee"; "O. K., Buddy"; "Youse are up on the tee now!"

Last year there was an air of dignity which gave the place an atmosphere of a private club, and these ignorant, uncouth starters are going to keep the regular people from playing. The afternoon woman attendant was talking politics with a buddy, which is not ethical in a place of that kind. A GOLFER.

THE NAME OF A BUILDING.

Chicago, June 15.—The New York Life building has recently been listed among those buildings that were thrown into the hands of receivers on account of nonpayment of taxes. This building is not owned by the New York Life Insurance company and never has been. The New York Life did loan the money to construct the building and the building was given its name on that account. The New York Life has no financial interest whatever in this building.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The Chicago theater's offering you quite a bit for your money this week. On the stage is a condensed presentation of Podrecca's fascinating and famous marionette show, "Piccoli." This feature will delight children and is a good buy for anybody who missed the piece when it played recently at the Erlanger. ALSO—Josef Cherniavsky and his orchestra are there—and I assure you colloquially that you ain't heard nothing yet till you've listened to this band play—and sing—"Night and Day" under the direction of their great leader. This treat alone is worth the price of admission.

Theodore Dreiser threw a fit over the screen version of his novel "An American Tragedy," but they do say he's purring cosily re "Jennie Gerhardt" as pictured by Paramount.

Well, I should think he'd be satisfied. The film stresses the highlight of his book [as I remember it], the while steering clear of the author's conscientious and, some think, tiresome delvings. There are times when the picture drags, but, on the whole it is an interesting movie.

Jennie is a gentle maiden of the lower classes who is wistfully appreciative of any kindness. Her pathetic, constitutional gratitude is responsible for her first so-called "downfall."

Her life is unconventional. Spurned by her father, when he finds that she is to have a child by the middle aged senator who has befriended her and her family and died while on his way home from Washington to marry her, she takes refuge with a relative in another city. Here her child is born. To support herself and her little one she becomes personal maid to one Louise Kane.

Louise has a brother, Lester . . . And now the film takes on and retains a "Back Street" aspect, though it is in no way as great or moving a production as the latter photoplay.

Little Sylvia Sidney is effective as Jennie. No two ways about it—she can act. I like Donald Cook as Lester and felt my heart go out to Edward Arnold as the senator. Mary Astor as the "other woman" who eventually becomes Lester's wife is charming to behold. Greta Meyer gives a sincere and forthright portrayal of Ada, the woman to whom Jennie goes in her distress. Other playing, so-so.

The story starts at the time when Theodore Roosevelt ran for the presidency and has been brought up to the present day. Costumes and sets are interesting, direction was intelligent, and most of the dialogue has an honest twang.

Lowell Urges Harvard Class to Keep Calm

Cambridge, Mass., June 18.—(AP)—President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university today delivered his last baccalaureate sermon to a Harvard graduating class. He retires at the end of the present college year.

The retiring president urges his hearers to conduct themselves calmly in times of public distress, "to strive to see things in their true proportions, undistorted by prepossessions, and on the other hand by fear, by hallucination of the outcries of an impulsive multitude."

"We are told," he said, "that the conditions of the world have suddenly changed; and that the control of man over the forces of nature, and his consequent progress in labor saving inventions have made him so much more productive as to raise a doubt whether he can provide his wants. Do we not forget that it is these things that, by reducing the need of human muscular strength, have made possible a large output without the slavery deemed necessary for the industry of the ancient world? Do we not forget that the state of inventions is not very different from what it was four years ago when we were told that it had brought our country to an economic plane so high and so solid that grave industrial depressions would not occur again? . . .

"History is the narration of a series of changes, often for the better, but not always so; and sometimes what appeared at the time grievous has proved in the end a step in the march of progress, sometimes not. . . .

"When the things about us are shaken, when the familiar landmarks are displaced, and the supports we have leaned upon are no longer solid, one must hold on to oneself. Too often it is the first thing with which a man loses touch. Too often he lets go of himself to follow the swaying of the rest, and, when he should be a steadying influence, helps to rock the boat. Too often we cast our responsibility upon others, and think if we move with the crowd we cannot be blamed, for the fault is theirs and not ours; and who is the crowd but ourselves and other timid folk of the same unstable caliber?"

Mrs. Roosevelt Sees N. Y. State Camp for Unemployed Women

Bear Mountain, N. Y., June 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt took luncheon with 30 unemployed girls at the state relief camp on Lake Tiorati today, and spent about four hours inspecting the place.

Expressing disappointment at finding only 30 girls at the camp, which has accommodations for 200, Mrs. Roosevelt remarked:

"I like this place very much, but I think the requirements are too strict."

She did not elaborate, but authorities have said they planned to recruit girls for the camp in small groups.

The luncheon, served in the main dining pavilion, consisted of roast lamb, beets, peas, potatoes, strawberry cake, tea and coffee.

Mrs. Roosevelt drove to the camp from her home at Hyde Park with a friend, Miss Nancy Cook. She was shown about the place by Maj. William A. Welch, chief engineer and general manager of the Palisades interstate park system.

Later she returned to Hyde Park.

Society Plans Many Parties to See American Air Races

Long List of Boxes Reserved for Gay Groups Intent on Enjoying Great Spectacle.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE is one excellent reason, society is agreed, for remaining in Chicago this forthcoming Independence day week-end. It is the great and thrilling four day air spectacle, the American Air Races, to be staged July 1, 2, 3, and 4, at the Chicago airport under the sponsorship of THE TRIBUNE.

As world flyers are winging their way to Chicago from the four corners of the earth for the event or making plans to do so, scores of parties are being arranged to see their spectacular acrobatic stunts and daring attempts at new world speed records. Never before will there have been such a meeting of famous pilots in the United States, it is reported by those who know.

Though one delay after another has postponed Gen. Italo Balbo's arrival here, he has cabled that he surely will be on hand with his flying Armada of twenty-four Savoia Marchetti seaplanes at the time of the races. Tonight at 8:45 o'clock the Italian Consul General Giuseppe Castruccio, who was twice decorated by the king of Italy for his daring and bravery in the air during the world war, is to describe this sensational flight over station W-G-N and at the same time speak of the air races.

Another reason for excitement over the event as well as a signal for brilliant entertaining is the word that Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, the intrepid Spanish army flyers who went nonstop from Seville to Camaguey City, Cuba, have the permission of their Minister of War Azana to participate in the races. This week they will terminate their official flight to Mexico City and then turn their plane, Cuatro Vientos, to Chicago.

Society to See Noted Capt. Bremer.

Then, too, Capt. Valter Bremer, the Finnish long distance flyer who is now in San Francisco on a solo flight around the globe and has letters in his pocket from the president of Finland to President Roosevelt, is coming July 1. And certainly many will want to hear the thrilling stories of "Lon" [Lewis A.] Yancey, who flew from New York to Rome in 1929 with Roger Q. Williams and later on a trip to Cuba and Yucatan landed near the Mayan ruins [in Yucatan] which had never before been seen by any civilized person. Now Mr. Yancey has an autogyro altitude record of 21,500 feet, but the word is that he is out to better this one of the first four days of July.

The list of boxholders for the races is already long and impressive, and more requests for these special places are being received daily. Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening, president of the Air Race corporation, explained yesterday.

Mrs. J. Ogden Armour will have a party at the airport at least two of the four days, and so will Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mitchell. The James Simpsons have a box for all four days which they intend to occupy themselves most of the time with parties of their friends. The Swift family has two boxes right in the center of

Well Behaved Hair Necessary to Pulchritude

You Can't Look Pretty with Raggedy Locks.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"So Well Behaved!"

You'd expect on seeing that caption that there'd follow a sermon on manners. Not so, however! Either hair is breaking into the etiquette column, or the etiquette column is breaking into beauty problems, for it is of hair that behavior is expected now.

If it isn't well behaved, then it shouldn't be taken out in smart beauty circles.

Now, what would you call well-behaved hair? Smooth, I'd say—and controlled; groomed to the last inch!

I like that expression as it may be applied to things of beauty. It fits so many niches in a smart beauty program. Well behaved hands. Well-behaved silhouettes would imply a smartly trained posture. Well-behaved feet would imply correct forward pointing of toes and nice, graceful foot position in sitting.

Well-behaved faces suggest poise of expressioin which, in turn, would mean the correction of distorting facial habits. But let's get back to hair!

Some day when you're out in a crowd you might just apply the "behavior" test to heads seen. The girl with hair sprawling sloppily over dress or coat collar wouldn't qualify as an up-to-date hair behaviorist. Nor would the girl whose hair is on the ragged edge, in need of cut and wave. Nor the one whose several hair shades plainly advertise an amateur tinting job.

The really well behaved hair has a certain look of sleekness to the hair itself. The outline of the head is held to regardless of how the ends are waved and turned up. The color is even. The hair is dressed to accent every good face and neck feature. The whole coiffure and head carriage is that of a woman who knows her lines and sees that the best of them are brought out.

Combine Black with White in New Kid Gloves

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Especially exciting are some new dress parade gloves in black and white kid . . . swanky gauntlet cuffed affairs made of contrasting colored braid, inky black braid on the white, and chalk white on the black. They are stunning and can be used for the newest black satin costumes for either street, afternoon, or evening.

Then for the bride, some smooth ivory gloves made with lace insets to match the lace in the bridal cap . . . lovely things, almost too good to believe, they are long and crush grandly around the arm well above the elbow with the cobwebby lace insets at the outside seam.

If you want something different, ask to see the new pale pink organdy gloves made with deep cavalier cuffs of two bias cut layers . . . or the satin gloves in white and colors . . . or the new tricky things made of taffeta, cuffed with lace frills or organdy . . . or the white and colored linen gloves that are worn loosely but smartly with all street and cotton clothes. These linen gloves come in a dead white, cinnamon brown, black and a soft shade of yellow beige. They are cut on the bias, which makes them most unusual.

Other pairs of white slip-ons that fit like nobody's business are made of waffle cotton with flared tailored cuffs . . . besides their flair for superfitting, they are frightfully smart with coarsely woven cottons and spectator sports outfits made of rough weaves.

You can still have a fling at matched organdy hat, gloves, and scarf . . . there are lots of clever trios still available, and they certainly do grand things as cooling, crisp, smart accents for the new brown, navy, and currant red sheer suits and frocks.

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"Swell" Garrick, the world's perfect tailor dummy, is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training rather than tailoring skill. When his friend, young Alistair, a subaltern in the Guards, is taken over by card sharpers and gives a check he can't meet, Garrick promises to retrieve the check. Maitland, the gambler, is the purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Faircloughl who is unknowingly being used as a decoy. Her presence makes Garrick's task to his liking. Maitland plots to trick Rhoda out of a fortune left her by an uncle who died in Rome. Garrick exposes to Rhoda, before Maitland and his gang, their crooked card tricks. Garrick is overpowered by Schewan, Maitland's chief, but manages to defeat Schewan's purpose of burning him alive in his car.

INSTALLMENT VII.

A DISASTROUS MISTAKE.

Garrick pulled the cord clear of the canvas and rolled it up.

"I think this deserves a place in my museum," he mused, and put it in his pocket. "Now I suppose I shall have to slog it all the way up the hill back to Charnwood and dig out some one who has a car."

It was now between 2 and 3 in the morning and there would be little hope of getting a lift from a passing motorist for some hours.

On the edge of the moorland that bordered the road was a dwarf oak with spreading roots. One of them looked rather tempting and he sat down and stared moodily at the blazing car. For twenty minutes or more he sat thus while the car continued to burn. The shrub growth that formed the hedge was crackling loudly, so that he did not hear Schewan's footsteps until the latter was within five or six feet of him.

Cautiously he peered round the oak. The moonlight showed that there was but a single man on the road—and the glow from the car left no doubt as to the identity of that man.

"Hullo, Gorilla!"

Garrick had the advantage of surprise and made full use of it. Garrick's right arm had hooked, with every appearance of affection, across

"It's awfully dangerous to talk about torturing young women, Gorilla," added Garrick as he knotted one end of the cord

Schewan's left elbow and Garrick's left hand seemed to caress the other's wrist. In short, Garrick had the Gorilla in a lock which the French police call the "come-along," so called because any attempt at resistance is quite certain to result in a broken arm.

"You are taken aback, my dear Gorilla!" drawled Garrick. "You are dumfounded, are you not? You would almost believe I was my own ghost. Let's go and have a good look at the bonfire, shall we?"

"Yes. A bit low down, wasn't it! I'm awfully sorry, Gorilla, but I can't offer you a fair scrap tonight. You see, you've rather shaken me up with that gas and the—er—smell of that petrol. I'm not in very good form. By the way, don't try to draw that revolver or I shall have to hurt you. . . . There, I did warn you, Gorilla!"

Another great advantage of the "come-along" lock is that the one who has secured it has but to bend quickly forward and release his hold and his victim inevitably crashes to the ground.

As Schewan measured his length, face forward, Garrick decided that it might be as well to keep him there.

Garrick gripped the other's right ankle, thrust it in the hollow of the left knee, then bent the left instep forward. In this position a child could hold the strongest man helpless.

"I hope you're not stunned, Gorilla?"

"I could have done the same to you if I'd come up behind you."

"O, of course!" agreed Garrick fervently. "Only you generally use gas first, don't you, Gorilla? And then, I believe, you like the other fellow to be in a straitjacket if you're to give a really good show."

"I didn't torture you, anyhow."

"You were going to torture Miss Faircloughl."

Garrick waited for his words to sink in. He was not, as a matter of fact, torturing Schewan. The pain in the knee was very slight provided no resistance were offered.

"Grrr! What's the use of it, Garrick! You can't stand there holding my foot for ever."

"True! It is already becoming a little tedious." Garrick held the foot in position with his own knee, then took from his pocket the cord that had laced the strait-jacket.

"Do you mind putting your right hand up in my direction, Gorilla?" He enforced the demand by extra pressure on the instep. "Thanks. It's the thumb I want particularly. Just open your hand, will you? A little wider, please. . . .

"It's awfully dangerous to talk about torturing young women, Gorilla," added Garrick as he knotted one end of the cord round the other's thumb. "Now your left hand, please, in the same way. . . . There! Now I am relieved of the unpleasant necessity of holding your instep."

Garrick stood clear. The cord was looped over the upturned instep and secured to the two thumbs by a slip-knot. Schewan was trussed and helpless.

"Can you see the bonfire from where you are?" he inquired. "I wouldn't like you to miss any of that bonfire because it is costing you three thousand pounds. I shall order another car tomorrow. Please let me have the three thousand by midday or I shall have to make a claim on the insurance company. And I fancy they will ask me how I burnt my car."

"That is mere hysteria, my dear fellow," said Garrick. "Think again! Would you rather have about twelve years for arson and attempted murder? As it is, you will have about three or four hours of acute discomfort. In that time, if you're a wise Gorilla, you'll resolve never again to try and rob a young woman and threaten to torture her. Good-by! I don't imagine we shall meet again."

So Garrick thought—and in thinking that he had finished with Schewan he made the most disastrous mistake of his life.

At a quarter to ten in the morning Garrick came out of his house in Marron street, Piccadilly. Exquisitely dressed, the gold mounted ebony walking stick under his arm, he became as ever the center of idle attraction.

It was characteristic of Garrick that he had dismissed the events of the previous night as being no longer of any importance. He was not even anxious, in any acutely personal sense, for Rhoda Fairclough's welfare. The plan of the crooks had been a very simple one—to make her believe that on her twenty-first birthday she would inherit fifty pounds a year instead of five thousand a year—to trick her into signing some document that would give them control of her fortune.

That plan was not impossible—at an end because Schewan had failed to kill him. He had only to employ a good solicitor on Rhoda's behalf to make it quite impossible for her to be robbed of her property.

So he reasoned. For Garrick as yet knew absolutely nothing about the resources of the leading British crook gangs. To him a gangster meant an American spirit-merchant with a number of machine guns at his command—an institution which did not exist in Great Britain.

He gave the central facts of the situation to Mr. Bonniwell, a solicitor with a very large, very prosperous "family business." His firm had handled the Garricks' affairs for three generations.

Like many another he admired Lyle Garrick, but secretly disapproved of him, as a young man who could do nothing with his considerable personal talents and a great monetary fortune except lead an ornamentally idle existence.

Mr. Bonniwell made suitable ejaculations while Garrick told his story.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Mr. Bonniwell as Garrick finished. And then: "Well, well!" He smiled tolerantly, as if at the follies of youth. "And you really think it wise, my dear Garrick, to thrust yourself into all this—to rescue a forlorn maiden in distress?"

"That is why I came to see you, Mr. Bonniwell." The retort was courteous, but it held an icy reminder that the solicitor was being consulted on a point of law only.

Mr. Bonniwell was all apologies and hastened to give assurance that it would be a simple matter to investigate the details of the inheritance at the Italian embassy and to insure that Miss Fairclough on reaching her twenty-first birthday would receive her fortune through himself or some other reputable solicitor.

BY MARY MEADE.

One grand thing about this A Century of Progress Exposition is the way it's showing conscientious homemakers a thing or two about cooking. We're discovering—perhaps to our chagrin but nevertheless to our everlasting relief—that some way life does struggle on whether we use up hours of it in the kitchen or not. Half an hour in the cool of the morning spent vibrating between the refrigerator and the work table nowadays can spell cream soup ready for the stove, a great luncheon salad hearty enough for the hungriest male, neat sandwiches wrapped and waiting, and a tray full of frozen goodness or a refrigerator pie all set for a family of pantry raiders. Then—grab a hat, jump into your most comfortable walking shoes and hie yourself forth for a day at the biggest show in the country—which is practically inviting you from your own doorsteps.

And if the lure of 10 foot mechanical men, roller coasters and foreign villages won't let you dash homeward till practically dinner time—think nothing of it. These days the faster the meal getting, the smarter the cook. And if you are a little inexperienced in these hurry-up meals, here are a few Fair time suggestions.

Life-savers always are lettuce and cabbage. Keep both on hand—fresh, crisp, and ready. A covered glass dish or a waterproof transparent bag keeps them perfectly. Keep well stocked with canned vegetables. You may prefer fresh ones these days, but in an emergency a salad may be tossed together from a can or scarlet beets, slithered green beans, and a stalk of fresh celery. Among the hurry up cooked vegetables remember cabbage, cauliflower, corn on the cob, fresh greens of all sorts of kinds, tomatoes, and summer squash. Any of these may be cooked in 20 minutes—many of them in less time. And while they are cooking, meat may be broiled, or a meat salad concocted, fruit may be prepared for dessert, bread cut, water poured, and the coffee set on to perk!

Then make use of spaghetti and all its brothers and stepcousins. Italian spaghetti, with plenty of meat and tomato sauce, and generous sprinklings of cheese, makes a hearty dinner dish. Support it with an asparagus, beet, or cucumber salad, bread and butter, and fresh fruit or a fruit dumpling. The latter may be steaming while you eat.

Or make it a "meal-in-one" salad for luncheon or for a light summer dinner. Fair-going days are always ideal times to use up the "planned aheads," [we've stopped calling them left overs!] Unused ham, veal, and potatoes, with perhaps a dash of pickles to furnish the "palate appeal," can become a truly sophisticated dish.

Miljan Given Release; to Be a Free Lance

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 18.—[Special.]—After six years as a contract player at Warner and MGM studios, John Miljan, described by his professional associates as the "kind of actor who can play anything from Little Red Riding Hood to the wolf," is joining the free lance actor ranks. He obtained a release from the final month of his contract with MGM in order to step into the male lead in "The Woman in the Chair" for Producer Phil Goldstone, and will follow with a featured rôle in Richard Dix's next film, "Bird of Prey."

Miljan, who is an ex-United States marine, ex-gold miner, ex-cornet player, and ex-star in one night stock companies which toured the far west and southern states, seems to be the kind of fellow about whom unusual experiences gather. One of his unusual experiences occurred recently when Miljan attained what he calls a "carnival mood" at a party in the home of W. S. Van Dyke, director.

As the carnival mood came upon him Miljan started to sing, accompanied on the piano by another guest.

One other guest, a handsome fellow of a slight bulkiness, evinced interest and told Miljan his name, too, was "John."

"Well, John," said Miljan amiably, improvising a baton for him, "you are welcome as my musical director." The other John smiled and obligly directed several of Miljan's solos. The other John sang a bit, too, but Miljan drowned him out. Finally, the party began to turn to other interests. Miljan complimented the piano player. Then he complimented "John," No. 2, for deftness as musical leader. "You should be a musician yourself," Miljan told the other John. "Your singing is very interesting," the other John told Miljan.

At this stage Van Dyke, who had been waiting for that moment, walked up with hypocritical nonchalance. "O, by the way, John," he said to Miljan, "I forgot to introduce you two. This is John McCormack, the famous tenor."

Society Plans Many Parties for Air Races

Anxious to See Noted World Pilots.

the main stand and Harold F. McCormick has another.

It will be a wonder if Mrs. Stephen G. Browning doesn't make at least one trip to the airport, for in spite of her 95 years and the memories of crinolines and victorias she is quite devoted to this ultra modern means of transportation. Her daughter and son-in-law, the Frank J. Boesches, are other boxholders. And so are the Fowler McCormicks, who flew down to New Haven last week-end for the Yale-Harvard races; Avery Brundage, the Charles Harrington Chadwicks, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, James S. Kemper, Mrs. George Rasmussen, and J. De Forest Richards.

Lake Forest Parties to Attend.

The Thomas E. Wilsons plan to come in from their Lake Forest home for the races on July 3 and so does Seymour Wheeler. Charles H. Morse Jr. will have a party of young people on that day while his mother will attend the races the opening day.

Then there are the Edward Cudahys, the junior George W. Dulaneys, Philip K. Wrigley, George M. Seaman, Mrs. Mark W. Trude, Mrs. E. Townsend McKeever, the George Woodruffs, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Miss Harriet B. Stuart, the Klagman Douglasses, Mr. and Mrs. Britten I. Budd, J. Russell Forgan, Dr. Louis Schmidt, Robert E. Cantwell Jr., Byron S. Harvey, and the Otto Kerners . . . all with boxes for a day or more of the great air event.

Apropos of Gen. Balbo and his famous air aces the latest tissue wrapped invitation to arrive for their entertainment is that for the official welcoming ceremonies the morning of the squadron's arrival at Soldiers' field. This will be, according to reports yesterday, at least ten days hence.

Big Reception for Scientists.

Interest is to be focused this week even more definitely than before on A Century of Progress for several hundred distinguished scientists, many of them with their wives, are here or coming here for the summer sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The sessions, which are to start today, are to be mingled with social affairs ranging from a picnic on the dunes to a Lake Geneva party planned by those two ingenious ladies, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, the Fair's official hostess to scientific visitors, and Mrs. Henry Gordon Gale, wife of the dean of physics at the University of Chicago.

Tonight all of the celebrated visitors with their Chicago hosts and hostesses who include faculty members from Chicago and Northwestern universities and members of the Chicago Woman's club as well as officials of A Century of Progress are to gather in the court of the Hall of Science where the Fair is giving them a great and grand reception. Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes will head the receiving line and Prof. Arthur B. Compton will give an official address of welcome. With Mr. and Mrs. Dawes in the receiving line will be Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham, Maj. and Mrs. Lennox R. Lohr, Dr. and Mrs. William Alan Pusey, Prof. and Mrs. Gale, Prof. and Mrs. J. J. Abel, Dr. and Mrs. Philip Fox, Col. and Mrs. Frank C. Boggs, and Prof. and Mrs. Burton E. Livingstone of Johns Hopkins university.

Bernadottes to Be Guests at Fair.

Today is to be a very busy one for those two distinguished representatives of the Swedish government to A Century of Progress, Count and Countess Folke Bernadotte. Swedish day is to be celebrated at the Fair.

Count Bernadotte, the nephew of King Gustav of Sweden is a grandson of the late King Oscar and Queen Sophia.

This evening Count Bernadotte will read an especial message from King Gustav at a large reception in the Court of the Nations. Before this reception Oscar Lundquist, the Swedish consul, is entertaining at dinner for the distinguished visitors at his home.

Count and Countess Bernadotte are to be here several days, then they will go to Minneapolis for two days returning on or about the 28th. There are to be a number of small but brilliant dinners for them, not only because of Count Bernadotte's royal background but also because of Countess Bernadotte's distinguished parentage. She is the daughter of the Edward H. Manvilles of New York and Long Island.

The first of the unofficial parties will be the dinner at which Ira Nelson Morris is to be host Wednesday evening.

Kathryn Evans Bride July 8.

The plans for Miss Kathryn Evans' marriage to Paul Alfred Welbourne III. call for a very quiet wedding in Mrs. Albert Thomas Evans' lovely Lake Shore drive apartment on July 8, with just the relatives and intimate friends present. Mrs. Evans' sister, Mrs. Matthew P. McCullough, has left St. Luke's hospital, where she has been so ill, and is with Mrs. Evans. Her daughter, Miss Ruth McCullough, will be Miss Evans' only attendant, gowned in white to complement Miss Evans' wedding gown of old lace.

After the ceremony Mr. Welbourne and his bride will go to Boston for a day to see his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alfred Welbourne IL, and then sail abroad for a European honeymoon. When they return here next fall Mrs. Evans will give a large reception for her daughter and son-in-law.

Miss Rosamond Baker was busy yesterday afternoon telephoning relatives and intimate friends, inviting them to her wedding next Saturday afternoon in Lake Forest. She will become the bride of Edgar Stanton Jr. at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Baker. Francis Stanton will serve his brother as best man, and Miss Baker will have two of her best friends as attendants. Mr. Stanton and his bride will not take a wedding trip until next fall, and will be at home immediately after the marriage at 2600 Lake View avenue.

The cleverest, most intriguing invitations we have seen in a long day are the silver fig leaves asking a special group to a preview showing of "This Nude World," a motion picture, Wednesday evening at the Jantzen swimming pool at the foot of 12th street on Northerly Isle. "Note: This is an invitation, not a costume," is the postscript.

"Jack" Couch, Miss Edith Behr, Miss Barbara Graf, "Cy" Adams, Isabel Gordon, and several more are planning to attend in one party, we understand, and Prince Potenziani with his stunning daughter, Donna Miriam, will be there in another. "Ben" Marshall has plans for still another, and that inseparable quartet, Miss Cornelia Fairbank, Miss Narcissa Swift, Frederick Poole Jr., and Mr. Liebman, Prince Potenziani's aid, have already indicated their acceptance.

The old gag about roller skates will probably be seriously meant if present plans for the barn dance Saturday night at Dunham woods in Wayne hold good. Roller skating in the hayloft is to be added to the other attractions.

Tea of Board for Orphan Asylum.

The officers and board of the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum are to have a tea tomorrow afternoon for the first president, Mrs. Carroll H. Sudler Jr., who served so ably. The party is to be held at the home over on Foster street and as entertainment several of the children are to put on a play for their "fairy godmothers."

Mrs. Richard D. Stevenson as president of the board this year will be the hostess. On the board are, among others, Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr., Mrs. Arthur Dixon III., Mrs. Lawrence W. Scudder, Mrs. Roy E. Sturtevant, Miss Maroussa Russell, Miss Mary Reed, Miss Jean Schweppe, Mrs. Paul S. Moyer, Mrs. James R. Offield, and Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr.

The Audubon society has issued invitations for a tea to be given from 3 to 5 o'clock Friday in the O'Brien Galleries on North Michigan avenue. The party is in recognition of the opening of a splendid exhibit of original Audubon prints engraved by Robert Havell. The exhibit will continue through July 28. Mrs. Frank Granger Logan and Mrs. Louis E. Laflin are to pour tea Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm and their daughter, Miss Jean Wilhelm, who is destined to be one of the most attractive and popular debutantes of the coming season, and sons, Frank Edward Jr. and David C., have moved into the James E. Baums' house in Lake Forest for the summer. The Baums and their children have been in Florida since the first of the year, and they are going to spend the summer near Quebec. Mr. Wilhelm Jr. and young Richard F. Baum are going on a camping trip together for the first three weeks of July, up to Ontario and back to Quebec. Miss Elizabeth Baum, better known as Brownie Bess to her friends and the debutante crowd of last winter, may be here for a visit later this summer.

Mrs. Wilhelm's sister, Mrs. John Noble Stearns, and her husband are arriving Wednesday to visit Mrs. Stearns' family, the Edward A. Cudahys, and brother and sister-in-law, the junior Edward Cudahys, and her other sisters, Mrs. Vaughan Spaulding and Mrs. Austin Niblack, and their husbands. The Stearnses will probably stay in Lake Forest with the junior Cudahys, and will be much fêted while they are here.

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Fabric contrast is much liked now, and this model will surely win approval. The wrapped bodice effect is smart, and the snugly fitted skirt flares into a slightly circular hemline. One suggestion is to use a light blue cotton with blue and white striped cotton for contrast.

The pattern, No. 2558, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2½ yards of 39 inch dark, with 1¼ yards of 39 inch light material and ¾ yard of 3 inch wide ribbon for the bow.

MARRIED

MRS. FRANK W. BIBLE JR.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Young, 726 Woodbine avenue, Oak Park, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Muriel, to Frank William Bible Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Bible, 834 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park. The ceremony took place on the morning of June 14 at the home of the bride's parents.

MINUTE MYSTERY

FORDNEY ENTERTAINS THE CHILDREN.

Prof. Fordney was host to ten of his little friends. Seeking mental relaxation after weeks of intensive work he had invited the children to spend the afternoon with him. Big dishes of ice cream and plenty of Mary's best cake was served. Billy and Rog took theirs to a corner of the garden and seemed to be more interested in conversation than eating. Which, thought the professor, was most unusual. What were they hatching up? He was soon to learn.

"Prof. Fordney," shouted 14 year old Billy as they ran toward him, "we have a story for you. I stayed over at Rog's house one night last winter while his mother and dad went to a party. Before leaving they built a coal fire in the grate and told us we could stay up until 10 o'clock. We had a good detective story and took turns reading out loud, but we were so tired we soon fell asleep.

"Suddenly I woke up and, gee, I was scared! I thought I heard a shot. I yelled to Rog. Then we heard the noise again, but heck, it was only the crackling of the dying coal embers! We thought sure we were going to catch a robber and get our names in the papers like you do. But no such luck!

"We felt sort of spooky—it was late—so we hustled off to bed.

"Well, professor, what's wrong with the story? As you say, quickly now!"

WHAT WAS THE PROFESSOR'S ANSWER TO BILLY'S QUESTION?

Couples Who Share Leisure Are Happiest

Budget Spare Time, Advice of One Expert.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

In a questionnaire by which husbands may total up their 100 per cent score or 10 as good husbands, appearing in a current monthly magazine, is this one: "Do you share at least half of your recreation hours with your wife?"

Apropos, one aggrieved wife regaled her bridge pals recently with the state of coma in which her husband spent his evenings at home. The woman confided that she didn't know whether what the man needed was a strong tonic, or a good stiff jab in the ribs. Anyway, the evening program for this irate sister was looking up from her book or magazine to see the gentleman in the case nodding his head in drowsy sleep. No amount of coaxing, teasing, begging could convince the man that this was not the perfect husband evening program.

Dr. Paul Popenoe, one of our foremost authorities on marriage, says that the problem of the use of leisure time is one of the serious ones confronting couples in middle life. As more leisure time develops, as is promised in the early future, the problem will become more acute unless married couples plan some sort of budget of this leisure time, as Dr. Popenoe suggests.

Sharing leisure time and using it constructively, Dr. Popenoe sees as preventive of discord and unhappiness in homes. It isn't deemed necessary that husband and wife should share every leisure moment. But there must be some sort of arrangement whereby situations such as described by the rest-sodden mate outlined above will not exist. What that arrangement should be is determined by the parties involved, just as in the case of the money budget, and can be fairly elastic.

If the husband wants to take his evening off with the boys, O. K. But in consideration of this wifely indulgence, she should be granted an evening with him at the movie or whatever social function pleases her.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 18.—[Special.]—Mrs. Garner accompanied Vice President Garner when they started yesterday for their home in Uvalde, Tex., for the remainder of the summer.

Postmaster General Farley went yesterday to his home in New York to spend the week-end with Mrs Farley, who has been there for some weeks.

Paris Applies Plumage with Sparing Hand

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Feathery bits of trimming are to be seen here and thereon smart Paris clothes and hats, but feathers in general are not worn in quantity. Molyneux's evening capes with long coque feathers stingily applied around the neckline are worn by a few women in the evening, and so are Augustabernard's peacock feather bracelets. Reboux goes right on making feather toques which her faithful customers go right on wearing. She does most of her toques of appliqued quills or sweeping clumps of osprey this summer.

Sally Invites 100 Children to White City

A Gay Time Will Open Party Season.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Hi, kids! Did you see yesterday's paper? If you didn't, you missed the first announcement of the party season. Well, let this be a lesson to you watch THE TRIBUNE faithfully from now on, and I'll repeat my good news of yesterday.

Somewhere around here are 100 boys and girls who're going to be invited to come with me to one of the grandest places so far invented for having fun. A place where things have such exciting names as "The Flash," "The Pep," "The Water Scooters"—and [if you don't already know the place I'm talking about, this'll give it away] the "Fun House." Yep, it's White City!

Aged four or forty, you can't help but have a good time out there, that's all there is to it! And when we go out, we can go on anything and everything they have. There'll be no counting of pennies, to see if we can afford just one more ride on the "Dodgem." No, siree, because Mr. Byfield, the president of White City, told me he'd throw the gate wide open, and on Thursday, June 29, the place is ours! And judging from past parties, we'll have all the thrills and laughs we can stand.

How'd you like to come along? All you have to do is write and tell me why you'd like to be my guest for Thursday, June 29, being sure to include your name, address and age. The writers of the best letters will be sent invitations.

Of course, we can't hope to invite all the children who write, but we will include 100 of those most anxious to come. All letters must be on my desk by next Thursday, June 22, and the names of the winners will appear in next Sunday's TRIBUNE. Address your letters to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

More and more requests are coming in for the "Young Naturalists' Booklist," and the other leaflet, "Books of the Outdoor World." These are coming not only from parents and teachers, but from groups of various kinds.

Children know more than they ever did before, I think, of natural things. They have a native eagerness about creatures first, and then plant life. But often their thirst for knowledge is not satisfied because they lack books or because there is no sharing of their enthusiasm with their mothers, fathers, or other children.

In order to learn more about life in the natural world, children need contact with some fund of knowledge greater than their own. This may be a person who knows nature, or good books. At first these books will be simple ones like a small bird guide with colored plates, or a wildflower or tree guide that will slip into a pocket. Later on, as their knowledge grows, they will demand field books a little more technical in character, or books giving fuller descriptions of habits and appearance and reproductions of both plants and animals.

Small children, as all grown people know, sometimes to their embarrassment, are very observing. These powers of observation work keenly outdoors, given the least encouragement.

A few other things besides books and responsive interest from grown-ups and their own powers of observation can be used by the young naturalist. Among these are nets of various kinds, some suitable for delicate creatures like butterflies and others more sturdy, suitable for swooping up frogs and turtles. A pair of field glasses or binoculars are invaluable to the bird lover—binoculars, of course, being not so simple to focus as the simpler glass.

RECORD CROWD SEES SOX AND YANKS DIVIDE

Warneke Gets Sixth Beating of Year.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 18.—The New York Giants, although able to make only four hits off Lon Warneke, defeated the Chicago Cubs today, 2 to 0. It was Warneke's sixth beating of the season.

The Giants were peaceable enough for the first six innings, during which they made only two hits, but in the seventh Manager Bill Terry started an uprising which brought the National league leaders two runs and victory.

Here's how the game was won:

Terry opened the inning with a single and scored on Vergez's double to right center. Vergez went to third on Moore's sacrifice and lingered there on Mancuso's short fly to Babe Herman. In bearing down on Ryan, Warneke loosed a wild pitch on which Vergez scored a superfluous but comforting run.

Parmelee Sails Along.

The Cubs, who wailed much in Pittsburgh yesterday because they made only three runs on 14 hits, made eight hits in rolling up their zero today, giving them a two day record of three runs on 22 hits.

Roy Parmelee, the New York pitcher, had only one scare. It came in the first inning. In the opener English reached third, something no other Cub did till two were out in the ninth. And Parmelee got even with Woody by striking him out all three of the remaining times he went to the plate.

The game started off in a way to give the Cubs some hope for an early lead. English opened the contest by caroming a single off Critz's shins and went to second on a wild pitch. Woody held second while Ryan threw out Bill Herman and Babe Herman flied to O'Doul. Then he went to third on Stephenson's infield single, but the inning ended when Hendrick grounded out to Critz.

Waste Plenty of Hits.

The Cub hit in the second inning was made by Jurges with two out. He reached second on Moore's error, but died when Warneke flied to Ott.

After English had fanned to start the third, Bill Herman lined a single to left, but Babe Herman popped to Vergez and Stephenson grounded out to Critz.

The fifth wasted Cub hit was a single by Demaree with one out in the fourth. It immediately was nullified by a double play off Hartnett's bat.

Giants Get Warmed Up.

Up to the fifth the Giants hadn't made a hit, but they came pretty close to scoring before the fifth was over. Moore walked with one down, but the hit and run play was gummed up by a pitchout and Moore was thrown out at second by Hartnett. Mancuso followed with the first hit off Warneke, a single to right, and went to third when Ryan singled off the right field wall.

Stephenson was hit by a pitched ball to start the ninth and was forced by Hendrick. Hendrick was forced by Demaree, but Hartnett lined a single to left, putting Demaree on third. Douthit ran for Hartnett. The game exended with Jurges' fly to Moore.

Can't Score for Warneke.

Warneke, who now has lost six games, suffered his sixth and final defeat of the 1932 season last Sept. 13 at the hands of the Giants. Today's setback was Lon's third in his last three starts, during which his team has scored a grand total of two runs. Last year Lon beat the Giants five times before finally losing on Sept. 13 to Hal Schumacher in 11 innings. A year ago today Lon beat the Giants, 3 to 0.

When Warneke took his last licking in Cincinnati last week he was defeated, 2 to 1, on two unearned runs.

GOLDEN GLOVES TEAM TO TRAIN AT GRAND BEACH

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's Golden Gloves champions, who will fight the amateur boxing champions of Ireland at Soldiers' field Aug. 2 in the third international tournament sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will train for two weeks prior to the bouts at Grand Beach, Mich. The site was selected by the officials of the Chicago team after a survey of locations in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Credit for the showing of the Golden Gloves boys against the champions of Germany last summer, when the bouts were tied 4 to 4, was due to the excellent preparation and the facilities afforded by the training camp at Lake Wawasee, Ind.

Train on Lake Front.

So successful was the training period that the plan was continued this year. Not only will the ample facilities of Grand Beach materially affect the conditioning of the Chicago team, but the training period will afford opportunity for development of a spirit necessary to the team's success.

The Golden Gloves team will be quartered in the Golfmore hotel, which stands on a cliff overlooking Lake Michigan. Less than 100 yards away, across a ravine spanned by a high wooden bridge, is the building in which the ring will be pitched and where the major portion of the training will take place. This is almost the identical location of Tommy Gibbons' preparation for his bout with Georges Carpentier several years ago.

Boxing, however, is only one item, although an important one, in the preparation of the squad which it is hoped will whip Ireland's champions. Grand Beach possesses all the other necessary facilities.

The long stretches of sandy beach can be used for morning runs and hikes. Innumerable trails and the fairways of the golf course also will serve in the conditioning processes. Golfmore offers recreation for the hours when the boys are not in the ring. Many undoubtedly will play golf. Others may be interested in tennis, ping-pong [there's a table outdoors], and other sports. Baseball was a universal favorite at last year's camp.

Chef Is a Champion.

While Grand Beach is only six miles from Michigan City, just over the Indiana-Michigan line, it will isolate the squad. The Golden Glovers always have taken their training seriously, but it simplifies the work of the coaches to have the boys together all the time.

The chef of the Golfmore will see to it that plenty of excellent food is ready for the fighters. There'll be no difficulty getting the training table started, for not only will the coaches outline the menus but the chef, through long experience at South Bend, where he supervised the diet of football teams, knows what should be served athletes. If exercise and food can turn the trick Chicago's champions will be ready for the Irish.

While the squad has not been named, the eight champions, of course, will make the trip to Grand Beach, Mich. It is probable that at least one more candidate in each weight will be given an invitation to join the squad. Although the champions are assured of making the trip, it does not follow that they will be chosen to represent Chicago.

Best Men to Fight.

The team of eight will be named at the conclusion of the training period, and the eight best boys at that time will meet the Irish. The list of 1933 champions follows:

126 pounds, Leo Rodak.
135 pounds, Eddie Ward.
160 pounds, Fred Caserio.
175 pounds, Max Marek.
Heavyweight, John Pacek.

While these boys are entitled to make the training trip, any one may be omitted if in the opinion of the coaches he will not help the team, for it is team strength rather than individual strength which will win from the Irish. Each fighter must be approved by the Central association of the Amateur Athletic union.

The team will assemble on July 16 and will leave on the Michigan Central for Grand Beach.

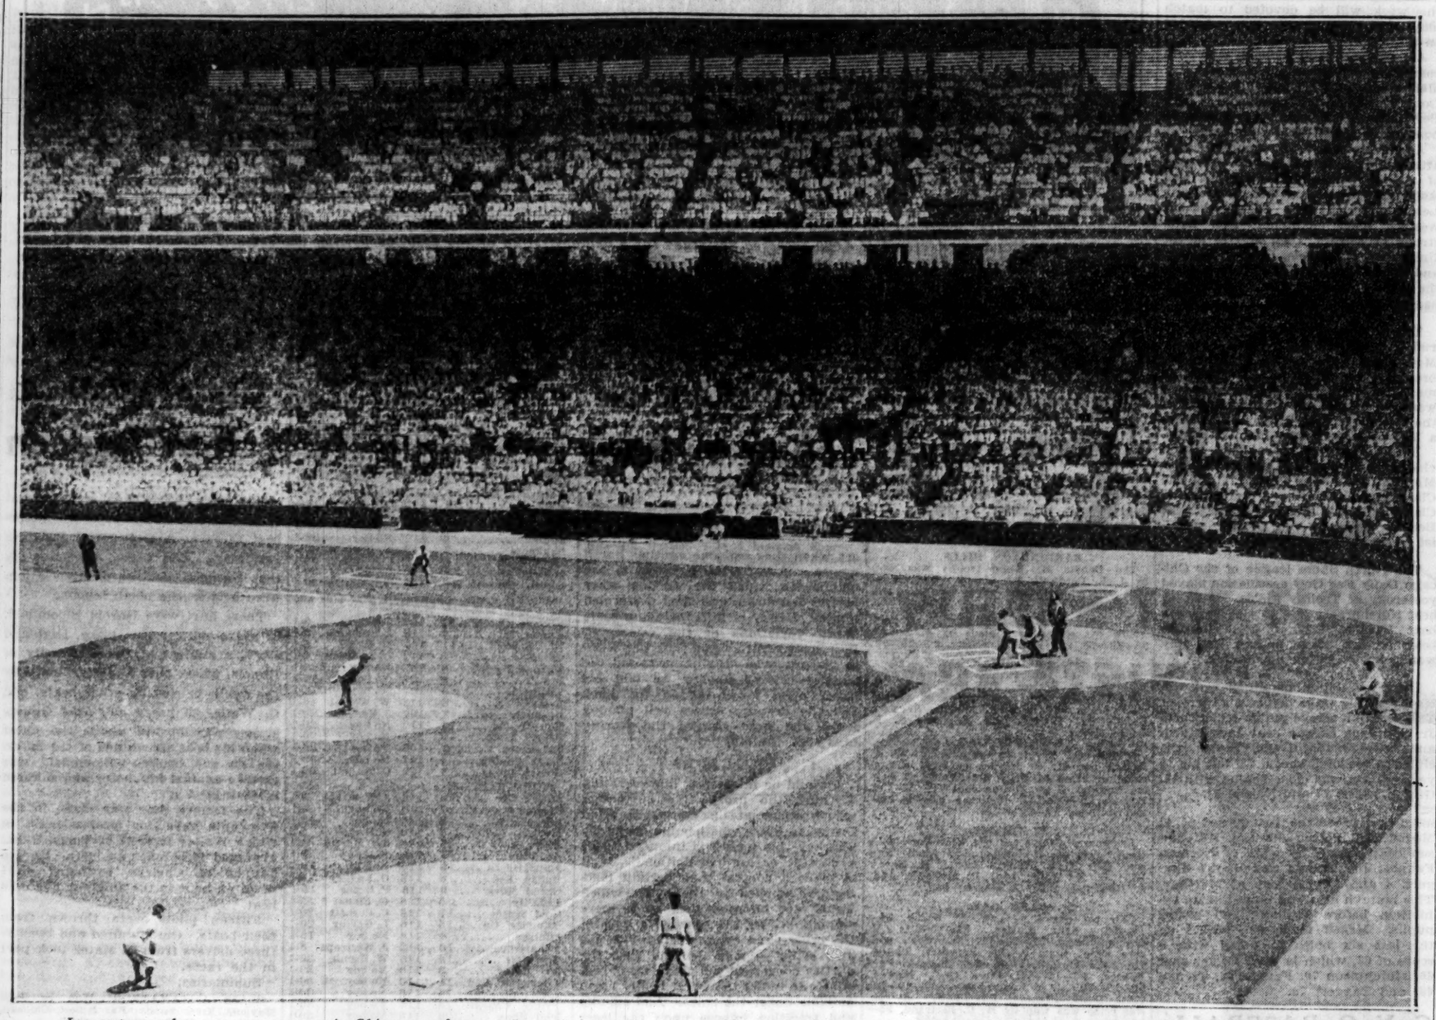
RECORD CROWD SEES SOX BATTLE YANKEES



Largest crowd ever to see a game in Chicago gathers at Comiskey park for the double header between the White Sox and the world champion Yankees. So many wanted to see the games that 4,000 of the 53,398 turnout had to be accommodated on the field. This was the first time that ground rules were necessary since the south side park was enlarged. The former record crowd was 50,911, attracted to Comiskey park when the Yankees played the Sox in August, 1931. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

How They're Voting on American League Stars

The baseball fans of the nation will decide who will play in the game of the century at Comiskey park July 6. Fifty-five newspapers in all sections of the United States have invited fans to help pick the National and American leagues' greatest players.

The Tribune is offering $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who comes closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selects the American league's starting lineup with starting pitcher will receive $100. A similar prize will be presented for the National league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who can name the six pitchers.

In case more than the allotted number qualify for the awards, the prizes will go to those whose selections reach The Tribune first. Address communications to Sports Editor, Box 1718, Chicago Tribune.

62 Matches Open Western Tennis Today

These were seeded along with Herb Bowman, Doc Barr, Lefty Bryan, Dick Covington, Will Hess, Junior Boehmer of St. Louis, Milt Ruehl of Milwaukee, John McDiarmid of Fort Worth, Tex., and George O'Connell.

COHN WINS CITY MEET.

Jay Cohn of Chicago defeated Henry Prusoff of Seattle, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2, for the men's singles championship of Chicago yesterday afternoon at the Beverly Hills Tennis club.

Prusoff, who had displayed much power in his previous matches, was clearly off his game. He continually drove the ball into the net or far out of bounds.

Prusoff, teamed with Art Kiser, lost to Scott Rezinger and Johnny Shostrom in the doubles finals, 9-7, 6-4, 6-1. Eugenie and Jane Sampson won the women's doubles title, defeating Ethel Van Dyne and Ruth Willard in the finals, 6-2, 6-2.

Lott Triumphs Over Mercur in Exhibition

George Lott defeated Fred Mercur of Bethlehem, Pa., in an exhibition match yesterday at the Chicago Town and Tennis club. The score was 4-6, 6-0, 6-1. In a doubles match Lott and Jack Harris beat Mercur and Dick Cobintong, Virginia champion, 6-2, 7-5.

If Carnera's an Exhibitor, What Is Sharkey Bout?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 18.—Among the business troubles of the week was the petition in bankruptcy filed by Primo Carnera, who scheduled assets of $1,182 against liabilities of $59,829, although he can hardly have included among his assets a very optimistic valuation of his present contract to fight Jack Sharkey on June 29 for the heavyweight championship of the world.

That engagement alone would seem to have more value than $1,182, although the exact amount would be difficult to estimate at this time, much depending on the state of the weather, the customer appeal, and the outcome of the contest. As a free style guesser, I should estimate that this fight, and future returns it may pay him, would far exceed the total of his liabilities. But one does not schedule one's future as an asset in such cases.

Maybe It's a Deal.

I may err in referring to the transaction with Sharkey as a fight, for Carnera in his petition describes himself not as a "contestant" or "prize-fighter," but as an "exhibitor." That distinction would tend to explain away many incidents of his past career in the ring which were held up to suspicion by boxing writers around the country who believed that some of his engagements made a mockery of the fair name of the sport.

As an "exhibitor," Primo was not required to engage in contests and if, as some of the skeptics suspected, certain of his opponents did not put forth their best efforts, that was entirely immaterial. In the moving pictures when the scenario calls for a fist fight between two actors, it is not always written in the book that the better man shall win. Yet, the patrons never tear up the seats and hurl the fragments at the offending phantoms on the screen with cries of "Fake," for they realize that the plot is developing according to a prearranged story.

If Primo is an "exhibitor" then it was not required that his partners, or stooges, or whatever it was that he called the other large lumps who stood up briefly before him, should attempt to do him grievous bodily harm. Neither were they required to stay in there and take it unduly. Each exhibition must be regarded as a separate play in itself and there is no going behind the results in any of his appearances.

If the party of the second part succumbed to a push on the elbow no man has any right to challenge the sincerity of the "exhibitors" and all criticism should be confined to artistic grounds.

HOSE LOSE, 6-4, THEN WIN, 5-4, BEFORE 53,398

Errors Decide Both Games.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox staged their own little drama yesterday before 53,398 spectators, the greatest crowd ever assembled in a Chicago ball park. The marauding New York Yankees were within inches of grasping their second triumph of the afternoon when the unexpected, concluding all star act was staged to toss them back into an even division of the afternoon's spoils.

Three runs behind in the ninth inning of the second portion of the lengthy program, the Sox surged forth with a series of base hits to climb into a 4 to 4 tie. And then in the tenth they made amends for all of their earlier failures by harvesting a run that nailed down victory by 5 to 4. The first battle went to the champions by 6 to 4, giving them a record of five in a row over the Chicagoans.

Moore Jolted in Tenth.

When the Sox ganged up for their heavy assault in the ninth two Yankee pitchers were carried away. Don Brennan, who started, was the first to go. In a few minutes Herb Pennock traveled the same route. That brought in Wilcey Moore, a gentleman of many years, but skilled in the art of rescue. He kept the tie intact by completing a sad afternoon for the noted Al Simmons but that was a far as he could go. A hit for distance and an intentional pass to start the tenth put him on the spot. A moment later he brought defeat tumbling down on himself with a wild throw.

Luke Appling led off in the tenth with his third double and the last of many which rained down on the thousands in the overflow crowd. By some sort of strategy Joe McCarthy, the Yank manager, ordered Red Kress purposely passed. Jim Dykes bunted with the idea of advancing the runners. Moore scooped up the bunt, looked around for a possible play at second and then turned to first to throw but had to wait until Tony Lazzeri could cover the bag. When Moore finally made the heave it sailed into right field and Appling tore home with the winning run.

Hayes' Error Decides First Game.

Whatever chance the Sox might have had of winning the first game was thrown away by Jack Hayes, much to the discomfiture of Ted Lyons. A shaky first inning sent the veteran away to a bad start against Charley Ruffing, but the Sox finally jumped into the lead only to drop back into a tie in the seventh. Then in the ninth Hayes erred on what should have been the second out and a pair of doubles followed, giving the Yanks their winning margin.

The second game didn't furnish much amusement for Simmons, despite its finish. Al had no part in the battle except defensively. He was up five times without getting the ball out of the infield, once bouncing into a double play. Meanwhile Ben Chapman, the Yank star, had gathered one hit to add to the three picked up in the first affair. And when the statisticians reported on the day's happenings Chapman was leading the league with .373 and Simmons had been nudged back to second place with .369.

Babe Ruth was forced out of the second game by a severe headache and nausea resulting from the terrific heat and sewer gas in the Yankee's dugout. Ruth had a temperature last night but was expected to be able to play today. Several other Yankees complained of nausea from the sewer gas.

FIRST GAME

Combs' single to center started the unhappy, also unlucky, first inning for Lyons. Sewell flied out. Hayes played Ruth as usual toward first base and the Babe poked a meek roller through the spot Hayes had vacated. The outfield shifted toward right for Gehrig and he lifted an ordinary fly to left. Simmons couldn't get over and the ball dropped inside the foul line for a double, Combs scoring and Ruth stopping at third. Then Chapman sailed a line drive over the crowd against the left field bricks sending Ruth and Gehrig home.

The Sox used five hits to score the

Why Wait Until You Are Sure to Be Disappointed?

Al Simmons, one of baseball's greatest hitters, always tells rookies to "bust 'em when they're in there. Don't wait! Hit the first one that looks good."

Al never waits. He's hitting .369. He won't wait when he meets Warneke and Hubbell in the Game of the Century at Comiskey park, July 6. You won't catch Al taking a chance on being put in a hole.

If you want to bat 1.000 with your ticket applications for baseball's greatest game, get your request in now! Don't wait! The longer you wait, the more of a hole you'll be in.

You can still purchase reserved grandstand seats for the game between the American league and National league stars. Send your applications to All-Star Baseball department Comiskey Park, Chicago, Ill., with cashier's check or money order made out to All-Star Baseball Game. Self-addressed and stamped envelope should accompany each request. The price of a grandstand ticket is $1.10.

CANZONERI, ROSS JUST TWO BOYS WHO TOSS GLOVES

Tony Canzoneri, the champion, or Barney Ross, the challenger? This is the question which awaits decision at the Stadium Friday night when Tony defends his lightweight title for the fifth time. The interest is not confined to Chicago and visitors to A Century of Progress, however, for the bout eclipses happenings in New York, where Jack Sharkey will risk his heavyweight crown against Primo Carnera next week.

Although Tony and Barney lack color, an inexpressive word which generally is translated into box office receipts, it now seems apparent that the largest crowd of the boxing year in Chicago will gather in the Stadium. The prices are moderate, at least compared to the former scale for fisticuffs, and both of the boys are Chicago favorites.

This question of color bothers the Stadium promotional force. Neither Canzoneri nor Ross has fought a traffic cop, made love to a chorus girl, or indulged in wild spending orgies. In short, they are two young business men who always have been good to their folks and attend to their fighting. Moreover, if either developed a strain of goofiness it would be squelched promptly by his manager.

Too Late to Be Changing.

In recent days Ross has taken to private training. Ordinarily this move might be a bid for publicity and perhaps it might have been at the instance of the Stadium. The chances are, however, that Barney wants to practice his left jabs and right crosses by himself. Certainly he isn't attempting to develop a new form of attack for his punches have done very well for more than two years. Nor will this recess from public observation bother Canzoneri, for Tony depends on his own ability in the pinches.

Tony's 135 pound championship career goes back to 1930 when he knocked out Al Singer in a round. In 1931 he knocked out Jack [Kid] Berg in three rounds. Later he whipped Berg and Kid Chocolate in fifteen round title fights. Last November he licked Billy Petrolle in New York in fifteen rounds.

Ross Spars Six Rounds.

Ross boxed six rounds yesterday with Jackie Brady of New York and Young Brady of Chicago. Both are welterweights.

Canzoneri and Ross will appear before the Illinois athletic commission this afternoon to straighten out a controversy over the size of the gloves. Although the regulation glove weighs 6 ounces, the Ross backers maintain that because Canzoneri's hands are abnormally small his gloves which are made to fit have most of the weight in the wrists. Chairman Joe Triner of the commission will settle the question. After the gloves are fitted and approved the chief inspector, John Duffy, will lock them up until Friday.

Stadium officials announced yesterday that ticket reservations must be picked up tomorrow. Starting today the Stadium and loop box offices will be open until 9 p. m. There will be no radio broadcast.

Nine amateur bouts will be held outdoors tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. Maurice Rivkin, director, announced yesterday that 16 boxers will be paired by drawing. All boxers who are registered with the Central A. A. U. are eligible to compete. Clarence Smith will wrestle Edward Dvorak.

Hunters! Plenty of Crows for You in Chicago Area

BY BOB BECKER.

Crow hunters in Chicagoland still can bag a fair number of the big black birds if they will get into the woods these June days. The crows are answering a call without hesitation and the addition of either a metal owl, a genuine mounted horned owl or a mounted hawk to the hunting outfit will produce shooting without fail.

Inasmuch as the crow and the roving, field hunting house cat are branded by conservationists as arch enemies of song and game birds, a reduction in the crow population will mean more worthwhile birds in our coverts.

On a recent crow hunt west of Wheaton we found a scattered bunch of the birds in a fairly open meadow along a stream. This stream runs through an excellent stand of oak timber in which the crows nest. On previous hunts this particular spot always produced a few birds which came storming out of the woods as soon as we gave the alarm call on our wooden crow call.

The other day was no exception. We placed a metal owl and a couple of crow decoys on a log in the open. Then we found cover under the branches of a thornapple tree. One blast from the caller and up came several crows cawing answers to the alarm. Although the birds were in the open and offered ideal shots we found that the location of the three hunters in our party was not the most efficient that could be secured.

An improvement in tactics which means more chances for shots and more birds was suggested after one crow had been downed. Instead of all members of the party standing close together, it is better for two shooters to take positions 50 or more yards away from the person using the caller. This gives everybody a chance at the birds when they scatter and hurry into the timber following the first broadside. Usually the crows will come direct to the decoys and the shooter who is giving the crow alarm on a call.

When he has a shot he should take it. By that time four or five birds are circling around and some of them are bound to drop to the guns of the other members of the party. This arrangement is bound to provide more sport for a party of two or more shooting around one crow call and an owl decoy.

Illinois Pro Golfers Open Meet Today

The best professional and amateur golfers of Illinois will play at the Medinah Country club this week, with the state championships at stake.

Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake will begin defense of his professional title in an 18 hole round which is scheduled for today. The concluding 18 will be played tomorrow.

The amateurs will take over the course on Wednesday for a 27 hole qualifying round. The remainder of the week will be devoted to match play, the championship being decided on Saturday.

Among the professionals who will compete are Tommy Armour of Medinah, Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Don Gardner of Flossmoor, Sam Bernardi of Briargate and Abe Espinosa of Cog Hill.

A brilliant field of amateurs will attempt to deprive Warren Dawson of the championship which he won last year and the year before. Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields, former western open champion; Don Armstrong of Aurora, Dick Martin of the University of Illinois, George Dawson and many other sharpshooters have the ability to take the title if they happen to hit top form.

The Oak Hills golf team beat Woodruff yesterday, 19½ to 10½. Jimmy McGonagill set a course record of 67, breaking the mark of 68 which he made last year. Yesterday's match was the second of a series between the two clubs, Oak Hills now holding a lead of 43½ to 16½ in total points.

In the women's tournament which closed Saturday at Oak Hills, Miss Morrison beat Miss FitzGerald for the Class A championship, 4 and 3. In the Class B final, Mary McGillivary beat Bernice Cullen, 4 and 3. The medalist was Ann Conroy, who shot 86.

The North Shore league of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association played yesterday at Techny Fields. Mid-City beat Northbrook, 13½ to 4½; Big Oaks beat Vernon, 12½ to 5½; Elmgate beat Techny, 12 to 6; and Rob Roy won from Pickwick by default.

In an exhibition match played yesterday at Big Oaks before a gallery of TRIBUNE Golf school pupils Jack Sturm Jr. and Jack Gibson beat Jack Sturm and Jack Norton, 1 up. Sturm, the club professional, shot a 73, but his 19 year old son was close behind with 75. Gibson scored 77 and Norton 81.

An Evergreen team composed of Al Megeff, Bill Porter and Ray Hutchinson beat a Mid-City team of Norman Faunce, Joe Tivnan and Danny Taggert, 4 and 3, yesterday at Mid-City. This matevh also was played as an exhibition before TRIBUNE golf school pupils. Megeff made five birdies on the last six holes to finish with a score of 63, which is par. Porter shot 66, Hutchinson 70, Faunce 66, Tivnan 68, and Taggert 70.

AUSTRALIA BEATS JAPAN, 3 TO 0, IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

AUTEUIL, France, June 18.—(AP)—Australia's Davis cup tennis team advanced to the final round of European zone competition today, eliminating Japan, three matches to none.

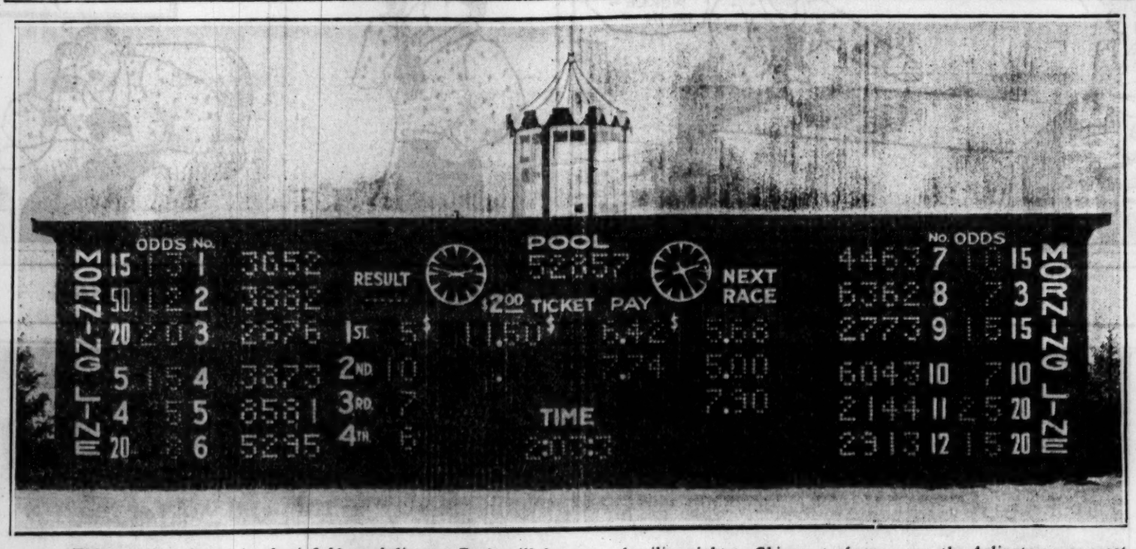
After the Australians had gained a two to nothing lead by winning the first two singles matches yesterday, Jack Crawford and Adrain Quist teamed up in the doubles today to beat R. Nunoi and Jiro Satoh, 7-5, 7-9, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, for the victory that definitely clinched the series.

Australia's rival in the European zone finals probably will be England, which gained a two to nothing lead over Czechoslovakia yesterday and needs only one more victory to clinch the series.

Driver Killed, 2 Others Hurt in Spanish Race

BARCELONA, June 18.—(AP)—Jose Maria Zabata, Spanish auto driver, participating in the 1,000 kilometer race around Catalonia, was killed today as his car overturned while rounding a curve. His mechanic, Luis Balmez, was critically injured. Esteban Fernandez was seriously injured when he turned the wheel of his car sharply to avoid hitting a child and overturned.

FLASHING THE PRICES TWO MINUTES AFTER RACE IS RUN



This totalizer board in the infield at Arlington Park will become a familiar sight to Chicago turfgoers once the Arlington race meeting opens next Monday. A crowd of 4,000 gathered yesterday for a demonstration of the $250,000 betting machine. This is the way the board read after the imaginary rerunning of the 1932 Classic. Numbers are used in place of names of horses, as on the odds boards at other tracks.

KERRY GAELIC TEAM WINS, 15-7, IN FINAL GAME

New York, June 18.—(AP)—Kerry, Ireland's champion Gaelic football team, wound up its American tour with a 15 to 7 victory over New York before a crowd of 18,000 in the Yankee stadium today.

New York put up a splendid fight in the first half to trail by only 10 to 6, but easily pulled away in the second half. Bill Kinnerk netted two goals and added two points for Kerry while Mike Duggan's five points led New York's attack.

Kerry, which sails for home Friday, won six games and drew one on the tour, scoring 95 points against 40 for the opposition.

Carnera Puts New Slant on Sharkey Bout

ors when they call one another harsh names. If the critic objected to the manner in which the various other parties fell down, and they performed a great variety of falls including some fancy variations of the celebrated Phil Scott giant swoon, that was within his province. But if he raised the sinister cry of phoney he laid his paper open to an action for libel. Did the dramtic critics yell phoney when the hero throws the leering heavy off the cliff?

What Is It?

I would be interested, however, and I think the prospective customers would appreciate a statement from Primo, to know whether his deal with Sharkey this month is intended to be a contest or an "exhibition." If it is to be a contest then certain tests may be applied to the event which would not be applicable to a mere exhibition. In the case of a contest the critic—and every customer is his own critic — may demand that the parties concerned put forth their best efforts to inflict the worst bodily harm possible under the rules. And custom and tradition impose upon the loser an unwritten obligation to stay in there and take his bumps until the end of his endurance has been reached or the last bell rings.

If this is to be an "exhibition," then, no matter how unconventional the outcome of the fight may be, no critic will have any right to impugn either the honesty or the courage of either young man, whereas in a fight there are many other matters to consider, including the betting odds. Nobody would wish to wager on a make-believe.

It is unfortunate that Primo takes such a gloomy view of his own future at a time when an outsider, looking upon his career, would reckon that he was just entering on an era of great prosperity.

What! Another Deal?

Primo has had a new deal, it seems, relieving himself of many managers who formerly partook of his earnings. He has placed himself under the management of Mr. Bill Duffy, a business associate of Mr. Owen Madden. Just at present Mr. Madden is away, but another parole is pending and it will be the hope of all sport lovers that upon his return to circulation he will renew, through Primo, his happy contributions to the advancement of chivalry and honest competition in the prize fight business.

Max Baer apparently is the one fighter who has hit upon the ideal solution of the problem of money. Primo goes bankrupt after several years of large earnings, Benny Leonard returned to the ring after the panic struck and within the last year the dispatches have related a tragedy in the decline of fortunes of Jess Willard. As to Mr. Willard's misfortune there were some in the prize fight business who recalled characteristics of that amiable soul and thought the news to good to be true.

Max Baer, however, has found a way to minimize money troubles, having signed away, according to his manager's estimate, approximately 75 per cent of his earnings. Litigation, taxes, and the incidental expenses of living the part of a good fellow should relieve him of the other 25 per cent and bring him to the end of his career just even if not less so. The man with no money has no money troubles.

Two Hurt in Boat Races at Fair Lagoon

Two men were hurt and several spills occurred in the outboard motorboat races at A Century of Progress yesterday. The races, sponsored by the National Outboard association, were held in the north lagoon.

Those hurt were Harold Bloomfield, 22 years old, 340 Elm place, Highland Park, a student at the University of Illinois, whose boat was overturned by the swells caused by other boats, and C. Walle, 33 years old, 5204 Quincy street, was burned about the chest when his boat struck one of the markers on the course. Bloomfield was thrown against his motor and suffered a leg injury.

The fastest time was made in the five mile race for professionals in which Walter Everett of Tulsa, Okla., averaged 46.63 miles an hour. Horace Tennes of Chicago averaged 45.32 miles an hour in the amateur five mile heat.

Summaries:

4,000 TURN OUT AT ARLINGTON TO SEE TOTALIZER

Bets Are Free; Machine Meets Every Test.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A phantom horse race was offered at the fashionable Arlington Park race course yesterday afternoon, and much to the amazement of the Arlington Park officials a crowd of more than 4,000 stood through a blazing sun to watch it run.

Each fan had a handful of tickets to show that he had bet on one horse or another. They didn't pay for these betting tickets, however. The crowd had come out to see and to help test the new American totalizer—the wagering machine which for the first time on any race course in the world will be introduced at Arlington Park when the summer season opens there one week from this afternoon. The machine is electrical, while all previous totalizers have depended on some sort of mechanical device.

It Works Perfectly.

The machine, with its more than 250 miles of cable wire, its huge batteries of electrical devices, its hundreds of bulbs blinking from four large display boards, worked to perfection and did everything but talk to the crowd. If the totalizer works as well during Arlington's big meeting when, on some afternoons, it will be asked to register nearly a million dollars in wagers, it promises to revolutionize race track betting everywhere.

Its installation at Arlington cost $250,000, but from the way President Otto W. Lehmann, Charles McCulloch, chairmen of the board, and a large group of the Arlington directors smiled after its first public reception late yesterday afternoon, they considered it a splendid investment.

They were confident that at last a machine has been perfected which takes away all of the shadowy mysteries which have so often surrounded pari-mutuel betting, thus letting the public witness every move made from the time of the first wager until the last odds are compounded.

The race on which the test was made was a supposed re-running of last year's Arlington Classic. Programs were distributed throughout the crowd showing the names and the numbers of each horse starting in the race. Then for 20 minutes the mutuel selling windows were thrown open and the public was asked to start wagering.

It Is Fun to Bet This Way.

The extreme pleasure of betting $100 or $500 on one of the horses could be had for the asking. Tickets for these "free" wagers were printed by the simple motion of the ticket seller pressing a button when you told him the number of the horse you wanted to wager on.

An instant later the wagers were clicked up by the electric totalizer and the resultant odds shown on the four display boards. The change in odds was almost simultaneous with the purchase of each individual ticket. After 20 minutes of this imaginary betting the shout came from the loud speaker system "They're off!" A key in the steward's stand was turned and instantly all power was shut off, making it impossible for another ticket to be sold anywhere in the grounds.

Through the loud speaker came the call of the race and finally the winner—Gusto, with Stepenfetchit second and Evergold third.

All Prices in Two Minutes.

Two minutes were allowed for the horses to be brought back and unsaddled and for the jockeys to weigh in. At the end of the two minutes, when the "official" sign flashed on the board, the official mutuel prices, complete for straight, place, and show, blinked out from the electrical board.

The totalizer had handled an imaginary $52,000 and had worked to such perfection and with such rapidity that it fairly stunned the crowd.

BRITISH AMATEUR GOLF OPENS AT HOLYOKE TODAY

HOYLAKE, England, June 18.—(AP)—Out of a near record field of 269, British golfing critics tonight selected an American, George Dunlap; a Canadian, C. Ross Somerville; a Scotsman, Jack McLean, and an Englishman, Cyril Tolley, to fight it out for the British amateur championship, opening tomorrow over the Royal Liverpool club's layout.

Somerville's play and personality have impressed critical British golfers; Tolley's chequered links career has entered a new phase of brilliant play, and Dunlap's Walker cup record and his new pretournament practice make him one of the favorites.

It is upon McLean, however, that most of the speculation has centered. Unknown internationally, Jack leads a band of hopeful Scots determined that the title shall rest north of the Tweed for the first time since Bob Harris won in 1925.

With the defending champion, John De Forest, playing erratically this season, McLean is the old country's best hope against Dunlap, Somerville, who holds the United States amateur crown, and Tolley, who has played most of his golf the last two years in America.

Hildebrand, Harder Stop Boston Batters.

Cleveland, O., June 18.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians shut out the Boston Red Sox in a double header today, winning, 7 to 0, in the first game and 4 to 0 in the second.

Oral Hildebrand pitched his tenth victory and fifth shutout of the season in the first game, holding the Red Sox batters to three singles. Only one opponent, Gooch, reached second base. Lloyd Brown started for Boston and was replaced in the last of the third by Bob Kline.

Mel Harder, winning pitcher in the second contest, yielded eight hits but kept them scattered. Bob Weiland, starting for the Red Sox, was pounded for 12 hits in six innings. Score:

Pirates Take DoubleHeader from Braves

Boston, Mass., June 18.—(AP)—The Braves opened a home stay by losing a double header to the Pirates today, 5 to 3 and 4 to 3. The second game was called at the end of the eighth to comply with the Sunday law.

Ed Brandt was greeted by a five run attack in the first inning of the opener and was relieved by Leo Mangum, who held the Pirates scoreless the remainder of the game. Wally Berger hit his 12th homer of the year in the sixth for the Braves.

CARDINALS, REDS SPLIT.

Cincinnati, O., June 18.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to victory in a one-sided contest with the Cincinnati Reds today, 13 to 1, and then was marked up as the losing pitcher in the second game of a double header, which the Reds won, 6 to 5. Dean pitched only the eighth inning of the second game, during which Cincinnati scored the winning run. After two were out, Bottomley's single to left, Hafey's infield out and Rice's single to right brought the Reds the needed run. Score:

GEHRINGER GIVES UP TEXTBOOKS TO PLAY FOR TIGERS

Ability as Amateur Paves Way Into Majors—and He's Still There.

(This is the sixth of a series of sketches of players who will take part in the game of the century between stars of the National and American leagues at Comiskey park July 6.)

Charley Gehringer, the Detroit Tiger second baseman, who will guard that post for the American leaguers in their battle with the National league all stars here July 6, didn't seek the major leagues. He didn't have to. The majors went right out and yanked him in before the young man really could get started on a college education. He had planned after obtaining an education to turn to professional ball, a career that had been in the back of his head since the day he could first get his chin up to the top of the kitchen table.

Charley was born at Fowlerville, Mich. Like most kids, he did his share of corner lot ball playing. When his prep days were over he looked around for a college and there was the University of Michigan at his back door. He enrolled in physical education and went through the first year.

Michigan Loses Candidate; Majors Get a Star.

Gehringer decided to spend the summer playing amateur ball on returning home after his freshman year. That is what led him to the short cut into the majors. It also took a pretty fair candidate from Michigan's baseball squad although no one knew it at the time.

His amateur games finally placed him in a county fair baseball tournament. Teams in the affair loaded up with ringers, including several active big leaguers. Among these was Bobby Veach, then more or less famed as a Tiger outfielder. Veach watched the tall boy perform at third base and suddenly realized he had stumbled onto something worth while.

Veach lost no time getting to the office of Frank Navin, owner of the Tigers. Veach was all out of breath but managed to sputter that he had run across the find of a century. Mr. Navin had heard that speech so often he laughed in the face of his employé, but in the end decided that he might as well find out whether Veach was a good or bad judge of budding talent. Gehringer was summoned. He signed a contract. That marked the end of his student days.

Spends Only Two Seasons in Minor League.

Gehringer went south with the Tigers in the spring of 1924 fully expecting that he would have to go through the customary minor league seasoning. Ty Cobb watched him for a few days and declared he had the makings of a great second baseman. The youngster was shipped to the London, Ont., club for a season and then to the Toronto team for another. When he came back he was ready and has been the Tigers' regular second baseman since then.

Gehringer's all time American league batting average is around .315. In 1929 he made 215 hits and in the following season he came through with 201. Because of a bad shoulder he failed to display his usual ability in 1931, but started to come back in 1932. This season he has been playing up to the Gehringer standard.

Mr. Gehringer Doesn't Talk About Himself.

Charley is the quiet type of ball player. Although having had a year of university life at Ann Arbor and having worked as assistant librarian at the Fowlerville library, he talks in monosyllables, especially when being interviewed concerning his own career. Possibly there is no more modest player in the major leagues. And he never has smoked, chewed, or drank. But he does love baseball.

SPARTA SQUARES PEEL CUP SERIES WITH SWEDES, 5-1

Sparta defeated the Swedish-Americans in the second game of the Peel Cup soccer competition at Sparta stadium yesterday, 5 to 1, to even the series. The Swedish-Americans won the first game a week ago.

The third game will be played at De Paul field, but the date will not be set until the Peel cup commission meets this week.

Sparta started to score early in the first half despite the fact that it was playing against the wind and sun. Baba Vicek scored twice on passes from the right wing and Petrik counted the third Bohemian goal. Kid Johnson made the only Swedish goal near the end of the opening period.

Vicek increased Sparta's lead midway in the second period. Petrik was responsible for the fifth score.

HIBBEN'S WIDOW DIES OF INJURIES CAUSED BY CRASH

Educator Husband Killed in Same Accident.

New York, June 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Jenny Hibben, widow of Dr. John Grier Hibben, former president of Princeton university, died in the Neurological institute at Medical Center today of injuries received in the same automobile accident in which her husband was fatally injured last May. She was 70 years old.

Her death was attributed to fractures of the skull and pelvis, and to pneumonia. She had not been told of her husband's death.

At the bedside when the end came were her brother, William N. Davidson of Elizabeth, N. J., and her daughter, Mrs. Robert Scoon of Princeton.

The accident occurred at a street intersection in Woodbridge, N. J., on the afternoon of May 16, while the couple was enroute to visit Davidson. Dr. Hibben, who was 72, was driving an automobile presented him by the trustees of the university at his retirement in 1932.

The Hibben automobile was going north when struck by a south bound truck. Authorities said the automobile was on the wrong side of the road after the crash and physicians expressed the belief the educator might have lost control of the machine after a heart attack.

Unaware of His Death.

Mrs. Hibben, unconscious, was taken to the Rahway Memorial hospital, but later was transferred to the Neurological institute. Physicians pronounced her condition critical and forbade any one to tell her of her husband's death because they thought the shock might be fatal.

Dr. and Mrs. Hibben, the former Jenny Davidson of Elizabeth, N. J., were married in 1887 and had only the one child.

The educator retired on the 50th anniversary of his graduation from the university and after 40 years in the service of the institution. They continued to reside in Princeton.

He was succeeded as acting president by Dr. Edward R. Duffield.

HOMEOPATHS TO FORM POLICY ON CHARITY CASES

Coöperation between physicians' societies and welfare groups was the subject of discussion yesterday as physicians from all over the country arrived for the opening of the 89th annual convention of the American Institute of Homeopathy at the Morrison hotel today. The cost of medical care and the question of organized medicine taking action to prevent the care of the indigent from coming under political control has caused the appointment of a committee to formulate a general policy to control homeopaths in dealing with charity cases. The Pan-American Congress of Homeopathy is also assembled for its convention today.

The American Surgical Trade association opens a three day convention at the Drake hotel this morning. On its program are addresses by John N. Van Der Vries, western manager of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

NEGROPATRIARCH IS DEAD AT 102; 34 YEARS A SLAVE

Oscar Brenhan, 102 years old, a colored man who spent 34 years of his life in slavery, died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lenora Brewer, 45 years old at 220 East 46th street.

Mrs. Brewer said her father was born in Oxford, Ga., in 1831. He was sold with his whole family, 15 in number, to a wealthy sugar cane raiser when he was 8 years old. For 26 years he worked in slavery for the same family, but with the close of the civil war he was freed.

"They gave him a piece of ground on the same plantation, near Hunter Springs, Miss.," Mrs. Brewer said. "And he lived there, raising what he could, until four years ago, when he came to Chicago."

Eleven children were reared by Brenhan and his wife, Elizabeth, but only four of them are alive today. The wife died several years ago.

"We don't know much about my father's early life," Mrs. Brewer said. "But he was a wise old man and all the colored folks around where he lived went to him for advice when they were in trouble."

Youths Saved from Lake After Canoe Capsizes

Two youths were rescued from the lake yesterday after their canoe capsized 1 mile off Foster avenue. They are Alvin Anderson, 22 years old, 4835 Ravenswood avenue, and Frank Olson, 21, of 2117 Summerdale avenue. Neither attempted to swim, but clung to the bottom of their overturned craft until a speed boat operated by M. Hughes rescued them.

Son of B. C. Forbes, Publisher, Dies in Accident

Nyack, N. Y., June 18.—[Special.]—Duncan Forbes, 16, son of B. C. Forbes, publisher of Forbes magazine, was killed today when an automobile in which he was riding with his brother, Bruce, 18, overturned on a curve at South Nyack. The older boy escaped without injury.

GEN. GARRITY, RETIRING, TO BE GIVEN BANQUET

In recognition of his 44 years of service in the Illinois National Guard, friends of Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity, who, having reached the statutory age of 64, has announced his retirement from active duty, will hold a banquet in his honor next Wednesday at the 132d Infantry armory, 2653 West Madison street.

Gen. Garrity enlisted as a private in the National Guard in 1889 and was promoted to colonel of the Second Infantry in 1918. The same year he resigned his position as auditor in the postal service to become chief of police, which office he held for two years. He was appointed as brigadier general in 1924.

Serving actively in three military campaigns, Gen. Garrity was in Cuba during the Spanish-American war and was detailed to the Mexican border when hostilities broke out there. He was colonel of the 132d regiment during the world war. The general is unmarried and makes his home with a sister and brother at 1918 Clifton Park avenue.

J. B. CRAWFORD DIES SUDDENLY ON 'L' PLATFORM

John Blair Crawford, 51 years old, assistant general manager of the Pacific Fruit Express company, dropped dead last night while waiting for a North Shore train on the Rapid Transit Lines platform at Randolph street and Wabash avenue. It is believed a heart attack was responsible.

Mr. Crawford had been out playing golf at Lakeside, Mich., with several friends, including Elliott Evans, attorney and brother of Chick Evans, golf star. Evans told police that he last saw Crawford alive at the elevated station.

Mr. Crawford lived at 1226 Glendenning road, Kenilworth. He was a widower. Surviving him are a son, John Blair Crawford Jr., who was graduated from Evanston High school last week, and a daughter, Mrs. Cletus W. Bowers, whose husband is associated with the fruit express company. Mr. Crawford was a member of several Chicago clubs, including the Adventurers' and Union League.

Capt. Wright's Body Lies in State in Library Hall

The body of Capt. William P. Wright, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, lay in state yesterday in Memorial hall of the public library, where his fellow veterans will conduct funeral services at 1 o'clock today. Religious services will follow at 2:30 o'clock in Trinity Episcopal church, Michigan avenue and 26th street, and the body will be taken to Naperville, Capt. Wright's birthplace, for burial. Capt. Wright, whose home was at 619 Woodland park, died Thursday in Pittsburgh, where he had gone to speak at the encampment of the Pennsylvania G. A. R. He was 88 years old.

Mrs. Mary Judson Allen, 78, Dies in Evanston Home

Mrs. Mary Judson Allen, 78 years old, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wentworth Mackenzie, 1612 Wesley avenue, Evanston. She was the widow of Charles B. Allen, who at the time of his death four years ago was western representative of the United States Rubber company. Funeral services for Mrs. Allen will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the residence. Burial will be at Rosehill cemetery.

Dr. F. L. Gates of Harvard Medical School Dies

Cambridge, Mass., June 18.—(AP)—Dr. Frederic L. Gates, 46, Harvard lecturer and medical research expert, who was found unconscious beside research apparatus in the university biological laboratory last Thursday, died tonight. Hospital authorities said that apparently he had fainted and had fractured his skull as he fell. He failed to regain consciousness before he died.

Dies of Burns Received When Cigaret Starts Fire

William P. Bond, 31 years old, a waiter, died last night in the Belmont hospital of burns received on June 8 in a fire in his home at 5718 Diversey avenue. The fire occurred when he fell asleep smoking a cigaret.

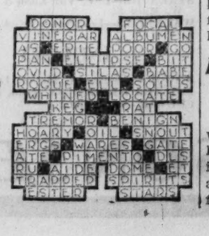
SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



D. W. LONGSTREET IS DEAD; FORMER OFFICIAL OF I. C.

Retired After 44 Years' Railway Service.

Retired in 1931.

Mr. Longstreet retired from the Illinois Central Nov. 30, 1931, after 44 years of continuous service. Most of his railroad career was in the traffic division. He joined the system as a clerk at Holly Springs, Miss., went to New Orleans, Memphis, and Louisville, and finally came to Chicago in 1911 as freight traffic manager. In 1920 Mr. Longstreet was made traffic manager of passenger as well as freight traffic, and in 1928 was elevated to vice president in charge of traffic. He was born at Coffeeville, Miss.

Funeral to Be Today.

Surviving Mr. Longstreet are his widow, Julia, and a son, Gilberty W. Longstreet of Boston, and a daughter, Mrs. W. Harris Stevens Jr. of Philadelphia. Funeral services will be held at 5 p. m. today at the University Church of the Disciples, 57th street and University avenue. Burial will be at the Cave Hill cemetery, Louisville, tomorrow.

CARDINAL LEADS DEDICATION RITES AT NEW CHURCH

The new $500,000 St. Sabina's Catholic church at 78th place and Throop streets was dedicated yesterday morning by Cardinal Mundelein. Coming as a surprise to the pastor, the Rev. T. F. Egan, founder of the parish in 1916 and builder of the new edifice, was his unexpected elevation to domestic prelacy with the title of the right reverend monsignor. The date o the dedication of the church coincided with Msgr. Egan's 34th anniversary as a priest. Bishop Bernard J. Sheil of the Chicago archdiocese celebrated the pontifical mass and the sermon was preached by Bishop James A. Griffin of Springfield.

GRAIN TRADERS WEIGH EFFECTS OF PROCESS TAX

Fear Measure Will Depress Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Economists who have made an analysis of the farm relief act, with its processing tax on wheat, are not inclined to place as bearish a construction on this radical piece of legislation as do many in the grain trade. The proposed tax does not apply to the entire crop, but only to that portion which enters into domestic consumption and the wheat is free to change hands without the tax being imposed until such time as millers and others start to process the grain for consumption.

Fears that the measure will prove to be a depressing influence, it is said, comes largely from the fact it may decrease speculative interest in the market and may also cause a possible reduction in consumption.

As the farm relief act was designed primarily to give farmers a better price for their wheat and at the same time disturb the normal course of the grain business as little as possible, those who know Secretary of Agriculture Wallace best are not fearful for the future.

Crop Under Requirements.

The United States may harvest an aggregate wheat crop of 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels less than the average normal home requirements this season unless weather conditions change for the better immediately, according to the belief in some quarters. Threshing returns from Kansas received Saturday suggested much grain was light weight. It is believed that the outcome of the spring wheat crop will be largely determined by weather conditions the next two weeks.

Between the conflicting influences the trade looks for rapid price changes in the wheat market. Closing trades Saturday showed net losses of 2½ to 2¾ cents as compared with the previous week, with the July closing at 73⅞ to 74 cents; September, 75⅞ to 76 cents and December at 78¼ to 78⅝ cents. Range of prices follow:

	July.	September.	December
Monday	75⅝-77¼	77⅝-80	80 -82¼
Tuesday	76⅝-77¾	78¾-80	81 -82½

Corn Becomes Weather Market.

Lack of subsoil moisture over the greater part of the corn belt west of the Missouri river and unfavorable weather conditions for planting east of the river has resulted in the corn market becoming a weather affair.

As near as can be estimated there is around 45,000,000 acres of corn in the area where a lack of subsoil moisture is reported or where there has been deficient rainfall this spring, with 25,000,000 acres or more in the section where rainfall was excessive and planting late. The uneven distribution of the rainfall is expected to result in a relatively small crop in one area or the other. Corn closed Saturday ⅝ to 1 cent lower than the previous week with July finishing at 44⅞ to 45 cents, September 48⅜ cents, and December at 51⅛ to 51¼ cents. Prices follow:

Oats Badly Damaged.

Irreparable damage is reported to the oats crop as the result of continued hot and dry weather at the critical period of growth. Prices advanced during the last week in response to this news to the highest levels for futures since July, 1931. Weather conditions of the next week or two are expected to determine whether the yield will be a small or fair one. The prospect of a good return per acre is regarded as having vanished. Oats finished ½ to ⅝ cent higher for the week with July at 29⅜ to 29⅞ cents; September, 31⅛ to 31¼ cents and December, 32¾ to 32⅞ cents. Range of prices follow:

Illinois Job Record Best in 11 Years

Employment in Illinois increased 2.4 per cent and pay rolls 8 per cent from April 15 to May 15, 1933, according to reports to the Illinois department of labor from 1,610 manufacturing and non-manufacturing establishments of the state.

These firms employed 272,802 wage earners in May and paid out each week a total of $5,555,528 in wages. The gains were the largest shown for any month since May, 1922.

The manufacturing establishments of the state, numbering 1,069, employing 169,548 wage earners in May, and disbursing weekly $3,035,707 in wages, showed increases of 3.7 per cent in employment and 10.9 per cent in pay-rolls. These gains were the largest shown by the records of the department of labor, which extend back to 1922.

Gain In Employment.

Increases of four-tenths of one per cent in employment and 4.6 per cent in pay rolls were shown during the period by 541 nonmanufacturing firms employing 103,254 wage-earners in May and paying out $2,519,821 in wages.

On the other hand, as shown by the index series, employment in all reporting industries in May, 1933, was 4.8 per cent below the level of May, 1932, and pay rolls were 10.7 per cent below those of a year ago. The manufacturing industries were mainly responsible for the May employment and pay roll gains, since eight of the nine manufacturing groups increased pay rolls, and seven also increased employment.

Building Report Good.

Reporting building and contracting firms showed the sharpest gains from April 15 to May 15, advancing employment 31.7 per cent and pay rolls 51.5 per cent.

Weekly earnings for May for both sexes combined averaged $20.36 for all reporting industries. For the manufacturing industries they averaged $17.90 and for nonmanufacturing industries $24.40

TRADE MEETINGS WILL ACT ON NEW INDUSTRIAL LAW

Application of the provisions of the national industrial recovery act to their activities will be the principal subject which will be considered by a number of trade associations at conventions here during the week. Members of the Associated Retail Confectioners of the United States will start their seventeenth annual convention at the Edgewater Beach hotel this morning. Attorney Walter C. Hughes will analyze the act for this group.

The American Foundrymen's association will begin a five day session at the Stevens hotel today. The workings of the industrial act will be discussed at four group conferences. An activity of this convention will be an exhibit of new and improved materials for plant and product betterment.

Members of the National Macaroni Manufacturers association, who open their thirteenth annual convention at the Edgewater Beach hotel this morning, will develop a plan to enable the macaroni and noodle manufacturers to operate under the new industrial act. Provisions of the farm relief act likewise apply to this industry.

Corn Products Will Act on Dividend During Week

New York, June 18.—Dividend meetings are scheduled for this week by the following companies, among others: Alaska Juneau, Corn Products Refining, Reading company, Pullman, Inc., U. S. Smelting, Refining and Mining, and Otis Elevator.

William R. Stuart & Co. Move to Larger Offices

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU TO AID ON TRADE CODES

Bruce MacLeish, president of the Chicago Better Business bureau announced yesterday that the bureau is prepared to advise trade organizations and industrial groups in their efforts to formulate codes of fair practice under the industrial recovery act and to obtain observance of these codes.

The bureau's service will be available to Chicago firms, to firms having principal offices here, and to trade groups of which they are members, it was announced. The bureau's assistance will be limited largely to those sections of codes dealing with advertising, selling and related problems of distribution.

"It is expected that the advisory assistance of the Better Business Bureau at this time will prove of special aid to business in its preparations to comply with and take advantage of the provisions of the industrial recovery act," Mr. MacLeish said.

April Airplane Production Exceeds Any Month in '33

Gimbel Brothers Sell 1,000 Refrigerators in Week

Gimbel Brothers of Philadelphia announced yesterday that in only seven business days ended May 22 the firm sold in excess of 1,000 Kelvinator electric refrigerators.

Survey Shows How Farmers Expect to Buy

According to a survey made recently of 100 farms by an eastern Iowa farm record association, the first profits from the higher level of live stock prices will be spent for clothing, automobiles, household appliances, paint, fencing, and machinery repairs rather than to retire debts, other than taxes. The association adds that farmers look for higher prices and intend to buy such goods that they believe will not depreciate as much as money.

Purchasing has been low for a long time, and a big increase in farm buying is in the offing, the association believes. Also, the farmers say in their reports, that they believe by buying manufactured goods now they contribute to the impetus of returning business in the industrial centers and thereby help to expand the consumer demand for farm products.

Reports indicate a marked pickup in the poultry business in various parts of the country, notwithstanding the current low level of prices of eggs. More than 1,400,000 chicks were purchased by dealers in Salt Lake City, Utah, this spring. Until this spring poultry raising in Utah had declined steadily since 1930. Predictions were made that prices have reached the bottom. That state expects a 15 to 20 per cent increase in the poultry business this year.

ADMINISTRATION DELAYS ACTION ON SUGAR DUTIES

Washington, D. C., June 18.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration has postponed action on sugar tariffs pending a full study of proposals for the establishment of a trade marketing agreement covering the industry, which will begin formally within a few days.

It was disclosed tonight that upon the suggestion of the White House the tariff commission has decided to delay presentation of its report covering more than a year's investigation of sugar duties and containing recommendations for changes.

Within ten days representatives of the sugar industry, including domestic cane and beet growers and manufacturers, and those representing Hawaii, the Philippines, Puerto Rico, and Cuba, will meet with Secretary Wallace to begin formal consideration of an agreement under which it is proposed that quotas would be fixed for each of them. Each would be assured a definite portion of the American market.

Several Leading Paint Firms Increase Prices

Several leading paint manufacturers are increasing prices of their product this week to the extent of five to twenty cents a gallon, or seven to ten per cent. The advances reflect higher raw material costs.

U. S. Has $3,331,811,600 of Issues Maturing in Year

STEEL INDUSTRY CONTINUES RISE; OUTPUT AT 49%

No District Reports a Recession.

Still vitalized by the same factors that have more than tripled the rate since March, steel operations rose another point to 49 per cent last week, and are expected to reach 50 per cent this week, for the first time since April, 1931, says the magazine Steel.

In no district is there a recession, though the momentum of advance is possibly at a slower pace than in early June, says the magazine. The Chicago district gained 4 points to 45 per cent, according to the magazine.

Pittsburgh steel works continue to light blast furnaces, and in three weeks of June, eleven stacks will have resumed activity, Steel reports.

Tin Plate Near Capacity.

The magazine declares that tin plate mill operations are now 90 to 95 per cent, "with all independent mills in the Pittsburgh district at capacity."

"Steel makers are approaching the third quarter with more confidence than when they entered the second," observes Steel. "July promises to set aside the traditional summer letdown in steel.

"General expectation of price advances in third quarter is leading consumers to specify to the limit of second quarter contracts, which mills have until July 15 to complete. This is accelerating the volume of current business. But lack of definite price policies beyond July make it difficult for consumers with known requirements to cover for the full period."

Book at Present Prices.

The magazine reports that "some of the leading steelmakers are willing to book new contracts for practically all their products, except sheets, for shipment before Aug. 1, at present prices, with clauses giving them the right to revise in the event of wage or freight increases."

Possibilities for new demands are shaping up in three fields: governmental and public works, railroads, and the oil industry.

The government is obtaining bids on postoffice projects for the first time in three months. Supplementing the federal construction plans, public works programs are taking form for early action in many cities and states.

Rails Near Buying Point.

"Railroads are nearing the point where they will be able to make heavier commitments for general repair purposes," says Steel. "Weekly car loadings now are estimated at 550,000 to 600,000, and some steelmakers figure that at 700,000, 75 per cent of class I roads will be in the profit area."

Two National Groups to Aid Closed Banks

New York, June 18.—(AP)—Joint action by the Committee for the Nation and the National Depositors committee for a country-wide extension of efforts to reopen closed banks was announced today. Vincent Bendix will represent the Committee for the Nation and Frank H. Schrenk, Philadelphia banker, the National Depositors committee.

"It should be emphasized that neither of the two organizations is in favor of opening unsound banks," said Bendix and Schrenk in a statement. "But both recognize that bank deposits constitute the nation's important medium of exchange, and that restoration of prosperity is dependent largely upon releasing the purchasing power which remains paralyzed in some 5,000 closed banks with deposits approximating 5 billion dollars.

Huge Buying Power.

"Five billions in deposits, spread among approximately 20 million depositors, if released and expanded by normal operation of credit, will represent a tremendous addition to the purchasing power of the nation.

"One immediate effect of this will be a rebuilding of the assets now frozen which are back of the deposits. For that reason it is the contention of both the Committee for the Nation and the National Depositors committee that we must have a reversal of the policy heretofore followed by the R. F. C., the federal reserve, and the United States treasury, which has been to treat these assets on the basis of their current market value."

The depositors committee, the statement said, has drawn up an 11 point program to be presented to President Roosevelt by a committee headed by A. Mitchell Palmer, former attorney general, asking for a 100 per cent reopening of banks operating under restrictions and for payment of a substantial amount—estimated at 60 per cent—to depositors in banks closed before the holiday.

Method of Procedure.

"The method proposed," the statement continued, "is for the government, through any one of several agencies now qualified, to take over all the assets of the closed banks and to make immediate payment to the depositors of the amount determined. Any assets remaining in any bank may then be disposed of to another banking institution, if a satisfactory bid can be obtained, or liquidated over a period of years by the government agency.

"The program of the National Depositors committee calls for the formation of member committees in each of the twelve federal reserve districts. Organization of these committees is already well under way. Mass meetings are being held and planned throughout the country in order that depositors may present a united front and a concrete program when their case is laid before the President."

LONG EXPECTED CHECK TO STOCK MART ARRIVES

Wall St. Welcomes Pause in Advance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 18.—The last week brought what Wall street had long been looking for—a halt in the big spring advance of the stock market. In the parlance of the street, however, it was merely a "corrective readjustment" and resulted, as it were, in a timely trimming of excess cargo.

Rather than perturbing the speculative community, the downturn was welcomed by all concerned, and from all accounts the fervor of the bulls has not been dampened. This was evidenced by the recovery in the last two sessions of the week, after the market had dipped to its sharpest angle on Thursday.

Break as Parley Opens.

While the need for technical correction was seen as the underlying cause of the recession, the break in the advance was brought to its sharpest stage by developments at the London economic conference, particularly as regards currency stabilization, the fact that the market started its decline almost coincidentally with the opening of the conference gave rise to belief that the bullish contingent was ready to take a vacation while the depression doctors go about their consultations.

But if the bulls have decided to retire from the scene—and there are no convincing indications that they have—it will be only a temporary hibernation, for there has been no dispelling of the general belief that the major trend of speculative markets is upward. According to reliable statistics, nearly 25 per cent of the spring gains were washed away in four days of active selling, but the bulls are undaunted. From present indications the reaction can double last week's losses without changing Wall street's ideas that a major movement for the rise is on.

A Busy Week.

The week was crowded with events having a weighty bearing on the market, including the adjournment of congress, inauguration of the government's recovery program, steadily improving business reports, and war debt developments, the latter issue being left in a stalemate.

These events, however, were forced into the background of speculative influences, for the dollar remained the market's favorite pilot. Reports from the London parley that a truce was in prospect in the depreciated currencies war—pegging the dollar and the pound—touched off sufficient selling to subject the stock market to the first real test of its technical soundness since

The Northern Trust Company

THIS institution has held since 1889 that its relationships with its customers, both large and small, should be close, direct. Ease of contact between customer and banker, especially desirable today, is encouraged in the compact organization of The Northern Trust Company. It is furthered by the alterations the company is making in its banking home.

An example is the newly completed Banking Mezzanine, where customers may confer in even more comfortable surroundings with the Senior Banking and Divisional Officers.

Improvements have been made also in the Main Banking Room on the Second Floor of The Northern Trust Company's home. Here you will find additional tellers, increased public space.

Similar changes are under way now in the Savings Department. These, when completed about July 1, will make for even greater convenience for all savings customers.

Heads of businesses, families and individuals to whom this personalized kind of banking seems of value, are invited to bring their business to the bank. The time and the experience of its personnel, including that of its officers, is at your command.

U. S. CONSIDERING WHAT TO DO WITH BRITISH SILVER

Most of It May Be Used to Expand Currency.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—How much new currency will be issued backed by silver bullion paid by Great Britain as an installment on its war debt will soon be determined by the treasury and it is possible that all of it will be employed for that purpose. Great Britain made a $10,000,000 payment with 20,000,000 ounces of silver which, under the Thomas inflation amendment, was received by this country at 50 cents an ounce. When coined, this amount of silver would be sufficient for an issue of 25,968,000 silver dollars. Under existing law it could be used for the backing of a similar amount of silver certificates. If this procedure is followed out, the $10,000,000 payment credited to the account of Great Britain would result in an expansion of the silver-backed currency by more than twice that total.

Study Thomas Amendment.

Experts of the treasury are studying the Thomas amendment before adoption of a policy. It specifically provides that the silver shall be used to back issues of silver certificates in the amount of the debt payment and it is believed that it may also permit the coining of any of the bullion remaining to back silver certificates provided for in the other statutes.

In addition to the 20 million ounces paid by Great Britain, which is now in the Bank of Bombay awaiting shipment to this country, other nations paid an additional 2,270,000 ounces in silver on their war debts, and full advantage of this bullion also could be taken as backing for silver certificates.

Total Silver Dollars.

At the end of May there were $540,607,703 standard silver dollars in the money stocks of the country. Of the amount $507,135,882 were held in the treasury, $4,868,586 by the federal reserve banks, and $8,003,235 in circulation.

The stock of silver certificates was $479,058,859 May 31, the federal reserve banks holding $120,231,346 and $358,827,513 being in circulation. There has been little change in the circulation of silver certificates or silver dollars in the past several years.

Total stocks of subsidiary silver in the country May 31 amounted to $302,054,706. Of that amount $11,824,493 was in the treasury, $33,192,038 in the reserve banks, and $257,038,176 in circulation.

CONTINENTAL CAN PAY ROLL HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

New York, June, 18.—[Special.]—Continental Can Co., Inc., now has in excess of 9,000 employés on its pay roll, or 700 more than it employed at the same time last year. Since March 1 it has added 1,000 employés, an increase of 12½ per cent, Carle C. Conway, chairman of the board, stated today.

This improvement is scattered among the company's 38 plants, and applies to practically all sections of the country, but is most pronounced on the Pacific coast and in New Orleans, Syracuse, Baltimore, Wheeling, and Canonsburg, Pa., he added.

"The reaction of the can making and canning industries to the administration's recently announced economic policies has been decidedly favorable," Mr. Conway declared. "Recently conditions have improved appreciably in these industries. Sales of canned goods by the canners have increased and particularly those on future contracts in anticipation of higher prices for this year's pack."

SUN OIL COMPANY TO PAY 50 CENTS A BARRELFORCRUDE

Dallas, Tex., June 18.—(AP)—Dallas Officials of the Sun Oil company announced today the company would pay 50 cents a barrel for east Texas petroleum effective tomorrow.

This action placed the Sun company in line with Magnolia, Stanolind, East Texas Refining company and the Prairie-Sinclair company, purchasers in the Mid-Continent field, who have announced price hikes in the last few days.

The Sun company also adopted a gravity schedule for the gulf coast and also, increasing prices there in line with those announced by other companies.

GENERAL WHOLESALE PRICE AVERAGE MOVES UP FOR THIRD MONTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—The general level of wholesale prices in May as computed by the department of labor showed the third successive increase in recent months, the average advance as compared with the previous month being 3 8-10 per cent, according to a study made public today by the bureau of labor statistics. The increase since February has been nearly 5 per cent and the complete list, covering 784 commodities or price series, weighed as to the importance of each to the broad picture, reached a point only 2½ per cent under May, 1932.

The rise in prices after many months of decline has been most pronounced since the administration's program for economic recovery began to take form. The farm products group showed the greatest advance, an increase of almost 13 per cent between April and May. The increases included average prices of grains, livestock, cotton, eggs, lemons, oranges, hay, fresh milk, peanuts, tobacco, dried beans, sweet potatoes and wool. Decreases were in fresh apples, onions, and white potatoes.

The next largest increase was in the hides and leather products group, which showed an advance of about 11 per cent for the month, with hides and skins rising nearly 50 per cent. Textile products also advanced sharply, rising nearly 8 per cent from April to May.

the recovery was launched, while the dollar rose against other monies. Washington's denial of any such dollar pegging agreement brought recovery in stock and other speculative markets and lower dollars.

The troublesome matter of currency stabilization remains shrouded in doubt and confusion, but it was assumed that some sort of accord will be arranged, at least for the duration of the conference. Thus left without a cue in this direction, stock and other traders may be expected to turn from blind speculation grounded on uncertainty over the future value of the dollar to a closer examination of prices on earning and business prospects, while continuing to work for readjustment of the market's internal structure.

From here out, the prospect is for trading to become more conservative. It is believed that the next phase of the advance, upon completion of whatever further correction is necessary, will be marked by a much greater degree of selectivity than was the case in the early days of the boom. In brief, the idea is that the market will be geared closer to actual news, that traders, deprived of the speculative stimuli of congressional activities, will rely on trade and industrial developments to gauge their operations.

BUSINESS CODES MAY END PRICE WAR OF TOBACCO

New York, June 18.—(AP)—Codes of business ethics regulating the tobacco industry were adopted at the close of the two day convention of retailers and distributors today, foreshadowing an end of price wars.

The codes, adopted by the National Association of Tobacco Distributors and the Retail Tobacco Dealers of America, will be submitted to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the national recovery act, for coördination and approval.

The jobbers established a schedule calling for a minimum profit of 5 per cent on cigarets, 10 per cent on cigars in the 5 cent class and 12 per cent on more expensive grades. The code calls for honest competition and free exchange of credit information. It condemns underselling, pirating or unfair criticism of a competitor and his wares.

The retailers approved a minimum profit schedule of 25 per cent on cigars and little cigars, and 20 per cent on cigarets. Their code forbids "trading coupons" or rebates in any form unless the coupons are included in the original package by the manufacturer or wholesaler.

Westinghouse Air Brake.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly send information about "Westinghouse Air"?—Miss K. N.

Answer: Westinghouse Air Brake company, originally established in 1869, is the leading factor in the air brake field in this country. Union Switch and Signal company, a subsidiary, is the second most important manufacturer of railway signals.

Output of the latter during the last few years has been substantially benefited by the job of installing a signal system on the new New York City subways and electrification of Pennsylvania railroad in the east. These have offset to some degree the sharp curtailment of railroad buying elsewhere.

Railroads during the last few years have felt acutely the effects of curtailed traffic. This has not only resulted in unprofitable operations of the roads, but has left many with depleted current assets. They have consequently restricted purchasing to absolute necessities.

Westinghouse has felt the effects of this. Nevertheless, in direct contrast to most companies in the railway supply field, it has reported a profit, although currently slim, in every year of the last twelve.

Net for the first quarter of 1933 was $17,000, or 1 cent a share, against $380,000, or 12 cents a share, for the corresponding 1932 period. Per share earnings in 1932 were 46 cents, against $1.01 in 1931, $2.05 in 1930, $2.78 in 1929, and $2.05 in 1928.

Current assets at the close of 1932 totaled $33,571,000 and current liabilities were $1,643,000. Cash assets alone were well over $20,000,000. Working capital was $31,929,000, against $35,813,000 the year before.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 3,107,330 shares of no par stock.

The company has ample resources to weather a continued period of restricted railroad purchasing. Its record of profitable operations speaks well for the ability of the management. Not much improvement can be looked for, however, pending signs of lasting improvement in railroad earnings.

Suspension of Service.

Investors' Guide: I hold a foreign bond. I read somewhere that the suspension of service on it is being contemplated. What does that mean?—E. L. M.

Answer: Service, as applied to a bond issue, means interest, principal, and sinking fund payments. It therefore appears that consideration is being given to the holding back of payment of principal, interest, or sinking fund on the bond issue.

BUILDING IN ILLINOIS AGAIN SHOWS INCREASE

Chicago Construction Also Gains.

BY AL CHASE.

For the third consecutive month this year the building figures for Illinois show a gain over the preceding thirty days. During May a total estimated expenditure of $1,012,309 for 1,353 building projects was authorized by building permits issued in the sixty-five reporting cities throughout the state. This represents increases over April, 1933, of 18.4 per cent in the number of projects and 12.5 per cent in the total estimated cost.

The April-May increase is to be contrasted with a usual seasonal decline in the estimated cost of permit projects of more than 5 per cent. Compared to May, 1932, the total expenditure of $1,012,309 represented a decline of 36.4 per cent.

Exceed $1,000,000.

Another interesting and significant feature of the May figures is that for the first month since October, 1932, the total estimated cost of permit buildings exceeded one million dollars.

New building projects accounted for the May increase, the total expenditure for all such projects showing a gain of 28 per cent over April reports. Within this classification residential building gained 50.6 per cent, while non-residential building increased 13 per cent.

The estimated cost of additions, alterations, repairs, and installations during May, 1933, declined 1.9 per cent from the total cost reported in April.

In Chicago, the total estimated cost of building projects increased 33.4 per cent in May and that for projects in thirty-four suburban communities increased 15.2 per cent, according to figures compiled by the Illinois department of labor. The total estimated cost of proposed building projects in the thirty cities outside the Chicago metropolitan area declined 17.5 per cent.

Chicago Building Gains.

Both new residential and new non-residential building in Chicago showed gains during May over the preceding month. New residential building increased from $36,750 in April to $112,000 in May, or 204.8 per cent. New nonresidential building increased from $102,575 to $174,270, or 69.9 per cent.

This increase in nonresidential building is accounted for largely by the erection of numerous refreshment and concession stands and other stores, as well as small office buildings connected with parking lots and gasoline service stations in the vicinity of the World's Fair. Over $45,000 was to be spent on seventy-five projects authorized by permits issued in May for such buildings, most of which are temporary structures.

The increase in Chicago new residential building was the fourth consecutive monthly gain reported and for the first time since December, 1931, the estimated expenditure in residential building exceeded that for the same month of the preceding year.

LETTERS

Financial Editor:

Chicago, June 16.—In your issue of June 13, under caption "Minnie, with 197 Children, Railroad's Pet," particular reference is made to air conditioning. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad was the first line to introduce air conditioning of train equipment and having in operation all air conditioned trains from Chicago and St. Louis to New York and between Washington and New York on the Capitol Limited, National Limited, and the Columbian, with air conditioned club car on the Fort Pitt Limited between Chicago and Pittsburgh. I also wish to state we have on exhibit at A Century of Progress exposition, just south of the Travel and Transport building, six different type cars which are air conditioned. W. G. BROWN,

General Passenger Agent, Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Financial Editor:

Battle Creek, Mich., June 12.—Allow me to extend to you my congratulations for your article pertaining to the new federal securities act of 1933 in your edition of Sunday, under "Investors' Guide." Such information is very constructive. FRANCIS J. DROLLA,

J. Arthur Redner & Co.

Financial Editor:

Anderson, Ind., June 13.—I think THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is pursuing a very unpatriotic course in continually harping upon what it calls "repudiation" when payment in gold was removed from the bonds of the United States.

Lawful money is all that is necessary and all that should be required in payment of such obligations, and all that is ever used, except in times of hysteria when timid people seek to protect themselves at the expense of poor debtors. The fact that every one knows that there is not sufficient gold in existence to pay much more than one-tenth of the outstanding bonds of the nation, states, and governmental subdivisions should convince every one that the action of congress was both sensible and wise. To try to impute bad faith to the congress when it acts to make clear what is impossible of fulfillment in every way, seems unjust and unworthy of the standing of a great newspaper like THE TRIBUNE.

It should uphold the action of congress in taking steps to make clear what was a physical impossibility. Lawful money used in all transactions, both public and private, meets all the exigencies of every case, circulates readily and easily between debtor and creditor, and provides the means whereby trade, manufacturing and all businesses may move along smoothly and without jar until some one has a brainstorm and demands payment in gold. GEORGE S. PARKER.

27 MILLION LOAN MADE AS STEP IN COTTON PLAN

Wallace to Announce 4 Cent Process Tax.

Washington, D. C., June 18.—(AP)—The farm credit administration made known today that it has advanced a total of $27,400,000 to the American Cotton Coöperative association as a step in the operation of the cotton option pool to be employed by Secretary Wallace in his cotton program.

The agriculture secretary will announce his program calling for maximum processing taxes of about 4 cents a pound tomorrow at 11 a. m.

It will provide for paying farmers rentals for retiring a large portion of the growing crop and will offer them options on about 2,500,000 bales which Wallace will acquire under the farm adjustment act.

The credit administration said the coöperative used the money to pay off primary liens on the organization's 1930 seasonal pool cotton. The coöperative served as a vehicle for cotton stabilization efforts of the federal farm board, recently absorbed by the credit administration.

The administration said that in making the loan it was "paving the way to take such action and to make such settlements as are necessary in order to acquire full legal title to the association's cotton which is later to be sold to the secretary of agriculture."

Most of the details of this transfer have been completed. Wallace also is authorized to use cotton acquired by the crop production loan service which has foreclosed on more than 500,000 out of nearly 900,000 bales which had been put up as security for seed loans.

In all, $98,827,505 has now been advanced to the cotton coöperative.

The credit administration during May advanced to other coöperatives a total of $29,509,487, while repayments of $4,862,167 were made, leaving a total outstanding indebtedness to the farm board's successor of $181,017,629 as of May 31.

During May $821,908 was advanced to the National Wool Marketing corporation, Boston, bringing its debt to $16,087,364.
